Judges Reject Amchitka Stay

Times News Services

Virtually the last chance to halt the planned nuclear blast on Amchitka Island fell through today when a three-judge federal tribunal in Washington refused to grant a stay against the five-megaton explosion.

The U.S. Court of Appeals referred the matter to a lower court where lawyers for environmental groups opposing the blast will now have to seek an immediate appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court to gain a reversal of Nixon's Wednesday decision to go ahead with the blast.

One Question Considered

In refusing to grant an immediate stay against the blast, the appeals court said it was dealing only with the question of whether the government should be obliged to make public information conservationists claim would indicate environmental dangers from the explosion.

Meanwhile at the United Nations Canada protested today the "poisonous dangerous risk" in the ultimate futile nuclear testing by the superpowers.

Speaking in the General Assembly's main political committee, Paul St.-Pierre parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, was referring specifically to Amchitka.

But his remarks took in the Soviet Union, France and China in a general condemnation of nuclear tests.

"We cannot find security in this narrow world of ours without an end to nuclear tests."

He said Canada was naturally concerned about Amchitka because the effects could reach Canadian soil. But Canada since 1945 has been seeking an end to all nuclear tests and would continue to do so.

Blast Called Risky

The Amchitka test could come about without ill effects, but nobody could deny that risks of atmospheric poisoning are there.

St. Pierre mentioned that three of the five nuclear weapons powers had adopted a partial nuclear-test-ban treaty which outlawed tests in the atmosphere, oceans and space. It was a less than perfect document but it represented some progress.

"Today we may wonder if it and a non-proliferation treaty may not have induced a false sense of security in the people of the world and among us here.

"Nuclear weapons testing continues. It continues at what seems to be an accelerated pace. It has largely been driven underground, but all too often not completely underground."

He said that if the Aleutians explosions send radioactive material into Canada it would be a violation of the test ban treaty.

Only recently the Soviet Union had conducted a major test and now the U.S. plans one, he said. Previously France and China had exploded devices in the atmosphere, and radioactive poisons from the Chinese test had spread over Canada.

No Sign of China Stopping

There was no indication that China was going to stop its testing, he added.

St. Pierre was speaking during consideration of an item dealing with international security. The item was proposed by the Soviet Union as a vehicle for Soviet and Arab points of view, but it provides a forum for anybody to say virtually anything.

Thus Canada quickly assigned its name on the list of speakers after it was announced in Washington that the Amchitka test was on.

This is the second time that Canada has protested here about the proposed Amchitka test. Sharp protested both Soviet and U.S. tests in his speech at the opening of the General Assembly.

St. Pierre, a Chifcotin Liberal, said the question of international security transcends traditional concepts about security of states.

"It is well known, for example, that certain inherently dangerous objects such as a nuclear-powered vessel, or an object launched into outer space, or a loaded and unseaworthy tanker, may pose a more serious threat to the security of a coastal state than a gunboat," he said.

The concept of the protection of the territorial integrity of states in the charter must in the contemporary world be viewed as subsuming the new threat posed by technology to the environment beyond national jurisdiction."

St. Pierre spared only Britain among the nuclear powers.

He said:

"The Amchitka test, of course, as not unique. In the present state of affairs it cannot be called unexpected. Nuclear arms will proliferate and underground tests will continue as long as nations fear that their rivals are sur-

NO NASTY SMIRKS USING THIS PHONE

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Robert Stanbury Wednesday launched an "experimental picturephone service from his Parliament Hill office to the communications department.

The picturephone is a combined television camera and screen equipped with a dial and buttons to adjust the camera. There is also a privacy button which would allow the hearer to listen privately on a nearby telephone receiver.

Bell Canada has installed two sets costing $2,500 each with a monthly rental of $150. The sets have five-inch-square screens.

The communications department wants to try the system for six months to see how useful it is and to test the reaction of users, the minister said.

Majority Seen For Market Bid

LONDON (CP) — Ten years of monumental effort to gain British membership in the European Common Market reach a historic climax tonight with a crucial Commons vote on the hotly-contested issue.

There appeared little doubt a comfortable majority will support the principle of entry on terms negotiated by the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath.

This would mean that for the first time in a decade nothing stands in the way of British membership in Europe except parliamentary approval of enabling legislation to be introduced later.

The vote, set for 2 p.m. PDT, comes at the end of a six-day debate which saw a succession of late-night House sittings, some sparkling rhetoric and bitter political infighting.

Most newspapers today gave Heath—who has staked his political future largely on the Market issue—a majority of 50 to 70 MPs in the 630-seat Commons.

The Common Market bands together France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg in a customs union in which the main barriers to the free flow of internal trade have been dismantled.

The entry terms have torn deep divisions in the Opposition Labor party, caused a small number of Tory MPs to bolt party lines and have apparently not been convincing to the British public.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pay Hike Agreed

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The Williams Lake School District and 209 teachers in the district have ratified a wage agreement calling for a 7.7 per cent wage increase for teachers. The agreement was reached before the announcement Tuesday by Education Minister Donald Brothers that the province would not share the costs of pay raises beyond 6.5 per cent.

Villagers Moved

LAS PALMAS, Spain (UPI) — Two thousand villagers have been evacuated from the southern tip of La Palma Island where a two-day-old volcano eruption was raging without signs of relenting, officials said today.

Island Quakes

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (Reuter) — One person was killed and many injured by a severe earthquake which today shook the town of Santo, on Espiritu Santo Island in the Franco-British New Hebrides, official sources said.

Cambodia Grant

PHNOMPEN (AP) — Cambodia will receive a $20 million cash grant from the U.S. to replenish its depleted foreign exchange reserves, government sources said Wednesday night. The agreement was not announced officially, but American sources confirmed that it has been signed by U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank. Sok Chhong, Cambodia's top economic official, scheduled a news conference for Thursday morning to discuss the grant.

China Date Stall

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will make his trip to mainland China some time after Jan. 1, with the exact date to be announced next month, setting the trip in 1972 does not mean delay in Nixon's schedule, Henry Kissinger, the president's national security adviser, said.

'Stop Tough Talk'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might be able to help the U.S. with its trade balance problem if the U.S. were to become more co-operative and avoid handing down ultimatums, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday.

Sharp was questioned in the commons by NDP Leader David Lewis about a television appearance he made on a U.S. network Tuesday.

The minister said his message in the broadcast had been that the U.S. balance-of-payments problem would not be solved by the U.S. government saying to Canada: "Here is a surcharge which will remain in until you do such and such."

Canada has been subject to the 10 per cent additional U.S. tax on imports announced by President Nixon on August 15 despite appeals for exemption.

Senior U.S. government officials have said that Canada should agree to alterations of the Canada-U.S. auto pact and the defence production sharing agreement, among other things, that would shift the balance of trade between the two countries in favor of the U.S.

SITUATION DIFFICULT

But Sharp would say only that it was difficult to resolve economic problems on the basis of an ultimatum — a "sphere of friendship and co-operation" was needed.

In Chicago, U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans told a news conference that results of the 10-per-cent extra charge on dutiable imports "have been exaggerated in the rhetoric of negotiation by affected countries."

He cited Canada as an example, saying half of its exports to the U.S. are not affected and other Canadian items produced at a cost of more than 10 per cent under the U.S. cost would continue flowing into the U.S. market.

All told, about 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the U.S. are affected by the surcharge.

TRADE SURPLUS

In Washington, the government reported a trade surplus of $265.4 million in September after four consecutive months of deficits.

The report said U.S. exports totalled $4.51 billion while imports were valued at $4.25 billion. The figures did not include U.S. military expenditures abroad which normally offset any trade surpluses.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold Passer said that because of distortions due to the dock strikes, the full impact is still not evident from the 10 per cent U.S. import surcharge, changes in exchange rates and the shift to floating rates of exchange of the dollar.

WHITE LIE is suggested by that material sitting on the branches of the palm trees. No, it didn't snow in Hawaii but it did snow in Calgary—four inches—where the artificial trees sit in front of Polynesian Imports Ltd.

U.K. Troops Forced To Halt Detonation

Times News Services

BELFAST (UPI) — Irish Republic troops with submachineguns at the ready forced British troops today to abandon explosive charges they had planted on a bridge at the border of Ireland and Northern Ireland.

No shots were exchanged in this 90-minute confrontation described by British military spokesmen as the most serious in recent memory. There was no immediate word as to how many troops were involved on both sides.

PROTEST MADE

A British army spokesman said a British patrol was laying explosive charges to blow up a cross-border bridge at Munnelly, near Roslea, in county Fermanagh. Irish police protested, saying the bridge was at least half in the Irish Republic, and called the Irish army.

The Irish army arrived and took up firing positions along the southern side. An Irish army spokesman said: "The army stood by to render any assistance to the police." A British army spokesman added: "I would imagine our chaps would have kept the other side covered."

The British army has been destroying bridges and roads near the border to prevent arms and other supplies from reaching men of the outlawed Irish Republican Army which is blamed for much of the violence in the north.

The British spokesman said the local Irish and British commanders discussed the situation and examined local army ordinance maps. The British unit then withdrew the charges it had placed on the north side of the bridge but left charges on the south end under guard.

Meanwhile a Roman Catholic joined Northern Ireland's cabinet for the first time Wednesday night with an appeal for peace. A few hours later, a police officer and a British soldier were killed and the army claimed at least six guerrillas were shot in a gun battle.

Prime Minister Brian Faulkner appointed Dr. Gerard Newe, 64-year-old specialist in social work, as a minister of state in an attempt to reach out to the Catholic minority.

The toll of known deaths in the communal warfare rose to 139 in the last two years, including 31 British soldiers this year.

SHOOT SIX SNIPERS

After an eight-hour house-to-house gun fight in West Belfast during the night, military headquarters reported troops hit at least six guerrilla snipers. But the dead or wounded were dragged away into the darkness by their comrades, the army said.

Early today, raiders ambushed a police car driving along the northern shore of Lough Neagh a few miles from Belfast.

U.S. Holds Back Budget for UN

UNITED NATIONS (WP) — The United States has withdrawn its 1972 United Nations budget until it decides how to react to the general assembly's expulsion of Taiwan, a U.S. spokesman said Wednesday.

Rep. Edward Derwinski (R-Ill.), a member of the U.S. delegation, was to have outlined U.S. plans to the assembly's fifth (financial) committee. He decided to wait until "after the dust has settled," according to Nicholas King, the spokesman.

Congressional and White House pronouncements have raised the possibility of reductions in U.S. financial support of the United Nations, both on general principles and specifically because the assembly adopted the Albanian proposal to seat Peking and expel the representatives of Chiang Kai-shek, rather than the U.S. proposal for dual representation of Peking and Taiwan.

Any cuts in the U.S. contribution will have a profound effect because the United Nations is on the verge of bankruptcy and frequently can pay its staff only by collecting voluntary or advance contributions from states that want to prevent the organization from going under.

The United Nations needs between $52.3 million and $69.9 million in voluntary contributions beyond yearly assessments to settle its current deficit. Ambassador Edward Hambro of Norway told the fifth committee last week.

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Soviet Union, in an apparent attempt to strengthen the Indian armed forces in their confrontation with Pakistan, is sending a high-ranking military delegation Friday to study India's latest defence requirements, authoritative Indian sources said today.

NFLD. VOTING HEAVY

Times News Services

ST. JOHN'S — Voting was reported heavy in the early hours of polling in today's Newfoundland election.

A record 265,000 are eligible to vote, including 19- and 20-year-olds for the first time.

Of the 42 seats at stake the Liberals hold 25, the Progressive Conservatives 7, independents 3, and 7 are vacant.

There are 108 candidates in the running, with both Grits and Tories running full slates and the New Democratic Party fielding 17.

Considerable interest is centred on the three Labrador seats, all being contested by the New Labrador Party under former Liberal Tom Burgess.

Polls close at 3:30 p.m. Victoria time and first returns are expected shortly afterward.

GREENPEACE TOO SAILS TONIGHT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A crew of up to 30 protesters are to sail for Amchitka tonight aboard a former minesweeper dubbed Greenpeace Too for its last-minute race to beat the Nov. 4 date for a United States nuclear test on the Aleutian island.

The Don't Make A Wave Committee chartered the 134-foot Edgewater Fortune Wednesday after U.S. President Richard Nixon gave the Atomic Energy Commission approval for the five-megaton blast.

The new protest group hopes to meet the original Greenpeace mission aboard the 71-foot halibut boat Phyllis Cormack, at Alert Bay to take aboard some of its crew.

The first mission, which sailed from Vancouver Sept. 15, was short of fuel and provisions and turned back when it became apparent that the blast would not be set off in October. The Phyllis Cormack was sailing south from Prince Rupert Wednesday when it received word that the un-

EGAN WANTS SHIPS

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — Alaska Gov. William Egan wants rescue vessels stationed along the Aleutian island chain in case the five-megaton nuclear blast at Amchitka Island brings unforeseen disaster.

Egan dispatched a telegram to U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird Wednesday asking for the vessels.

. . . AMCHITKA

passing them in military strength.

"The Soviet Union has contributed its full share to heightening international tension, exploding no less than four nuclear devices in recent weeks, according to seismological data recorded abroad.

"France and China have not signed the partial nuclear test ban treaty and they have exploded deyices in the atmosphere which have hurled radioactive poisons into the world's skies.

"Although we welcome the pause in the French government's tests, we are not told how long this pause may continue. There has been no indication whatever that the People's Republic of China is pausing in its atmospheric nuclear tests, which bring down radioactive material on my country as well as many others.

Canada served notice that it will pursue the matter of testing during disarmament debates here.

The Canadian government conceded that Nixon's decision is irrevocable since the test preparations are so advanced the bomb cannot be recovered from more than a mile underground.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada said Nixon's go-ahead only added to the already-straintd relations between Canada and the U.S.

Sharp warned that the Canadian government would hold the U.S. responsible for any damage done to the environment by the blast.

Publicly, hardly a voice was raised in Canada in favor of the test, aimed at improving a new missle for the defence system of the United States, but there were plenty opposed.

SEEK COURT INJUNCTIONS

Seven environment groups headed by the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, fearing environmental hazards, had sought a court injunction to bar the test.

Last Sept. 22 Congress voted to bar the test until at least mid-1972, unless the president personally authorized it.

Wednesday, Nixon did just that, and AEC chairman James R. Schlesinger announced: "We have now received the requisite authority to go ahead including detonation."

Japan as well as Canada is strongly opposed to the test of the warhead designed for the Spartan anti-ballistic missile. Both countries said they fear such a blast might cause environmental damage, including leaks of radiation that could spread in ocean waters across international boundaries.

Yoshio Okawara, minister at the Japanese embassy here, commented:

"I cannot predict what course of action our government may take. We have been very seriously concerned with the atomic experimentation in Amchitka. We are concerned with its effects on the environment, on navigation and on fishing operations."

DAMAGE UNLIKELY

In Wednesday's news conference, Schlesinger said there was a "virtual zero likelihood of any damage" from the test. He said its shock would not even be felt in the nearest large community, Anchorage, Alaska, some 1,400 miles away.

Schlesinger said "stemming" operations—filling in the 6,000-foot-deep shaft on top of the atomic device—would begin immediately, making "it impractical to recover the device."

Should court actions force cancellation of the test, or delay it beyond the several "safe" weeks remaining, the warhead could be destroyed by conventional explosives underground, without setting off an atomic blast, Schlesinger said.

Questioned on expressions of fear that the blast could set off an earthquake or tidal wave, he said no such underground test had ever triggered an aftershock greater than the test itself. It would take an aftershock "10 to 30 times larger than the original detonation" to cause an earthquake reaction.

While there was "no evidence" that this could happen, Schlesinger said, that "that is not to say it cannot happen."

For a tidal-wave situation, the blast would have to lift the ocean floor over a distance of thousands of square miles, he said.

If the test went ahead successfully, Schlesinger said, "we anticipate" closing the Amchitka site.

Alberni Ready —Mayor

If the Amchitka blast next week generates a tidal wave which reaches Port Alberni, timing of its arrival would be critical, Mayor Fred Bishop said today.

A wave funnelling the 30 miles or so up the Alberni Inlet on a high tide would bring disaster, as the twin communities of Alberni and Port Alberni learned in 1964.

That tidal wave, which followed an earthquake in Alaska, caused close to $5 million damage in flooding although no loss of life. It arrived on a high tide.

But another tidal wave in 1960, triggered by an earthquake in Chile, cause no damage when it came in on a low tide.

Bishop said his community of 21,000r is better protected today, with a roadbed alongside the Somass River raised to six feet to serve as a dyke.

DYKES

There are also dykes flanking Kitsuksis Creek which flows into the Somass near town. Seven years ago the tidal wave detoured up the creek to bring heavy flooding to low-lying parts at the north end of the community.

Bishop said Port Alberni has a good Civil Defence plan.

"We're on the alert constantly. We've had lots of practice, both the practical experience gained with the last tidal wave plus several alerts. We're pretty well geared up.

AGAINST ALL TESTS

"Butyou can have the best plan in the world and if the elements are turned loose on you, your plan may not be sufficient. A lot depends on whether the tide is high."

While he is critical of the American decision to proceed with the Amchitka test, he emphastzed his opposition is to all nuclear tests whether conducted by Americans, Russians, French or Chinese.

The immediate problem is the American test site is closer to home, he said.

'GREAT GALACTIC GHOUL' FEARED

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Engineers now are worrying about Mariner 9, the United States spacecraft nearing Mars, because it is entering a mysterious region 130 million miles from the sun called the "Great Galatic Ghoul."

The experts at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here don't know what the Ghoul is or, with certainty, that it even exists. But four of five previous spacecraft to Mars, including two Russion vessels, encountered trouble when they entered the region. The two Russian craft were so severely damaged they were lost.

"I think the fact they've run into problems at this distance from the sun is more than coincidence," said Dan Schneiderman Mariner 9 project director in an interview. "In fact, I'm quite worried."

The first hint there might be something "out there" came in March 1963 when the Soviet craft Mars 1 was lost 132 million miles from the sun.

In the spring of 1965, the Russians lost Zond 2 when it was 130 million miles from the sun.

Mariner 4, the first U.S. spacecraft to Mars, ran into trouble March 24 and March 27, 1965, while 129 million miles from the sun. Instruments indicated it was bombarded with cosmic dust, but the spacecraft survived and later radioed first closeup television pictures of the crater-pocked Martian surface.

Mariner 7, one of two U.S. probes that took more pictures of Mars during Agust 1969, ran into trouble when it was 130 million miles from the sun. It survived the "happening" whose nature wasn't clearly understood. Its sister ship, Mariner 6, experienced no trouble.

The data, Schniederman said, suggests there might be a belt of something that surrounds the sun at a radius of about 130 million miles. But observations with telescopes from earth have not detected anything in this region.

Because of its mysterious nature, one scientist jokingly dubbed the region the Great Galactic Ghoul and the name stuck.

Bennett Regrets Blast

Premier Bennett said Wednesday he is sorry that President Nixon authorized the Amchitka nuclear underground blast for Nov. 4.

"The detrimental effects to the environment and the possible dangers resulting from the test are viewed with concern," a statement from Bennett's office said.

Bennett noted that provincial premiers meeting here in August had unanimously approved sending a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau expressing their concern about the proposed test.

Bennett said he is opposed to all tests of this nature by all countries and regretted that other countries had recently staged similar nuclear tests.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace said civil defence forces will be on the alert with special monitoring devices to detect any possible tidal waves resulting from the test.

The Edgewater Fortune, formerly the HMCS Fortune, has been used as a charter vessel by Captain Henry Johanson of New Westminster, B.C., since 1965.

It has a crusing range of about 7,000 miles and is equipped with a walk-in refrigerator and conveniences for long-range travel. It sleeps 30.

"We plan to average 16 knots going up," said Captain Johanson, "so we can make it to Amchitka by Nov. 3."

Chris Bergthorson, spokesman for the committee, said the Greenpeace Two voyage would use money from a contingency fund held in case problems developed with the first protest.

"We've got a few thousand," he said. "We've been getting it from citizens and organizations interested in the cause. But we're going to need $4,000 for fuel."

Mr. Bergthorson said today more than 300 men had applied to become crew members of Greenpeace Too.

$16,000 TARGET SET FOR POPPIES

Remebrance Day poppies will be sold on the streets from Nov. 4 to 10 with an official target of $16,000.

About $15,000 was raised in the 1970 campaign and was used to help needy war veterans and their dependents.

People willing to sell poppies are asked to phone campaign hadquarters at 386-2333 or convener Mrs. W. P. Trace at 383-7473.

Organizers say the reasons for wearing a poppy are to remind the public of the cost of war, of those who were killed in action and of their responsibility to the dead, the disabled and their dependents.

A short ceremony to honor civil servants who died in the conflict will be held Wednesday, Nov. 10, at 4:30 p.m. in the rotunda of the Legislative Buildings.

As in former years, the ceremony will be open to the public.

It's No Prize Winning a Trip

Robert H. Jordison intends to carry on his fight against paying taxes on a trip he won three years ago as a sales award.

"We're not going to stop here by any means," Jordison, 921 Pandora, said today.

The Tax Appeal Board ruled Wednesday that he must pay taxes on his trip to Jamaica, as must former associate Thomas Roy Miller, 10634 Blue Heron, who went to Acapulco.

The board ruled the trips were benefits received by virtue of employment and are therefore taxable.

As far as Jordison is concerned, the trips were as much business conferences as holidays, offering him the opportunity to discuss intricacies of the mobile home business with senior executives of the manufacturers.

The trips were offered by General Coach Works of Canada when Jordison was a Vancouver Island representative. He said he went into the business in 1965 and that in the interval mobile home sales have burgeoned.

So many sales were made that the prize was incidental, Jordison indicated. Another trip to Rome was awarded to him in 1969, which he also was taxed for.

Value of the Jamaica trip was about $750.

Jordison said the tax must be paid when due, even though a ruling has not been made by the revenue department or tax appeal board.

"If I had won my case I suspect I would not have received interest for all that time," he said.

But he suggests that when similar cases arise, the tax be paid into a trust, with interest going to whoever wins.

Sewage Study Seeks View Royal Support

View Royal ratepayers will be asked by the Capital Regional District Board whether it can undertake a $15,000 study of the cost of establishing a sewerage system in the area.

The board Wednesday night gave three readings to a bylaw which specifies that the cost of the study would be borne by View Royal ratepayers through a levy in 1972.

View Royal defeated a referendum in 1969 calling for a $1.5 million sewerage system to replace the use of septic tanks which, because of soil in the area, were called unsafe by health officers.

The board also approved a recommendation that engineer firms be hired to carry out a detailed $95,000 study of sewage disposal from Mc Micking Point and Clover Point.

In other business the board:

- Gave three readings to a bylaw to develop and maintain Heimcken Centennial Park at an annual cost of $5,500.
- Gave three readings to a bylaw to build an activity centre on Salt Spring Island, the $30,000 cost of which will be charged to local ratepayers.
- Appointed Dennis Young, executive regional board director, as returning officer for the December elections. Deadline for nominations will be noon, Nov. 29.

Prison Probe Urged

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Demands increased today in anti-government quarters for an official investigation into treatment of prisoners by South African security police following the death in custody of an Indian schoolteacher.

Ahmed Timol, 30, died Wednesday in a fall from a 10th floor window at Johannesburg police headquarters.

Timol was detained with eight others after security police swooped in on more than 100 clergymen, students, newspaper men and others in seven cities during the weekend.

A police spokesman said: It is true. He jumped from the 10th floor of John Vorster Square at 4 p.m. this afternoon. He committed suicide."

Timol is the 13th known detainee to have died in security police custody since September, 1963. Four died of natural causes.

Timol's death comes after weeks of demands from religious and political leaders for a judicial inquiry into treatment of detainees.

The Anglican archbishop of Cape Town, Most Rev. Robert Selby Taylor, said: "There are rumors and there appears evidence to support them that the security police are using torture, cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment of detainees. Only a judicial inquiry can allay public concern."

Germany Next

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev will visit East Germany at the end of this month, Tass news agency said Thursday. Brezhnev is currently on a six-day visit to France which ends Saturday.

Cuban Gaiety for Kosygin

HAVANA (Reuter) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin exchanged light-hearted banter with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in front of construction workers during a tour of nearby banking sites Wednesday.

The visiting Kremlin leader, wearing an open-necked shirt, seemed in high spirits as he was driven around in an army jeep by Castro.

He offered a bust of Lenin as a prize to the best gang of workmen in exchange for a white construction helmet while he inspected the home-building project just outside Havana.

As they approached a platform to address workers the two men argued amicably for a few minutes over who should speak first. When convinced by his host that he should make the first speech, Kosygin declared:

"Surely you have noted how we can quickly come to an agreement with comrade Fidel but it is not only about the speech. Also over other matters we are coming very rapidly to an agreement with him."

The Soviet leader is on a four-day visit to Cuba after a nine-day tour of Canada.

"In the world two forces are struggling capitalism and communism. We must say that the Socialist cause is winning. We see it in Soviet Union, Cuba, East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, Korea and Vietnam. It is an enormous peoples' force which no one in the world can defeat or conquer," Kosygin said.

China, U.S. Slammed Over Vietnam Policy

PARIS (AP) — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev went sightseeing in Marseille today after accusing the United States and China of intrigues to sell out the Vietnamese people.

The sortie to the southern port was the Russian leader's only trip outside Paris during his week in France.

About 40 right-wingers demonstrated Wednesday night in Marseille against Brezhnev's visit and set fire to some of the Soviet flags that had been put up.

The object of their protest was in Paris at a formal dinner in honor of his host, President Georges Pompidou. Brezhnev used the dinner as a forum for an attack on Washington and Peking, a theme that the Soviet press has sounded frequently.

Without mentioning China by name, he called "American aggression" the main obstacle to peace in Vietnam.

"There is only one way to a solution of the Indochina conflict," he said, "and that is an end to foreign intervention in the internal affairs of that region of the world.

"No solution can be found to this problem by attempts to impose a foreign will on Vietnam by force, or by intrigues carried on back stage behind the backs of the Vietnamese people."

"On this question of principle," he added, "the positions of the U.S.S.R. and France are very close, something we highly appreciate."

PARIS—The inability to cut down smoking is apparently not confined to lesser mortals. Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, who is visiting France, has confided to reporters that he has trouble with his chain smoking. To help him cut down he now carries his cigarettes in a case with a mechanism that will open it only at 45-minute intervals.

LONDON — Los Angeles millionaire Ralph Stolkin has sued a London socialite for the $535,000 worth of jewelry and property he claims he gave her in engagement presents. Stolkin alleges that Mrs. Patricia Woolfson, daughter of textile manufacturer Louis Rawlings, broke off the engagement after five months and refused to return the presents. The jewelry, worth $425,000 and an apartment worth $110,000 in London's fashionable Belgravia, were given on condition marriage would follow.

SINDELFINGEN, West Germany — Prof. Ernst Fiale, head of Volkswagen's development division, says that if governments insist on safety cars it will mean the end of driving for the little man. Calculations show that, if the Volkswagen K-70, a medium-sized model, was modified to suit "safe" standards, it would cost the purchaser 50 per cent more, in addition to the large extra cost of depolluting the exhaust gases. Fiale says the financially weaker section of the community might then have to switch to motorcycles.

UXBRIDGE, England — Adventurous Richard Smith loved travelling. Poor Richard wanted to see Europe but could not afford the fare. Naughty Richard was finally caught at London's Heathrow Airport and fined $1,000 by an Uxbridge magistrate for forging — making his own tickets to cross the Atlantic five times. He also owes Pan American Airways $450 for past travel.

OTTAWA — The Rideau River has lost one of its royal swans to a killer with a baseball bat. Mrs. Hal Heggtveit found the blood-spattered bat with white feathers clinging to it whilst walking her dog by the river. A city hall official said the dead bird was one of 14 born this year in the flock of about 50.

DARTMOUTH, England — Prince Charles, 22-year-old heir to the throne, has completed six weeks of basic training at Dartmouth, Britain's naval training academy. Charles will now board the guided missile destroyer Norfolk for nine months of duty as a deck sub-lieutenant. Already a pilot in the RAF, the prince is now following in the naval footsteps of his father, Prince Philip, his grandfather, George VI, and his great-grandfather, George V.

Facing a Tough Decision

The residents of Cowichan school district face a tough dilemma. Many of them agree that Malaspina Regional College, located in rented premises in Nanaimo, is good in principle. But on the other hand they feel that Cowichan's participation is costing too much per student.

With 86 full-time students from the district attending, and a total levy of $165,000 to contribute, it costs Cowichan $1,920 per student. The average cost for students in Cowichan's local schools is only $482. College costs should, of course, be higher — but four times as high?

On the basis of its complaints about the cost, Cowichan pulled out of the Malaspina group in May last year, but returned six months later on the understanding that cost shares would be renegotiated. Subsequent meetings have not been successful. Cowichan's partners in the college are Lake Cowichan, Ladysmith, Nanaimo and Qualicum School Districts. Port Alberni is considering participation as well.

The controversy has come to a head with the decision of the Cowichan school board to hold a plebiscite to determine the public's wishes on the question of whether to remain in the arrangement or opt out. The board wants this information as guidance in presenting a proposed referendum next year, when Malaspina must raise funds to build permanent quarters.

The reaction to this proposal has been divided: some residents feel that a vote to take Cowichan out would wreck the college system, since participation of all five districts is necessary if the institution is to succeed. On the other hand, others believe that the original entry of Cowichan was bungled — that voters did not realize they would automatically be in when they balloted affirmatively on the principle back in 1967. They see a plebiscite as at last clearing the air and giving everyone a chance to express a clear opinion.

North Cowichan Ald. Margaret Robertson sums up the opposition with her comment: "I personally feel that we need colleges but I don't approve of the method of taxation." She favors federal and provincial grants — as in the case of universities — rather than placing the burden on property owners.

But opponents of this view see the plebisicite move as a deep plot to "frustrate and even endanger the regional college concept."

So Cowichan is faced with a problem that school districts all over Canada will recognize. The rising costs of education are a fact of life in our modern era. It is fair and reasonable to try to win as equitable a cost-sharing arrangement as possible. And there is an anomaly in the fact that, although regional colleges can provide university credit courses, their operating costs are borne locally and only in part by the province.

When the crunch comes, however, the weight of public opinion should be in favor of education, no matter how financed. It costs a lot to get a college education; it could cost a community still more not to give its young people the best mental equipment possible to fit them for modern life.

A Vote for Strength Through Terror

President Nixon has authorized the Amchitka nuclear test blast despite months of protests and denunciations that spread far beyond United States territory and roused the opposition of individuals, groups and governments.

Arguments against the superexplosion a mile deep under the island in the Bering Sea have ranged from warnings of possible widespread destruction, nuclear contamination, death of wildlife, and other catastrophes, to assertions that the test will escalate international nuclear armament, and that it and the anti-ballistic missile for which the warhead is intended are obsolete anyway.

Congressional disagreement threw the decision to Mr. Nixon, and it must have been a hard one to make. On one side the pressure of military experts demanding nuclear advancement, and the knowledge that Russia is also embarked on underground test programs — on the other the sincere demand of hundreds of thousands of men, women and children for the beginning of an end to the horror weapons.

In assenting to the test Mr. Nixon has placed war preparations first, peace preparations second. For while great armaments are keeping the peace through a balance of terror, they are also presenting the continuous threat of a holocaust that could end the planet. Mr. Nixon can plead national defence as the reason for his decision, but he is gambling for high stakes — morally, politically, ecologically — and he may already have lost the first.

Winnipeg Takes the Plunge

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell wears a delighted grin when he tells of the reaction of his ministerial colleagues across the country who ask him how British Columbia's capital city originated its comprehensive regional district structure which now embraces numerous important functions such as hospital construction, parks acquisition, sewers and planning.

"It all began," Mr. Campbell tells them, "with a regional ban on fire crackers." They stare at him; he says, and don't believe him. But of course it's true. The Capital Regional District may some day end with a bang, but it certainly began with a law against this.

The subsequent development of the Capital Region has been the answer of Greater Victoria and the surrounding territory to the problems of an area chopped up into arbitrary political chunks but facing problems which apply commonly to all or most of them. At a future date it may logically and smoothly give way to amalgamation, which for the present is a dirty word.

In the meantime, we could learn a lot from Winnipeg, which on January 1, as the result of elections held October 6, will abandon a cumbersome metro system of civic government and unite the city with surrounding cities, towns and municipalities to become one large civic entity.

Larger Unit

That will be a very significant step and one which Greater Victorians should watch closely. The number of communities giving up their individual identities to become one homogeneous unit is much larger than would be involved in a similar move here. Their problems have been more complicated and apparently their need for unification more pressing than that which we have experienced. But the efficiency, economy and other benefits which the Manitoba experiment is expected to produce should be equally applicable to our own situation.

With the new year, Metro and the cities of Winnipeg, St. James-Assiniboia, St. Boniface, East Kildonan, West Kildonan, Transcona and St. Vital will cease to exist as such, along with the town of Tuxedo and the municipalities of Fort Garry, Charleswood, North Kildonan and Old Kildonan.

In their place, a unified, comprehensive community will be governed by an elected mayor and 50 councillors. These will be responsible for all law-making in the area, for urban fiscal and taxation policies, and for urban services. The latter will include transit, sewage treatment, area water supply, arterial roads and bridges, planning on an area basis, and the major parks and golf courses.

To relieve the central council of strictly local chores, thirteen community committees will supervise the services now administered on a municipal basis, and these committees, on which councillors will sit, will provide a link between the Greater Winnipeg residents and their central council.

Oddly enough, the provincial act which set up the new structure does not provide for the immediate amalgamation of police forces and of fire services in the area. These will remain autonomous, under the municipal committees. But since the central city council has powers of supervision over all services, it is expected that steps will be taken to amalgamate both fire and police services at an early date.

Community estimates will be submitted to the central council, which will prepare an overall budget and set a uniform property tax rate for the whole Greater Winnipeg area. In some cases this will mean an initial increase in taxes, in others a reduction.

Internally, the central council will have four committees to handle its work: policy, finance, public works, and planning and development, much as any city council functions. A board consisting of four commissioners and the mayor

Winnipeg's present Mayor Steve Juba was elected to the new central mayoral position will provide a link between the council and the super-city's administration. By law, all council and community committee meetings will be open to the public. Councillors, elected for a three-year term, will be paid $5,700 a year, with extra remuneration for standing committee work.

In setting up the legislation for the change-over, the Manitoba government cited three chief defects it hoped to remedy: fragmented authority, segmented financial capacity, and lack of citizen involvement.

Among the specific problems it is hoped will be overcome are the need for effective planning on a regional scale; the existing divided control which makes implementation of policies difficult; a wide disparity in the level of services within the municipalities even though taxes do not reflect these differences; inequitable tax levies on industry by competing municipalities; social problems and costs in the core area which bear exclusively on core residents; city-centre facilities provided by Winnipeg city but used by the whole region; the problems of a two-tier Metro system which alienated citizens. Some of these have a familiar ring.

Close Contact

By law, the community committees must foster "the closest possible" relationships with the public, including an annual conference at which all residents will be invited to discuss community programs, and monthly and quarterly meetings whose dates must be widely advertised. There is also provision for elected citizen advisory groups, to advise and assist councillors.

There is much in this comprehensive civic organization which invites study by Greater Victorians. The size of the area and the council which will govern it means that special efforts have to be made to involve the individual citizen.

There is a new approach in the Winnipeg venture which offers improved democratic features. For instance, there is closer liaison, at least on paper, between the citizen and his councillors and committee members than between our citizens and their regional board and municipal councils.

Fifty councillors may prove to be a cumbersome machine. But with willing effort by elected and electors, the Winnipeg move could provide a new dimension in Canadian civic democracy. B.A.T.

Need to Maintain the Quality

LETTERS

We would appreciate space to make a few comments relative to the proposed subdivision on the borders of city-owned Upper Thetis Lake.

The original plan of the developers had been for a subdivision for approximately 600 houses plus schools, stores, etc., but approval of this plan was not forthcoming. However, the area is zoned for a subdivision consisting of 10-acre lots, and it is now the intention of the developers to proceed on this basis if approval is given by the provincial Highways Department.

We feel that should this take place it will be only a matter of time before restrictions are relaxed and the 10-acre parcels will be further subdivided, bringing about the same situation as would exist if the original plan had been proceeded with.

Approximately 245 acres of the land in question drain into Upper Thetis Lake and this would result in pollution of the Thetis Lakes. Furthermore, as the boundaries of the subdivision are only approximately 100 yards from Upper Thetis Lake, it would also bring about pollution of this entire beautiful natural area by influx of people.

It is the opinion of the 200 members of Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association that the only way to preserve the natural aspects of Upper Thetis Lake area and to maintain the present quality of the two lakes is by acquisition of an additional 245 acres of that watershed area lying to the west of the park. — H. R. Matthews, President.

Helping the Children

I would like you to know that the response to the 1971 Easter Seal Appeal was indeed heartening. Donations to the Easter Seal Fund and Special Events to September 30, 1971, amounted to $172,666. This is an increase of $22,494.00 over the 1970 appeal.

There is every reason to believe that through your generous efforts the people of British Columbia were made better aware that Easter Seals do help handicapped children and that this society is needed by these same children. — Mart Kenney, Easter Seal Appeal publicity chairman, The B.C. Society for Crippled Children.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Oct. 28, 1911:

SHANGHAI — Wireless dispatches from Hankow reporting a sweeping victory for the Imperial troops there yesterday caused a flutter in Shanghai today. The reports were received even by official circles with incredulity. Rebel sympathizers declared that the dispatches were undoubtedly sent from a government source to bolster up a faltering cause.

The wireless dispatches were caught by some of the German naval operators. They gave no details but said there was fighting all day yesterday at Hankow, and that the result was a sweeping victory, compelling the rebels to abandon Hankow and fall back across the Han River into Han Yang.

Ontario's Results Are Interpreted in Federal Terms

MAURICE WESTERN

OTTAWA — The topic of absorbing interest to members of Parliament has been the Ontario election. What effect, if any, is it likely to have on the fortunes of the federal parties?

As would be expected, analyses vary remarkably — the Conservative view being utterly at variance with those of Liberals and the New Democrats.

What they appear to have in common is a large element of wishful thinking. The most prudent conclusion probably is that the Davis sweep has considerably less significance for federal politics than enthusiastic Conservatives insist and rather more than downcast Liberals and New Democrats pretend.

What makes calculation hazardous is the peculiar behavior, over a long period, of Ontario voters. They suffer, according to learned scholars, from political schizophrenia. In roughly the same period they have backed the Conservatives in nine provincial elections while voting Liberal in six of nine federal elections.

This is true also of the two Conservative parties.

It can be shown in some cases, notably in Ottawa, that the heavier turnout usually associated with federal contests favors the Liberals. But there was a massive vote on Thursday larger than in Mr. Trudeau's election and the Conservatives increased their popular percentage.

There is at least a strong possibility that Mr. Nixon, the Liberal leader, suffered at the polls from the unpopularity of certain federal Liberal policies. His candidate in Ottawa West, Howard Henry, reported in an election night postmortem that he had encountered much civil service dissatisfaction in his canvass. While Mr. Henry was not specific, this almost certainly is attributable to the manner in which the federal government's bilingualism policies have been implemented.

In the opinion of others in the same party the Kosygin visit did nothing to commend Liberals to voters of European origin. It probably helped the Conservatives.

Again, Toronto has been regarded as a federal Liberal trouble spot: two prominent metropolitan members, Paul Hellyer and Perry Ryan having parted political company with Mr. Trudeau. It may be of significance that the Conservatives took 17 of 28 seats on Thursday in an area from which they had been totally excluded in the 1968 federal election.

The results were much more disappointing to the NDP than to the Liberals although the two parties were very close both in the popular vote and in the number of seats won. This is due to a characteristic difference of outlook.

Over the years the two older parties have tended to treat Ottawa with a certain detachment. This was perhaps more notable as a rule in the case of the ruling Conservatives who may have had reservations concerning the competence of their federal counterparts. In the latest campaign, however, it was the provincial Liberals who appeared to place most stress on their distinctive character, probably because their bringing-Walter-Gordon polices were almost bound to embarrass the Trudeau government.

On the other hand the NDP quite obviously regarded Ontario as a springboard to federal power. A victory in populous Ontario, following the two victories in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, would certainly have given them great momentum and perhaps for the first time some hope of breaking through the seemingly impassable Quebec barrier. They had, like the Conservatives, a new and vigorous leader; they had some impressive candidates; they made an all-out effort. But they lost seats and made only a fractional gain (apparently about one per cent) in the popular vote.

How much of the Davis vote is transferable to Robert Stanfield is a question that only time can settle. The clear gain from the Conservative standpoint is intangible. Ever since the defeat of 1968 at Mr. Trudeau's hands, the morale of the leading opposition party, especially in central Canada, has been abysmally low.

This probably accounts in good part for the lethargy which has marked the Conservative rebuilding effort. Mr. Stanfield has been much criticized as a leader although the criticism might more justly be directed at his followers. In the House of Commons he has almost been the party and anyone who doubts it need only read Hansard for days on which Mr. Stanfield is away.

Until quite recently the Stanfield persistence seemed to be taking the Conservative party nowhere. Latterly there has been a change as indicated by the polls and more convincingly by the party's renewed vitality in Alberta, New Brunswick and Ontario. Thus the national situation, especially since Ontario's election, has ceased to look hopeless in Conservative eyes. Mr. Stanfield plainly has a long way to go in a comparatively short time. But if the party shakes off its defeatism and goes to work seriously, especially in long-neglected policy fields, he may now have a better chance of realizing his political objective than any reasonably objective observer would have conceded him a few months ago.

There is another way of viewing the Ontario election. When a government in power faces two opposition parties (each saying much the same thing), the government has an obvious advantage. If Stephen Lewis, attempting to soften his image, sounded at times like a Liberal, Mr. Nixon, especially on the national list, Walter Gordon line, sounded rather like a New Democrat of relatively moderate views.

In the coming struggle for federal power, the two serious opposition parties, facing a Liberal government, will be the Conservatives and the New Democrats. They have commonly voted together in this Parliament. In so doing they have courted the risk run by Mr. Nixon and Mr. Lewis: that of cancelling each other out at the polls.

There are, of course, basic differences — for example, over tax policy and the general attitude of the parties to the United States. But it is high time that the Conservatives began to make their conservatism apparent to the electors. Otherwise they may find themselves in the plight of Mr. Nixon who managed by his policies to give some credibility to the rival opposition party, with the benefits on election night accruing to Mr. Davis and the established government.

Picasso: 'My Duty to Keep Working Until I Drop'

By MIGUEL ACOCA

BARCELONA—"What more could I want than to be gored to death clutching some brushes and painting?" said Pablo Ruiz Picasso, to bullfighter Luis Miguel Dominguin, who had asked his old friend whether he should attempt a comeback with the bulls at 47.

"You can always be killed by a bull," Picasso told Dominguin, who recalled the conversation in a recent interview. "But what more could you want? When a man knows how to do something and doesn't do it, he becomes a ghost. Even though you take him home to eat with you, you're not eating with your friend, but with his shadow. This is why it's your duty to return to the bulls, and die in the most decorous way possible. This is why it's my duty to keep working until I drop."

Machismo

The talk between the painter, who marked his 90th birthday this week, and the bullfighter took place last spring, after Dominguin had travelled from Spain to Mougins, in southern France, to seek Picasso's advice. The younger man was convinced by the older man's blatant appeal to "machismo" — the gutsy thing to do — and eventually made his comeback. But he was surprised by the reference to death. Picasso, as is well-known among his friends, has banned all talk of death in his presence.

He's like a gypsy, said Dominguin, who has known Picasso for 20 years and wrote the introduction to a book of Picasso engravings of bulls and bullfighting. "He won't talk about it (death). But he knows bullfighting. It deals with death. So he went to the heart of the matter. That's the way he is — brutal but profound, the way children are."

Dominguin is only one of the many Spanish friends to whom Picasso is king, arbiter, patron, counselor, confessor and the embodiment of Spanish and human virtue. He is not only their universal genius, but their intimate superpadre. When they are in need, he gives them a drawing, an engraving, a fist of money. He keeps in touch with those in distress.

Only one of his Spanish friends is a contemporary — Manuel Pallares, 95, a painter who befriended Picasso at art school in Barcelona before the turn of the century. Every year Picasso invites Pallares to visit his home in France, and there the two old men walk down the Ramblas, Picasso fencing with the trees on the boulevard with his cane.

It is significant that even though Picasso has not been in Spain since 1934, and has vowed not to set foot on his harsh native land so long as Generalissimo Francisco Franco (who is nearly 11 years his junior) remains the country's dictator, he is willing to interrupt his frenetic working schedule to receive his countrymen, and spend time with them talking his earthy Spanish, punctuated by gypsy and bull-fight imagery and rich obscenities.

"It is as if he had told himself 'If I forget thee, Spain, may my hands lose their cunning'," said Josep Palau Fabre, author of a stirring musical evocation of Picasso's life and works which opened in a Barcelona cafe-theatre four days ago.

"He's full of nostalgia for Spain. The last time I saw him he pulled up his jersey and said, 'Want to see where the horn gored me?' It was a corny way to refer to the scar of his gall-bladder operation of some years ago, but eminently Spanish, and very natural."

Swinging City

Palau has spent most of his adult life writing about Picasso and interviewing friends and relatives in Malaga, the painters' native city on the Costa del Sol, and in Barcelona, the swinging city of his irreverent youth which Picasso loves and remembers with fondness. He finds it important that the painter has refused French offers of citizenship and retains his Spanish nationality after 67 years of almost continuous residence in France.

The Spanish government, however, does not find Picasso a loyal supporter, and did not hold any official celebration to mark the 90th birthday of Spain's greatest living son. The reasons are political. Picasso is a Communist, and steadfastly supported the Spanish Republic which Franco defeated in the brutal 1936-39 civil war with the help of Hitler and Mussolini. "Guernica," his famous mural which is on loan to New York's Museum of Modern Art, is a chilling condemnation of Franco and his German Nazi allies for the bombing of a defenceless Basque shrine.

There is also Picasso's virulent personal attack on Franco, a series of engravings entitled "Franco's Dream and Lie," one of which depicts the Generalissimo raping Spain. There is no evidence that the passion Picasso put into these works has been spent.

"Guernica," which has been in the custody of The Museum of Modern Art since the Second World War, is Picasso's gift to the Spanish people. He has arranged for its delivery to Spain "when civil liberties are restored" in his homeland, said his friends. Only he can decide whether these have been restored. After his death the decision will be made by his liberal French lawyer, Roland Dumas.

Pablo Picasso in his studio

Although Picasso has a small but devoted cult in Spain, the average Spaniard doesn't know his work. They've never had a chance to see it, and many consider him "a nut who made good abroad by fooling gullible foreigners," said a friend. But Spanish newspapers this week are devoting sections to the man and his work and the cities of Barcelona, Malaga and Madrid held small birthday ceremonies. A few intellectuals have asked the government to issue a stamp in his honor.

Friends claim that the Spanish government, aware that Picasso's works fill in his possession number in the thousands, has made secret approaches to him asking him to recant and come home in triumph in the hope that he will leave his private collection to Spain. But Picasso, they said, has refused.

"You can't talk politics or religion with Picasso," said Gustavo Gili, Picasso's Barcelona publisher, who first met the painter 50 years ago. "He's committed to his ideals. He won't change. He knows he's a symbol to too many people, and that he would let them down if he changed his mind and gave his approval to Franco."

The regime, however, did not stop the creation of the Picasso Museum in Barcelona, the only institution in the world devoted entirely to his work. On display are thousands of examples of his boyhood sketches, drawings and paintings. They were donated by Picasso himself, and by his close friend and secretary the late Barcelona poet Jaime Sabartes.

Picasso had much to say about the color of the museum's walls, and how his works should be displayed and framed. He also insisted that Pilar Solano, the mistress of Sabartes, should be employed as a curator in the museum.

He offered the city authorities "Las Meninas", a devastating parody of Velazquez's 17th century painting of the pampered Spanish princesses and their pet dwarfs and dogs on condition that Miss Solano be employed. The delighted city authorities accepted both. Miss Solano and the suite of 'pis which constitute an attack on Spanish arrogance, a glorification of the artist as the breaker of molds, and a celebration of nature. He also gave the museum a portrait of Jacqueline, his wife.

Testament Terror

Miss Solano is a handsome, middle-aged woman whose eyes welled with tears when she spoke of Picasso.

"After Sabartes died," she said, "Picasso phoned me. He wanted to know whether I had any means, whether I wanted to stay in France or come to Barcelona. I told him Barcelona. 'Don't worry,' he told me. 'I'll take care of everything,' and he did. He even offered me a car, and made me a cash gift of $28,000. He knew Sabartes had not been able to make a fortune."

She is one of the few people who has talked about wills with Picasso, who has been reported in terror of making his testament.

"He was worried by the untidiness caused by the fact that Sabartes died intestate," she recalled. "He asked me many questions, and it was my impression that he intended to make a will to avoid a mess after his death."

Recent visitors agreed that Picasso's Bohemian life-style hasn't changed at all.

The house at Mougins, they said, is a mess. Paintings and papers and books are piled up everywhere — on chairs, tables and against walls. It's hard to find an unclutered chair to sit on.

"He may be a great painter," said Gili, "But he's not much of a decorater."

Night Creature

Picasso is still a night creature. He works until well past midnight, rolls in bed until noon the next day, when he discusses the day's schedule, the news and the mail with Jacqueline and his male secretary, Mariano de Miguel, a Spanish Republican refugee who lives amid Picassos and other art works in Picasso's former home, the nearby "La Californie."

Sometimes he complains to them that he accomplished nothing the previous day. He often has lunch with visitors who have made appointments months in advance. The meals are frequently served on unmatched china. He dresses simply — shorts when it's warm, corduroys and a pullover when it's cold.

Nowadays Picasso takes good care of his health. He takes a siesta and follows a strict diet prescribed by his doctor. Late in the afternoon he sips a medicinal tea and munches on toast. Jacqueline makes sure that he doesn't forget to swallow his daily dose of pills, and she fetches his glasses when he needs them. They seldom go out, but he still likes to go to the bullfights whenever one is held in nearby Riviera Plazas. He has loved the bulls ever since his father, an art teacher, first took him to a bullfight as a child.

The pace of the household is frenetic. "There's enough work for five secretaries," said Gili. The phone is always ringing with calls from all over the world — New York, Rio, Tokyo, Stockholm, Rome. "Everybody wants to talk to Picasso, to come to see him. But he refuses to come to the phone. He wants to keep visitors down to the necessary minimum. He feels many of these callers want to come for no other reason than to be able to say that they have been to see Picasso. He complains that he's not a rare animal in a zoo."

Letters and telegrams pile up. It's up to Jacqueline and de Miguel to read them, and pass him those they consider important enough for his attention. Many are never answered.

Recent visitors were amazed by the steadiness of his hands and his dexterity. Recently he was working on some etchings which require concentration and tremendous physical effort. They remarked that he is always busy. Even as he talks his hands fashion a rose out of a piece of paper, or he dashes off a quick drawing, or scratches a line with whatever he is holding.

At Jacqueline's insistence he has been going to the dentist once a week. He has become so intrigued by the dentist's drills and picks that he's bringing them home to experiment with them.

Scurrilous Prose

"He's always been a tactile person," said Palau. "I was with him once when he was given a box of a new type of German pen. He immediately began to draw and did not stop until they all ran dry. 'They're great for drawing buttocks and breasts,' he exclaimed, handing me a drawing of some."

Picasso is also a prolific writer of scurrilous surrealist prose in Spanish. Among his published writings is a companion piece for a book of engravings entitled "The Burial of the Count of Orgaz," which makes total fun of El Greco's celebrated painting.

The sentences are like his painting — elusive, unpunctuated, full of surprises and unique imagery they are impossible to translate. But the work gave him the excuse to tell a friend that long after he is dead his writing will gain recognition and encyclopedias will say: "Picasso, Pablo Ruiz — Spanish poet who dabbled in painting, drawing and sculpture."

Fixing the Real Blame for Inflation

By GARDENER C. MEANS

There is grave danger that phase II of President Nixon's anti-inflation program will fail because its primary focus is on the wrong problem.

It is based on the assumption that the major source of inflationary pressure lies with labor and that profits are a positive force, except in occasional "windfall" cases. This confuses the role of profits and their contribution to inflation.

The fact is that greater profits made by increasing production at the same profit margin contribute to recovery. But greater profits made by increasing profit margins contribute to inflation.

In the last six months, the inflation push clearly has been primarily due to a widening of profit margins. According to the national income accounts published by the commerce department, total compensation to employees per physical unit of gross national product non-financial corporations remained constant.

In the same period, profit margins per unit of production for these corporations increased by more than 6 per cent. Thus, for this period wages in industry only kept pace with increases in productivity and did not initiate inflation, while the widening of profit margins did.

The president confirmed in his speech that wage increases have not been the primary source of inflation. He said that the big wage gains of the last six years "have practically all been eaten up by rises in the cost of living." Yet in those six years, labor productivity increased by 11 per cent. If wage rates only kept pace with the cost of living, labor would be deprived of its share of the increase in national productivity.

In addition to the role of profit margins, the current inflation is being fueled by a curious paradox. Labor maintains that wage rates have not kept pace with combined increases in productivity and living costs and assumes that this is because profit margins are too high. Management holds that profit margins are low and assumes that this is because wage rates are too high.

The paradox lies in the fact that both are right and that each is wrong in blaming the other. Wage rates have not kept pace with the combined increase in productivity and labor costs, and profit margins are low by historical standards — though this is for special reasons.

This belief by each side that its share of income is unreasonably low feeds the current "administrative" inflation, which has nothing in common with the classic inflation stemming from excess demand; it results, rather, from the market power of big business and big labor to increase prices and wages in private decisions or in collective bargaining.

Certainly there is a need to limit both inflationary wage gains and inflationary profit margin increases. But curbing profit margins, I believe, is the more important, and the harder to accomplish.

In this regard, the most notable aspect of Mr. Nixon's address was that it left unanswered the question of what the specific guidelines will be for limiting these increases. This may explain in good measure why the president's plan thus far has been generally well received: it does not tackle what are, economically and politically, the most difficult decisions — the ones on which the program will fundamentally succeed or fail, the ones that may seriously antagonize one side or the other.

These decisions are to be left to the members of the pay and price boards.

The guidelines they shape must be designed to resist not only the inflationary pressures which are generated as fiscal and monetary policies seek to restore full economic activity, but also to overcome the inflationary tendencies which the first Nixon game plan failed to check.

They also must strike a balance between simplicity and perfection, and in the immediate recovery period simplicity ought to dominate.

(A prominent economist during the New Deal, Means is the author of "Pricing Power and the Public Interest" and other works. He wrote this article for the Washington Post.)

'RESPONSIBILITY TESTED'

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — Herbert Stein, a member of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, reminded the Business Council here the other day that the business community in recent months had become one of the "most persistent and influential advocates" of some program to control wages and prices.

Very properly, Stein laid down the blunt warning that "we are entering an era in which the social responsibility of business will be severely tested."

It was a timely thing to say, and it was said to a proper forum, the 100 or so most prestigious and powerful corporate wheelers and dealers in the U.S. Lately, labor has been fingered as the bete noir, and the assumption has been that excessive wage increases are the single cause of all of our economic problems.

To take one example, R. Heath Larry, a vice president of United States Steel, indulged in excessive rhetoric in a speech to the Economic Club of Chicago, saying that "labor is now perilously close to overplaying its hand."

No group, Larry said, should be permitted "to become so powerful as to leave the rest of society powerless." But that applies as well to the holders of corporate power, including the steel industry, who so effectively over the years have arbitrarily set prices to achieve pre-determined profit margins. It seems to me that the steel industry is still as short on intelligent public relations as it is on efficient management.

Now, it certainly is true that President Nixon designed his pay-price-profits scheme so that labor leaders could find it acceptable. The principle concession — and one which is the source of much confusion about the future — is a tripartite pay board whose specific decision will not be subject to government veto.

But it should not be forgotten that if the whole program works, there will have to be pricing decisions that many businessmen will not like. As Walter W. Heller observed in his Minneapolis Bank Letter, the pay board and price commission must concentrate on the big unions and the big businesses, "which, left to their own devices, violate the laws of the marketplace."

Beyond Limits of Free Speech

THE PROVINCE

Free speech has traditionally been the basis of democracy — although as U.S. Justice Learned Hand once said, that doesn't give anybody the right to falsely cry "fire" in a crowded theatre. Some days, however, people must wonder if we aren't getting close to the line.

Take as dangerous examples Leandre Bergeron and Paul Fromm. They are dangerous because in a time of difficulties and tension they came out with cretinous nonsense that would lead to destruction of everything that keeps a society functioning — if not our society, any society.

M. Bergeron, who teaches literature at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, made occasional sense when he spoke to 500 students at University of B.C. The new Quebecer, he said, isn't going to be a second-rate citizen like his parents.

He went on: "Many have shown they aren't afraid to go to jail. We had a chap two weeks ago who was fired by the DuPont Company and went back and fired at them ... with a gun. This guy was really very rational."

This speaker was really very irrational. It was either sick humor or a sick mind. That man didn't fire at the DuPont company. He is accused of murdering three human beings. If that is a "very rational" way of handling problems, then 22 million Canadians should be locked up, and Mr. Bergeron left outside on his own.

Mr. Fromm is the president of the Social Credit Party of Ontario. When asked about the man, a Social Credit candidate, who attacked Premier Bourassa, he said: "That man has guts and that's the kind of man we need in the legislature today."

Guts, maybe. Brains, never, just like his party president. What's the next step? Who's best qualified to become a nation's prime minister — the man with the "guts" to assassinate the current one?

It's not enough to write off both men as candidates for leadership of the lunatic fringe. We must be careful we don't let violence grow to the point where their sick, sad preachings make enough converts to breed anarchy.

BALCONY RESTRICTION URGED

Its lands and buildings committee will recommend to council Monday that it consider amending its bylaws on apartments and restrict balconies from protruding more than three feet from a building's main walls.

The committee was split on the issue when it met Wednesday. Chairman Ald. Shirley Dowell and Ald. Norman Pimlott voted in favor of the restriction; Ald. Alan Hoey against.

WEAKNESS

Neither Hoey or Pimlott supported Mrs. Dowell's move to have council asked to make balconies part of the allowed site coverage and not extend into the allowed setbacks.

Mrs. Dowell said she intended to bring the matter up at Monday's council meeting.

Building inspector Bill Skead felt there was a weakness in the municipality's bylaw which stated setbacks were to begin from a building's foundation, not from its main walls. This, he pointed out, would reduce the amount of landscaping if a building's walls extended out from the foundations.

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White gave a preliminary report on requirements for retail zoning in the municipality.

He said that both the block near Windsor Park, bounded by Currie, Goodwin, Windsor and Newport, and the Foul Bay site now zoned for retail and three-storey construction would produce too high a density under current zoning.

He said, if developed to full capacity, both locations would draw too much traffic. He was asked to make further study and recommendations at a future meeting.

Master Garbage Plan Urged for District

Continued use of the landfill system of garbage disposal, but under the authority of the Capital Regional District, is indicated in a report on solid wastes received by the board Wednesday.

The report, by the Toronto consulting engineering firm of James F. MacLaren Limited, recommends a second stage study to develop "a master plan for solid waste management."

Garbage disposal now is handled privately at two commercial dumps, on Millstream Road and Hartland Road, both in the Highland district. The dumps receive garbage collected by public and private agencies in the region.

Total cost of completing the study work was estimated at not more than $35,000. It could be completed eight months after it starts.

The report makes clear that garbage collection should remain a responsibility of local municipalities and private contractors.

FEASIBLE

It said sanitary landfill — burying garbage — is one of the most widely used and accepted methods of disposal. "A preliminary investigation shows that suitable sites are available in the district, hence sanitary landfill must be considered as a feasible disposal method."

Other methods include:

● Central incineration, "a viable process for consideration" locally;

● Open dumps. Not acceptable because it is one of the least sanitary and most unsatisfactory disposal methods;

● Central grinding. May be feasible and should be investigated further;

● Pyrolysis, to reclaim many materials. Offers great potential for improvement in garbage disposal;

ABORTIVE

● Hydrogeneration, the process of re-arranging molecular structure of hydrocarbons to produce a different material. Much research and development necessary to prove its viability;

● High-density baling. All attempts to produce practicable construction product from the bales have been abortive;

● Salvage and recycling. Lack of markets for final product and high cost of reprocessing materials. But local markets should be investigated to evaluate potential of recycling.

The report said the "most important development" in garbage management is the concept of regional disposal, providing for substantial economics of scale including transfer haul, improved efficiency in disposal and the opportunity to consider alternatives not practicable in small-scale operations.

REFORMERS WORK TO END RACISM

MARCY, N.Y. (AP) — Two social reform leaders from Canada and the U.S. are working together on settling differences between races.

Dr. James Eagan, vice-president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and Frazier Earl, program director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, served as co-ordinators for a three-day international conference on racism and discrimination this week.

Earl said in an interview that in Canada the colleges and universities are taking the lead in improving race relations. "It's a more relaxing and trusted atmosphere when compared to government."

Eagan was not as kind. Asked if the U.S. government was doing enough in combatting racism, he said, "Absolutely not," but added, "I'm referring to over-all government policy, not to administrations."

He said the U.S. failure to adopt a genocide convention which would have eliminated means of mass extermination of people more than a decade ago was an example. "That resolution still has not passed in this country. It is a most humane act that should not have been opposed."

Planning Group Revival Urged

Oak Bay's zoning committee wants to see how other municipal planning commissions operate before recommending that Oak Bay appoint one.

This decision was made Wednesday after the committee considered a request from the Association of Women Electors of Greater Victoria that council reactivate an Oak Bay Advisory Planning Committee.

Oak Bay has had two such committees in the past.

Asked to explain how they operated, municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White said both had disbanded in some disillusion.

DISBANDED

"We had one formed in 1958 and disbanded in 1959. Eight of the nine recommendations that they made to council that year were turned down," he said.

"The second was formed basically to produce an Oak Bay plan. Council didn't refer anything to them. Tony Roberts and his regional district staff produced the plan."

White was referring to the 1967 plan which has never been formally adopted by council.

Ald. Alan Hoey said he would not be in favor of a committee but would consider the appointment of a commission.

"I could see a commission producing a land-use inventory, going from top to bottom of the municipality and coming up with recommendations at regular periods.

"As a taxpayer I'd scream blue murder if, in 10 years time, we were asked to spend $15,000 on another plan. I'm just afraid that some time in the future Oak Bay will spend a chunk of money to have a plan made — and we'll start all over again."

Organizing Know-How Lags In Canadian Politics

Lack of organizational expertise is "the biggest single problem" facing all political parties in Canada today, B.C. Liberal Association President Mel Couvelier said Wednesday night.

In this respect, Couvelier told Victoria Jaycees, Canadians lag far behind the Americans and the British.

"The many stories you hear about political machines and cigar-filled rooms are all poppycock. Any group of 10 dedicated professional organizers could take over any political party in Canada within three years."

Couvelier said the best-organized political party in Canada at present is the New Democratic Party, "and that is purely because of the activities of professional union organizers who are loaned to the riding organizations."

DISENCHANTED

Young people today are disenchanted with governments they consider undemocratic, impersonal and demeaning, Couvelier said.

"The crisis of public frustration widens. They are the frustrations of youth and the new consciousness culture to obtain meaningful channels for voicing their opinions.

"There is the frustration of an overburdening, unaccomplishing government bureaucracy and the frustration of individual effectiveness in changing the accepted pattern."

Pointing to problems posed south of the border by such mounting frustrations and pressures, Couvelier said Canada's problem will be to maintain the relativity of government to its people and to events.

He called for more direct involvement in politics by the younger generation, adding "we need your realistic approach. We need your logical minds. We need your organizational talents."

Before the Judge

A 19-year-old hitch-hiker who was in Victoria to look for a job was fined $250 Wednesday in court when he pleaded guilty ta possession of a restricted drug (MDA).

Brian J. Young, of no fixed address, was fined by Judge Edmond St. Jorre.

The accused court was told, had capsules of MDA in a pocket when he was searched with two other persons in the 1200-block Pandora Tuesday.

The accused told officers that he had bought the substance for $18 from someone outside The Bay on Douglas Street.

Young told St. Jorre that he had hitched to the city from Penticton to job hunt. He said he left the interior city after his job finished but now intended to return because there were no jobs in Victoria.

* * *

Gerald Brune, 32, of 588 Toronto, was sentenced to 21 days in jail by St. Jorre when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He was prohibited from driving in Canada for nine months.

Court was told that Brune had a previous impaired driving conviction in October 1968.

* * *

Ricky Bruce Falck, 18, of 6291 Rodolph Road, was fined a total of $550 by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for possession of marijuana and hashish.

Court was told the accused was found with both substances in a plastic bag when he was stopped by police driving a car in Oak Bay.

GRAND COUNSELLOR Ben Hakin of Vancouver will be in Victoria Saturday, Nov. 6, to pay an official visit to Victoria Council No. 434, Order of United Commercial Travellers of America. A dinner meeting will be held at 5 p.m. in the Old Forge of the Strathcona Hotel.

Hiker's Funeral

Funeral services were held today in McCall's Floral Chapel for Stewart Russell Thomson, 1650 Hampshire, widely known as dean of Canada's walkers, who died Sunday at the age of 79.

Thomson walked and hitchhiked throughout Canada and the United States while he was in his 60s. He always carried with him Vancouver Island publicity literature.

He participated in Miles for Millions and other charitable walkathons in Victoria and on the island.

He recently completed the 200-mile YMCA Centennial Walk, walking five miles a day for 40 days. He was also a keen gardener and a member of the Toastmasters.

Born in Markham, Ont., he moved to Victoria from London, Ont., 28 years ago. At the time of his death he was employed by the Dominion Hotel.

He served in the Canadian Forces overseas during the First World War.

He is survived by three brothers, Walter of Montreal, Ernie and Wallace of Toronto, and one sister, Florence of Toronto.

Keep Lakes Remote Says Chabot

Many wilderness lakes in B.C. should remain inaccessible by road, Labor Minister James Chabot told a tourism conference Wednesday.

Such remote tourist attractions would attract adventurous persons who don't want to travel everywhere by car, Chabot told a banquet at the 26th annual meeting of provincial and federal ministers responsible for tourism.

Chabot described provincial government programs to promote tourism, including the stocking of lakes with fish, beautification programs and game management policies.

The three-day conference, under the chairmanship of federal trade and commerce minister Jean-Luc Pepin, opened at the Empress Hotel Tuesday.

B.C. News Briefs

Ferry Fire

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A fire broke out Wednesday on the newly-purchased British Columbia government ferry Howe Sound Queen.

The ferry, bought recently in Quebec, was at Burrard Dry Docks for renovations before going into service between Horseshoe Bay and Bowen Island.

Ted Jones, shipyard manager, said there was smoke damage and about 60 lifejackets were destroyed, but the ferry's scheduled Nov. 5 sailing date would not be changed.

The fire, which took 90 minutes to put out, started when a spark from a welding torch ignited the lifejackets. There were no injuries.

* * *

Welfare Fraud

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Brian Boyle of Prince George pleaded guilty Wednesday to defrauding the provincial government of $228 in welfare payments. Sentence was adjourned in city court until Dec. 4 to allow Boyle to repay $100 to the provincial department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

Driver Charged

LANGLEY (CP) — Robert Newstead, 36, of Langley was charged Wednesday with criminal negligence in the death Tuesday of Jeffery Chowen, 10, killed when struck by a car while riding his bicycle home from a Langley school.

Newstead was also charged with having a blood-alcohol reading of more than 08 per cent. Bail was set at $2,000.

* * *

No Confidence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students at the University of British Columbia Wednesday voted no confidence in their student government by a margin of nearly two-to-one.

The figures were 4,020 in favor of a non-confidence motion and 2,704 against. It was one of the highest turnouts in a student vote in several years.

It was not certain what the vote of non-confidence in the so-called Human Government slate would result in. When the slate was elected last spring it promised to ask for a vote of confidence after six months in office.

* * *

Officer Convicted

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — RCMP Constable Orville Nickel, who was involved in a car accident last Dec. 26 that killed five persons, Wednesday was convicted in county court of speeding at the time on appeal by the B.C. attorney-general's department.

The charge was originally dismissed in Provincial Court at Haney, 40 miles east of Vancouver in the Fraser Valley, where the accident occurred.

Conviction carries no fine or jail sentence. Three demerit points are noted on his driver's licence. When a motorist accumulates 10 points, his licence may be suspended.

Action Wanted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Delegates to the B.C. and Yukon Indian Education Association conference Wednesday called for government action to give native people more help to overcome special problems they encounter in the school system.

Some 80 delegates agreed that Indian children have a high drop-out rate and extra problems in white schools because of their different language and background.

Buy now!

Get '72 Montegos while they're at '71 model prices.*

Today a new lifestyle. And now, a new car to match it. At yesterday's prices. The 1972 Montego.

This is the car that is causing so much excitement in the Mercury dealers' showrooms. The public reaction to it has been nothing short of fantastic.

A totally new car, Montego challenges all other mid-size cars and even the ride of larger cars.

To smooth out the road, we gave it a high stability suspension system — the same type design that's on our most expensive luxury cars. Smoothness that holds you through the curves and lets you make lane changes without excessive swerve.

There's a sporty 2-door Montego and a slightly larger 4-door model. It all adds up to make Montego one of the most maneuverable, easy-to-handle cars you've ever had your hands on.

Outside, a clean uncluttered sweep from the front grille to the smartly styled rear bumper with integral taillights. And ventless windows to give you a totally clear view.

Inside, luxury is the keynote. Contoured, deep foam padded seats that give you the feel and comfort of a much bigger car. And a sound insulation package that deadens noise, before it gets to you, is another feature that's standard on all Montegos.

As for value, we'll match it to any big car on the road.

Standard equipment includes a proven, economical 250-CID 6-cylinder engine. And front disc brakes, designed to stop you straight and fast.

And that's not all. A locking steering column, belted tires, reversible key and keyless locking system, left-hand side view mirror and a stylish two spoke steering wheel are all standard.

In addition, for your protection, each Montego comes equipped with the full complement of Ford Motor Company Safety Design Features. Like the dual hydraulic brake system with warning light, energy absorbing steering column and steel guard rails in every door.

For even more luxury, Montego has an impressive list of options. Personal comforts like air conditioning, electric rear window defroster, AM-FM Multiplex radio, power side windows and 6-way, power bench seats to name a few.

Montego in nine exciting models, including station wagons. This is the car that challenges all other mid-size cars. Test drive the totally new Montego today, and find out how it can fit your lifestyle.

Board Eyes Mill Hike for Parks

The Capital Regional District Board decided Thursday night to study a proposal to double its half-mill levy for the acquisition of parkland.

Referral of the question to the parks committee followed a letter from the Victoria Canoe Club which called for an increase in the levy.

"With recent tax cuts, this may seem unpalatable, but with inflation and rampant land speculation the cost of delaying the (park buying) program is very high."

Earl Pallister, Langford director, proposed the one-mill levy with high priority in expenditure going to the Thetis Lake watershed.

Ald. Clyde Savage, Victoria director, earlier stated that Victoria will definitely keep up negotiations with the region in regard to the takeover of Thetis Lake park granted "the regional board comes up with something more suitable."

Savage also voiced doubt that Victoria residents would want to pay any more for park purchases than they do now.

Region planner Tony Roberts said there were no park funds in reserve at the moment and explained that the half-mill levy represented, along with provincial contributions, $315,000.

Too Little Known About Marijuana

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — the best-qualified array of scientific experts on cannabis ever assembled concluded today that too little is known about marijuana's long-term effects to classify it as comparatively harmless to society.

More than 100 international experts on the "soft" drug took part in a three-day symposium sponsored by Sweden's Royal Pharmaceutical Society to assess research progress on the subject.

Experienced delegates said it was the most comprehensive and qualified scientific gathering of its kind to date.

Dr. Leon Hollister of the United States told a news conference that marijuana is non-addictive and when it is used in moderation, there is no evidence it leads to use of dangerous drugs such as heroin or amphetamines.

"But pot-heads, daily users, may go on to heroin. Statistics show that 10 per cent of potheads have tried heroin, although by no means all then become addicted to that drug."

Another American scientist, Dr. Norman E. Zingbert of Harvard University, said: "Drug progression is nonsense—what we have at the moment is a mainly social issue."

Outer Island Zoning Goes to Hearing

The seventh draft of a zoning bylaw for the Outer Gulf Islands — the result of a year-long series of meetings — was approved for public hearing by the Capital Regional District Board at its meeting Wednesday night.

Except for Saturna Island, all the residents of the islands had approved the bylaw, regional planner Tony Roberts told the board.

The bylaw, which is the outcome of a 10-acre freeze imposed by the provincial government, will serve as a holding bylaw specifying existing uses of Gulf Island land in anticipation of a subdivision plan for the future.

Mrs. J. M. Campbell, Saturna Island representative on the Advisory Planning Commission, said that residents wanted a bylaw that would take more into account the local flavor and conditions of the island, which Roberts said was partly accommodated in the last draft.

John Rainsford of Mayne Island, Dr. H. G. Searrow of Galiano and Ralph Sketch of Pender all reported that their communities were fully behind the bylaw.

Doctors List Slate

Dr. G. G. Lott has been re-elected president of the Victoria Medical Society.

Directors are Dr. Murray Morrison, Dr. G. E. Rasmussen, Dr. N. L. Bailey, Dr. K. I. G. Benson and Dr. B. C. Boulton.

'Machines To Replace Men'

GENEVA (AP) — Machines may replace skilled men in the printing and publishing industries within the next 10 years, an international printing conference was told.

The forecast, in a study prepared by the Batelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, said "the need for many skilled, production-line craftsman will be supplemented by mechanized manufacturing controlled or monitored by an operator."

The study warned trade unions that "either they will cooperate in using the system for reasonable cost-savings in graphic arts situations, or companies will sidestep union restriction.

ELECTRIC HEATING
more living space

Homes are for living. Take this home for example. From basement to attic every bit of space is being used for living. That's because it's heated electrically. Compact units take up little or no space. There are no ducts or pipes, no furnace room. Every inch of space is being used . . . and that's important, with today's construction costs.

Most important, every room is comfortable — just the way each individual wants it. That's not always possible with other heating systems because one thermostat must satisfy the demands of all rooms. With electric heating you can have room-by-room temperature control — a thermostat in every room.

More living space. More comfort. Makes a lot of sense, doesn't it? You'll find that the cost of heating electrically is sensible too.

Give us a call. Our Customer Advisory Service will be happy to discuss your new home plans. Qualified personnel will recommend equipment sizes, amount of insulation required, and give you a written estimate of annual electricity costs for heating. Customer Advisory Service is free — available at all B.C. Hydro offices.

Troubles Are Over—Kaiser

VANCOUVER (CP) — After a massive injection of capital, Kaiser Resources Ltd. says it feels it is close to having an efficient system for mining, handling and loading coal bound for Japan from its East Kootenay operations in southeastern British Columbia.

The company has invested additional funds totalling about $175 million and has made numerous changes to overcome problems which have plagued its coal operations at Sparwood.

Officials have expressed cautious optimism in their outlook, but are confident the additional investment will start to show a profit.

But there's another hurdle. A coal washing and drying plant must be closed for 10 days to two weeks in November for renovations.

Because of this, Kaiser expects only to break even in the fourth quarter following a third quarter that showed a profit of more than $37,000. It was the first profitable period since the firm started the operation at Sparwood. There was a $13.1 million loss in the first half of 1971, following a $4.2 million loss last year.

Kaiser has had serious problems with many facets of the coal operation. There was trouble with open-pit mining equipment, with the preparation plant, with the loading of rail cars, with labor and with housing for employees.

Kaiser is receiving $18.65 in Canadian funds per long ton for its coal, compared with $12.85 in U.S. funds at the time its contract was signed with Japanese interests.

NEW MANAGEMENT

A temporary increase in the price, made to allow for the freeing of the Canadian dollar, and a special cost allowance have helped. And Kaiser officials now are assembling information for meetings next spring with Japanese executives to discuss a permanent price.

Harry M. Conger, vice-president and general manager, said the Japanese "see what Kaiser is going through to make the operation work. "If they had wanted to dump us they would have done it last year at the height of all our troubles," he said.

To overcome earlier problems Kaiser has put in new management, arranged to borrow $35 million from the Japanese trading firm of Mitsubishi to finance overhaul of the Sparwood operation, and switched emphasis for its mining operation to trucks and shovels and away from the dragline method.

Kaiser is also improving rail loading facilities to speed handling, and has invested or committed $7.4 million for housing and property development.

The company has put money into first and second mortgages for houses and has made donations for community recreation and the building of apartments, a single men's unit and a shopping centre.

These moves have helped to cut down the labor turnover from a high of about 15 per cent a month last year to the present 3 to 4 per cent.

Kaiser now has about 1,300 employees and a payroll of more than $1 million a month.

Mortgage Rates Following Trend

TORONTO (CP) — Interest rates continued to edge lower Wednesday, and individuals will soon notice the effects as savings account interest and mortgage rates are cut.

The trend towards lower rates started with reductions in chartered banks' prime lending rates — the rate for low-risk corporate borrowers.

All the chartered banks lined up with a 6 per cent prime rate, effective Monday. The latest cut, one-quarter of a percentage point, follows by one week a reduction to 6¼ from 6½ per cent in the prime rate.

The prime rate is a key to the rest of the interest-rate structure and the first reaction outside the banks came Wednesday from two trust companies.

Canada Trust of London, Ont., reduced its prime rate for residential mortgages to 9¼ per cent from 9½ and Royal Trust of Montreal cut its rate to 9½ from 9¾.

Most chartered banks reduced the interest rate on non-chequable savings accounts to 4 per cent from 4½ and the rate for chequable savings accounts to 2¾ from 3 per cent, both changes effective Monday.

The cut in rates was the latest in a series that began early in 1970.

At the start of last year, the chartered banks' prime rate was 8½ per cent and the central bank rate — the rate the Bank of Canada charges for loans to chartered banks — was 8 per cent.

The central bank does not make frequent loans to chartered banks but changes in its rate are prime indicators of government fiscal and monetary intentions.

The Bank of Canada reduced its rate to 4¾ per cent from 5¼ Friday. The central bank's move came after announcements by the chartered banks that they would cut prime rates to 6¼ per cent effective last Monday.

The prime and central bank rates are usually within one percentage point of each other and the latest Bank of Canada move was seen as a go-ahead to easier credit conditions.

There were no announcements from the chartered banks on personal loans and mortgage rates in conjunction with the changes in deposit rates.

The prime rate for National Housing Act guaranteed loans charged by the Bank of Nova Scotia is 8 per cent. Toronto Dominion Bank, Royal Bank of Canada and Bank of Montreal all have a 9 per cent prime NHA rate and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce has a prime NHA rate of 9¼ per cent.

Canada Trust announced in conjunction with its mortgage-rate cut that it would reduce its rate on non-chequable savings accounts to 4½ per cent from 5 and the rate for chequing savings would go to 3¾ from 3½ per cent, both effective Monday.

20,000 Say No

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial civil servants' union rejected Wednesday the offer of a 16-per-cent salary increase over three years for 20,000 of Quebec's 250,000 civil servants.

Jean-Paul Breuleux, president of the Syndicat des fonctionnaires provinciaux du Quebec, described as "unacceptable" the offer made Tuesday in the legislature by Jean-Paul-L'Allier, civil-service minister.

Present average salary of the workers affected is about $5,600 for 32½-hour work week.

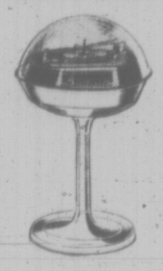
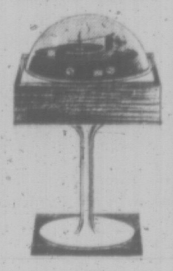
This is stereo.
So is this.


And this.


Electrohome creates stereo. Not clichés.
Look directly above, for example. We call it the "Tempo." Ever see a long, low walnut stereo cabinet suspended on a fabric and soft-white pedestal anywhere else? (The pedestal, by the way, serves as an efficient bass speaker enclosure—but more of that in a moment.)
On the far left is the Electrohome 711 stereo. We don't take the word "revolutionary" lightly. But the 711 is just that.
And beside the 711 is the new "Graphic" stereo. It's everything the 711 is, but with a warm wood-grain side to its personality.
Now, sceptics may say style isn't everything in a stereo. And they're right.
Performance counts too. So while Electrohome designers have been free-thinking their way to these great stereo designs, Electrohome engineers have matched them with great performance.
Each of these models features AM/FM stereo radio and solid-state 40-watt stereo chassis. Precise automatic changers get the most from recordings. Individual spherical speakers in the 711 and "Graphic" models provide wide separation and remarkable sound quality. The "Tempo" offers a speaker in each wing for separation, and a large woofer in the pedestal for non-directional bass tones. To really live it up, ask your dealer about optional tape decks, exclusive Satellite Sound, or amazing Electrohome Environment I.
Either way, we think these stereo models are worth a trip to your Electrohome dealer.

N.Y. Policeman Rode Shotgun To Protect Narcotic Pedlars

NEW YORK (WP) — A commission investigating corruption within New York City's police department Wednesday heard testimony about "devastating" corruption involving the city's narcotics agents.

While it was doing so, more than 500 policemen in New York and the surrounding area busily raided what they said were narcotics suppliers. Included in 192 arrests was a New York City policeman accused of being the guardian angel of a 75-million-dollar-a-year narcotics operation.

The head of the city's narcotics division, Jules Sachson, personally joined in the raid during which officers levelled the door of an apartment in which the policeman was seized.

RODE SHOTGUN

A prosecutor said that the policeman, five-year-veteran Raymond Ellington, had ridden shotgun for the operation, following the sellers in his own car to protect them from holdups and possible interference from other policemen.

In the raid, police said they seized 4½ pounds of uncut heroin and cocaine, some marijuana and paraphernalia for diluting the heroin and packaging it for street sale.

The raids were part of a metropolitan effort against narcotics underwritten by a $114,000 grant from the law enforcement assistance administration of the justice department.

Policemen from 22 counties in the New York area participated. Among those arrested were 19 persons in New York City, 121 in New York State, 37 in New Jersey and 15 in nearby Connecticut. Most were charged with selling heroin.

THREE GUARDS

Those arrested included three guards at a New York State prison authorities said they were not selling to inmates), a schoolteacher in Westchester County (he was not selling to his students, police said), a lawyer and a Nassau county man identified as a publisher, who was charged with possession with intent to sell 3,400 capsules of seconol.)

At the N.Y. corruption hearing, meanwhile, Paul Curran recited 17 ways in which police were involved with corruption. He is chairman of the state investigation commission, which spent a year investigating narcotics law enforcement in the city.

Among the involvements, he said, were policemen accepting bribes, extorting money and narcotics for ignoring violations, supplying heroin for sale, selling heroin themselves, purchasing heroin from organized crime figures, retaining heroin or money found in raids and searches, protecting narcotics operators, tipping off violators to impending raids, framing suspects to meet arrest quotas, interceding with fellow officers in behalf of suspects, trying to bribe prosecutors lying in court or intentionally filing weak affidavits to get suspects off.

PLAYED TAPES

"Because of the corruption of some," Curran said, "the public was not about to cooperate with any police officer."

Prior to his testimony, a former FBI agent who has been working for the corruption commission told how the commission had witnessed corruption among narcotics officers recently in Harlem.

The agent, Ralph Cipriano played tapes of dealings between narcotics officers and two addicts who sold goods to the officers in exchange for heroin.

The addicts, Cipriano said, had become operatives for the commission and wore microphones and transmitters while they dealt with the policemen.

Some of the exchanges also were filmed. The names of the addicts were supplied by one-time narcotics policeman Waverly Logan, who Tuesday told the commission of his corrupt activities in Harlem.

PLACED ORDER

The policemen placed orders for such things as cartons of cigarettes, minibikes, liquor, a power saw and auto tape players.

Cipriano said one officer wrote out his order for liquor for a shower for his daughter, including "4 Beefeaters, 2 Harvey's Bristol Cream, 2 Jack Daniels, 2 Canadian Club, 2 Smirnoff 100 proof."

The payment was in heroin.

In one instance, a policeman gave the addicts what he insisted was high quality heroin in payment for liquor and a tape player. A test of the powder later proved it to be antihistamine, Cipriano said.

Coach Eagle Keys of the B.C. Lions was saying that if anything at all was accomplished this season, it was "I got to see a lot of football players."

If that was before the Lions were hung up to dry for yet another year at the weekend, it still held true, for as Keys said explained:

"If we hadn't had so many injuries, I wouldn't have seen that many players, and now perhaps we can look forward hopefully to next season."

He was suggesting that the club's misfortune may be a blessing in disguise. "We got to see what a lot of fellows could do," he said in Vancouver last week, "and we'll keep that in mind for next year."

Meanwhile, if the Lions had turned belly up, the thinking wasn't always that the season would end in complete disaster.

Just over three weeks ago, the Lions came up with a beaut, whipping the stuffing out of Montreal Alouettes, 28-0. And at that time there were those who felt that a playoff berth might be the stepping stone to greatness. And even before that, they had beaten mighty Toronto. But, alas!

"Yes, if you had asked me before our eastern trip, and after the Montreal game, I would have said 'yes, I'm pleased'," Keys explained.

"But then we got hit by all those injuries, and had to make some adjustments."

Adjustments! Keys was playing it low key, and you'll pardon the pun. The club lost something like 14 regulars during a one-month period, and if they got it laid on them, but good, in Regina, Sunday, so what! They weren't going to put up much of an argument, although they did come out fighting.

Now it's a look ahead to next season, with GM Jackie Parker away on scouting trips, and Keys to follow as soon as Saturday's contest with Calgary is over.

Actually, it's probably a good thing that the Lions are out. They weren't going to surprise anybody in their present anaemic state. Meanwhile, Winnipeg might, so why not allow them that right. And with Calgary and Saskatchewan still trying to decide first place, in the west the Bombers who will be well rested could have a shot at an upset in the playoffs, and won't need any excuses if they happen to lose. They'll make a better match-up by far than the Lions.

Historically, the Lions' tumble into fourth place isn't anything to get excited about. Who knows? They might even finish last. And even that won't bother the Eagle too much. Not now. Because at the start of the year, it was considered an experimental session only. Honest. Keys said, among other things, that he would look at a lot of football players. Parker added that six or seven quarterbacks would show up at training camp.

●

It would be the biggest camp ever in Lion history. It was. Out of it might come a new hero. Maybe two. Larry Highbaugh just might qualify in that category, although he was late starter. Larry James was even later. Jim Evenson already belonged. So did Jim Young. They would be expected to provide the heroics. For a while, they did. Up front, there were too many people to recount. At the last official club census, the Lions had filed something like 115 names with the equipment manager. That's how many got a uniform. And perhaps this doesn't include some who came here for a visit, or what in the trade is referred to as a five-day trial.

Many have also been given a retainer with the note: "come back and see us next summer." That's the usual ploy. Besides, the Lions finally had about nine quarterbacks in for dinner. Only two stayed.

So if the Lions did go through a few people, in retrospect, it's just as Keys said:

"I'm going to look at a lot of football players."

He did. And that's the story of this season, and how the Lions started getting ready for '72.

GARY DONALDSON
... good performance

CALGARY — Victoria Cougars drew full marks from coach Fred Hucul for their effort and style despite a 4-2 loss to Calgary Centennials in their Western Canada Hockey League meeting here Wednesday.

"It was a strong effort," said Hucul. "They gave me exactly the kind of game you have to play on the road ... checking and skating. They hounded Calgary very well, and, with a break, could have won it.

"On the road, you don't play to impress the fans. The home team does that. The visitors just skate, check and lay back to wait for mistakes.

"I thought it was a good effort on our part, but we didn't get the breaks. It was 2-2 going into the third period, and might have been 3-2 for us. Gary Donaldson had a great chance to give us a go-ahead goal, but was stopped."

As it was, Donaldson figured in both Victoria goals, scored by linemates Ervie Miller and Gary Howatt within a 26-second span midway in the second period.

After a scoreless first period, defenceman Jim McMasters opened scoring for Calgary but the Howatt-Miller burst gave Cougars a 2-1 lead.

Defensive mistakes enabled Calgary to come from behind. Doug Horbul scored Cents' tying goal after poking the puck loose from defenceman Murray Kennett of Victoria and beating goalie Dave Maynard on a solo effort.

Rookie Mike Rogers added the insurance goal less than four minutes later.

Maynard again gave Cougars a strong goaltending display, and had no chance on the four goals eluding him. He made 21 stops while rival John Davidson stopped only 14 drives.

The line of Donaldson, Miller and Howatt was easily Victoria's best on attack.

Hucul was forced to juggle his lineup when winger Greg Robinson was hit above the eye by the puck. Rookie Denny McLean moved from defence to take over Robinson's wing position on a line with Tim Struch and Ron Winkler.

With his eye black and closed today, Robinson is not expected to play tonight when the Cougars wrap up their three-game Alberta swing by facing the Tigers in Medicine Hat.

There were only 10 minor penalties called in Wednesday's game, six to the Cougars. McMasters' goal was the only power-play effort.

UPSET LIST GROWS

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — John Newcombe and Rod Laver scored victories but a third-seeded Australian was eliminated, Wednesday, in the $50,000 Embassy tennis tournament.

Roy Emerson, seeded No. 3, became the fifth seeded player to be upset when he lost to Ilie Natase, the flashy Romanian, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

The top-seeded Newcombe, Wimbledon titleholder, advanced to the quarter-finals with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Jeff Borowiak of Berkeley, Calif. While Laver, seeded No. 6, won over Georges Goven of Frande, 5-7, 8-6, 6-3.

Laver, the game's biggest money winner, had his problems. Goven, taking advantage of the lefthander's errors, was serving for the match at 5-4 in the second set but became nervous and served two double-faults.

Seals Not Short-Changed By Sam's Latest Dealing

By The Canadian Press

Sammy Pollock has been called many things around the San Francisco Bay area, not the least of which would be the great assassin of California's Golden Seals.

Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, did little to endear himself to Californians during the early years of National Hockey League expansion.

There were a number of ex-Canadiens in the Seals' lineup at one time, but they came dear. In exchange for the expendable Montrealers, Pollock extracted so many of the west coast club's future top draft choices it was questionable the Californians would survive.

But these deals haven't all been damaging. Former Montrealer Carol Vadnais, California's captain, is one of the league's outstanding defencemen.

Two of the more recent Canadien rejects have played key roles in California's recent resurgence.

Bobby Sheehan snapped in two goals Wednesday night and Lyle Carter backstopped the Seals to a surprising 6-4 win over Pittsburgh Penguins.

Sheehan moved over to California in the off-season and Carter arrived more recently as owner Charles Finley made every effort to bolster his anaemic goaltending.

Wilson's Shutout Canucks' First

In other games, Bernie Parent of Toronto Maple Leafs and Dune Wilson of Vancouver Canucks exchanged shutouts in a 0-0 tie, New York Rangers dropped Detroit Red Wings 7-4, Montreal topped Boston Bruins 5-2, Minnesota North Stars tripped St. Louis Blues 2-1 and in Los Angeles, the Kings were stopped 3-2 by Buffalo Sabres.

The shutout by Wilson was the first by a Canuck goaltender since expansion brought Vancouver into the big league.

Sheehan, from Weymouth, Mass., now has scored seven goals in nine games. He scored just six in 29 starts with the Canadiens last year.

He was the outsider in Montreal's pro system and played for some years in the International League where he was voted the outstanding performer last season.

At Toronto, the goaltenders held the spotlight although they were saved on occasion by erratic shooting and the goal posts.

The Leafs, however, carried much of the play and tested Wilson from close-in several times, only to have the Canuck goalie make the big stop.

Bobby Rousseau scored twice for the hometown Rangers, as did Rod Gilbert whose line, of Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield, picked up nine scoring points. Rousseau, with four goals this season, equalled his entire 1970-71 output with Minnesota.

Montreal Canadiens got two goals from defenceman Guy Lapointe and had little trouble against the Bruins, who they eliminated from the playoffs last year en route to the Stanley Cup.

INVADERS LABOR, HORNETS BREEZE

Saanich Hornets and Oak Bay Invaders will meet Sunday in a sudden-death playoff for the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League title after taking different routes to semi-final victories Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park.

League-champion Hornets were breezing as they crushed Cowichan Chiefs 26-7 but Invaders had to work all the way before nipping Saanich Chargers 21-20 in the other semi-final.

Kerry Lacroix and Ed Chiu scored two touchdowns each for Hornets while Dave Sarsiat kicked two converts.

Quarterback Christy Sinclare scored 19 points for Invaders with three touchdowns and a convert. The other Oak Bay points came from a safety touch.

Viking Coach Offers Bonus

University of Victoria Vikings basketball coach Gary Taylor has a "bonus" in store for players, coaches, parents and anybody else planning to take in an intra-squad game Friday at the Uvic gymnasium.

Beginning at 8 p.m., Taylor plans to run his charges through a "half-hour" drill prior to "running the clock through two 20-minute sessions" for the game.

"We have some good drills that can be used at elementary, junior high and high school levels," said Taylor.

Meanwhile, Taylor will be keeping a sharp eye on individual performances in order to cut one of the 11 players currently trying out for Vikings.

BUILDING PLANS

Tommy Holmes, Gordy Hishal, Tom Child, Fergy Andison and Brent Mullin have all had at least one year experience with the senior varsity squad and might seem like "shoo-ins," but as Taylor commented, this season "the emphasis is on youth and building at the university."

Promising newcomers seeking a berth on the team are Barry Moen and Jim Hunter, who starred for the junior varsity Jayvees last season; Mike Bishop, making a stab at senior ball for the first time; and Dave Wallace, who has returned to Uvic after taking some time out.

TWO FRESHMEN

The only freshmen trying for the team this season are Harry Hunter, a Reynolds High School grad who has impressed Taylor, and Doug Walton, who helped Oak Bay High to the Vancouver Island title last season and a fourth-place finish in the B.C. championships. Walton was also chosen to the first all-star team at the provincial tournament.

Vikings open their Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association season with two appearances against University of Calgary Dinosaurs, Nov. 12 and 13, at Uvic.

Senior Rinks Begin Battle

Ten of the 14 rinks vying for the right to represent zone one in the B.C. senior men's curling bonspiel at Trail, Dec. 9-12, started play in the south Vancouver Island playdowns on Wednesday.

OBSCURE AUSSIE PRO TIED WITH NICKLAUS

HOBART, Australia (AP) — An unheralded 21-year-old assistant professional from Perth, West Australia, shared the first-round lead with Jack Nicklaus of the United States today in the Australian open golf championship.

Graham Johnson, on his first year on the pro circuit, and Nicklaus each carded a four-under par 68 over the Royal Hobart course.

Dave Hill of the U.S. shot a 69 and was tied with Garry Coxon of Australia, a shot off the pace. Dave Stockton, also of the U.S. was tied at 70 with Bill Dunk and Bruce Devlin of Australia and Gary Player and Harold Henning of South Africa.

Vics, Reynolds Share Top Spot

Defending champion Victoria wound up sharing the Senior Girls' High School Volleyball League title with Reynolds when each club ended the regular season Wednesday with four victories.

Victoria tripped St. Ann's academy 15-3, 15-2 and defeated last Esquimalt, 15-6, 15-9. Playing at Mount View, Reynolds downed the last squad 15-4, 15-3 and tumbled Mt. Douglas, 15-3, 15-12.

In other league encounters, Esquimalt defeated St. Ann's 15-7, 15-9; Belmont beat Oak Bay 15-6 after a 17-15 loss; Claremont hammered Oak Bay 15-2, 15-3 and split with Belmont, winning 15-5 and then losing, 15-13.

The league's top eight teams advance to the Lower Island tournament next Wednesday at Mount View. The top three teams from that tourney earn berths in the Island championships Nov. 12 and 13 at Lake Cowichan.

Juniors Step To Top Berth

Junior Men's won all four games in the opening night of the Victoria Volleyball Association junior men's league Tuesday at Royal Roads Military College.

Juniors took over the league lead with victories over Royal Roads (15-2, 15-11) and YMCA "B" (17-15, 16-14).

Fergy Thinks He'll Make It

He'll be a year late achieving the goal he set out to accomplish last spring, but Ferguson Jenkins doesn't think he'll have too many problems negotiating a $100,000-a-year deal with Chicago Cubs for next season.

Just returned from a hunting trip, Jenkins said Wednesday his lawyers "will be negotiating with Mr. (John) Holland in a couple of months."

"I don't think there will be any difficulty. There shouldn't be."

PERSONAL HIGH

Jenkins, 28, chosen the righthanded pitcher on The Associated Press' major league all-star team last week, reached a personal high 24-13 won-loss record, with the National League Cubs this season.

It was his fifth consecutive 20-game season and Jenkins is on record as saying he wants to become the Cubs' first $100,000 pitcher.

He was late getting to training camp last year and was believed to have been seeking $100,000 at that time before settling for about $76,000.

"I had a pretty good season. But when I look back on it, I guess I'm thinking like a lot of other guys . . . it could have been better."

Ski Federation Boss Proposes New Event

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — Marc Hodler, president of the International Ski Federation, says the federation will organize separate world ski championships next March if some skiers are barred from the Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan.

Hodler said such championships would not compete with the Sapporo Games. Those who were recognized as true amateurs by the International Olympic Committee would compete at Sapporo. The others would have the opportunity of joining in the federation's world championships in March.

Hodler was commenting on a letter to the ski federation from Avery Brundage, 83-year-old IOC president, renewing criticism of skiers for the use of their names and photographs for advertising, and warning of the necessity to observe strictly the rules on amateurism for the Olympics.

OUTDOOR SCENE

"Duckological," the bi-weekly report from Ducks Unlimited, reports that waterfowl migration in B.C. to date has been leisurely. On the coastal flyway, there has been the usual major flights of pintail ducks throughout September into and through the tidal marshes on their way to southern wintering grounds. The tempo of the pintail migration increased after Sept. 20 along with small but steady flights of sea ducks moving into the Gulf Islands region.

The late Thanksgiving weekend opening for waterfowl on Vancouver Island effectively eliminates any real harvest of pintails by coastal gunners as these ducks are well south of the border by this time. This has been an annual criticism of the season opener by waterfowl hunters and brings one to question the "blanket" ducks opening slated every year at this time.

Surely the Canadian Wildlife Service could allow a specific opening for the middle of September for pintails only to allow Island waterfowlers the opportunity at this early migrating species.

Concern by organized sportsmen in B.C. for the actions of irresponsible shooters led in 1963 to the establishment of the B.C. Wildlife Federation's Rewards Fund. Since that time, six substantial cash rewards have been paid out to hunters for their efforts in the conviction of wildlife violators.

Last December, three Comox men — Al Joynson, Douglas Bell, and Gerald Burtt — were rewarded for their efforts in the conviction of a Vancouver resident for the shooting of a Trumpeter swan near Campbell River. Found guilty by Judge Roderick Haig-Brown, the irresponsible shooter was fined $250 and his hunting privileges were cancelled for five years.

The Fund's original purpose was to encourge the public to report incidents of wanton destruction of wildlife or wildlife habitat. It was later extended to apply also to incidents of vandalism, and to destruction of private property in areas where access has been granted to the recreational public.

The Rewards Fund is intended to help weed out vandals and the irresponsible amongst the outdoor public. The irresponsible make life difficult for law-abiding hunters, anglers, and other outdoor recreationalists.

For information on the Rewards Fund, contact the B.C. Wildlife Federation at 3020 Sumner Ave., Burnaby 2, B.C.

A bulletin titled, "Guidelines for Stream Protection in Logging Operations," published by the Oregon Game Commission, points out that forestry and fishery management need not conflict if both resources are considered in the initial planning of watershed development.

The bulletin emphasizes the extremely vital importance of small creeks and streams since the spawning gravel for an entire watershed often occurs in a few restricted areas in these small headwater tributaries.

The sockeye runs on the Fraser River are cited as one example where a $50 million commercial catch is dependent upon only 300 acres of spawning gravel in one tributary stream. Each acre of gravel in this stream is capable of producing salmon valued at more than $160,000.

The booklet written by fisheries scientist R.A. Lantz, promotes four main points to protect fish habitat and water quality in logging operations. These are: stream clearance requirements and enforcement; harmful effects of falling trees into or across streams; the detrimental effects of yarding through streams; and the protection of stream-side vegetation in all logging operations where fish, wildlife, and water quality are involved or can be affected in downstream areas.

★ ★ ★

The latter point, "protection of stream-side vegetation," is rarely practiced by logging companies on our Vancouver Island streams and is probably the major reason for the deterioration of Island streams as fish producers.

This "greenstrip" concept is simple and extremely effective for fish and wildlife habitat protection. Yet, it defies reason why logging companies on Vancouver Island refuse to acknowledge and practice this highly protective practice for the benefit of other equally important watershed users!

Cubs Hold On To Trip Uvic; Boxers Rally

Paper thin and down to the wire. That's how the Vancouver Island Hockey League action went Wednesday at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The aggregate difference from two games was only one goal, and that was enough to push the Keith Lawrence-coached Junior Cubs into sole possession of first place in the six-team league.

Cubs, holding off a late University of Victoria threat, edged the Norsemen 4-3 while CFB Esquimalt Buccaneers and London Boxing Club skated to a 4-4 draw.

The results moved Cubs two points ahead of the Bucs and Norsemen, who pumped in two goals in the last three minutes of play but couldn't avoid a loss that ended Uvic's three-game win streak.

Redskin Vacancy Filled by McNeil

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Giants traded wide receiver Clifton McNeil to Washington Redskins for three "medium" National Football League draft choices.

The Redskins acquired the eight-year veteran to help fill the spot vacated by Charley Taylor, who suffered a broken ankle last Sunday in their 27-20 loss at Kansas City and will be out six to eight weeks.

Mt. Doug Humbled By Claremont Side

Mt. Douglas Mountainmen stood alone atop the Victoria Senior High Schools Rugby League pinnacle before the match Wednesday against defending-champion Claremont Spartans.

Now Mountainmen share the lead with three other schools, including Claremont, which crushed the hapless Mt. Doug squad, 56-3.

In other games, Victoria Titans defeated Reynolds 18-4 and Oak Bay scuttled Mount View, 16-3.

Titans, Oak Bay and Mountainmen are now tied for first place with Claremeont, which holds a game in hand over the other clubs.

Standoff-half Tim Lott and left-winger Gordie Conrad accounted for 36 of Claremont's points.

Lott, the squad's kicker, scored two trys and booted six conversions for a total of 20 points while Conrad utilized some speedy running to score four trys.

Rob Hutchison averted a shutout for Mt. Doug by booting a penalty goal.

Joe Stephanson again scored all the points for Titans. The versatile standoff-half scored two trys, converted both of them and booted a penalty goal. Dave Gordon replied by kicking a penalty goal for Reynolds.

Maurice Wiart, Chris Daniels and David Reid scored the trys for Oak Bay, which applied pressure later in the game to expand a 4-3 half-time lead. Ian Bruce supplied two conversions.

Jim Humphreys kicked a penalty goal for Mount View.

Your'e leaning toward a compact this time but you need power for expressways...

Plymouth's got the answer:

Driving's not what it used to be...

Traffic is a lot heavier today than a dozen years ago when the compact car was introduced. Merging with fast-moving expressway traffic takes power, not to mention nerve. But power was never really part of the compact idea. At least not until Plymouth came up with Valiant Duster—the compact that can pack plenty of punch.

Duster is the one compact that lets you pick your power to match the kind of roads and traffic you have to face. The standard Six is the 198 CID. If you need a little more, but want to stick with a Six for economy, you can get the big 225 cubic inch CID Six.

Duster also gives you a choice of V8's. The standard one is the 318 CID. And the top choice is the 340 CID.

But it's more than just an engine option. It's a special model all by itself called—appropriately enough—Duster 340, and it includes special trim, heavy-duty suspension and floor-mounted shift.

The concept works better than ever

The compact car idea is more important today than it ever was. Perhaps that's why Duster and its running mates—the Valiant 4-door sedan and Valiant Scamp, a 2-door hardtop, are the top-selling compacts in Canada.

They'll seat 5 adults, carry their luggage and do it all economically. And most important of all, they fit into today's crowded streets and parking spaces.

Compacts made to order—at the right place

Before you make any decisions about a compact car, head for your local Plymouth dealer and check out all the Plymouth compacts: Valiant, Scamp, Duster and the new lower-priced Scamp special. Then sit down with a sales representative and figure out exactly what you need on your car in the way of optional or special equipment. He can tailor the car to your exact requirements. It's like having a car customer-made.

Builder of Orioles Switches to Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — California Angels hired Harry Dalton away from Baltimore Orioles Wednesday, starting a rebuilding program which must include a new field manager and coaching staff.

The American League baseball club, beset by problems which ruined its high hopes for 1971, signed the 44-year-old Dalton to a five-year contract believed in the neighborhood of $60,000 a year.

He carries the title of vice president and general manager with full powers to reshuffle, hopefully in the same manner which brought the Orioles four pennants and two world championships.

Dalton spent 18 years in the Oriole organization, the last six as player personnel director. Seeking to keep the man who was named baseball executive of the year in 1970, Baltimore had offered increased responsibilities and salary.

After deciding to switch, Dalton said: "I am very enthusiastic about the potential of the Angels and of the area. I sincerely believe that we have a chance to make this one of the strongest franchises in the major leagues."

His first big job will be to find a field manager to replace Harold 'Lefty' Phillips, fired after the last season, just before Dick Walsh was dismissed as the general manager and vice-president.

Snooker Loss For Thorburn

Paquette now looms as the solid choice to head the qualifiers in the Molson division of the Chenier North American snooker classic.

Thorburn, who established a tournament record with three century breaks in six games last Saturday, was handcuffed by Paquette's superb defensive play.

Price of Justice Beyond Reach of Indians?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most Indians can't afford justice, says Bill Wilson, a former executive director of the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs.

Mr. Wilson, 27, who is also a law student at the University of British Columbia, and six of his colleagues spent their summer setting up a comprehensive Indian legal aid program.

The result is a 26-page pamphlet entitled Toward Equality which lists existing resources for legal aid and explains the organization of the legal system.

"The ideal of the program is to have the Indian in an equal situation with the white man before the law," he said. "Usually you have to purchase justice and most Indians can't afford it.

"This program is not designed to solve all Indian ills. The system is there; we aren't going to change it.

"What we can do is offer guidance to someone who is completely unfamiliar with the legal system."

The B.C. Indian Law Program was launched last spring with the help of a $6,000 Opportunities for Youth grant and help from the union of Indian chiefs.

Mr. Wilson said that in B.C. the number of Indians in prisons and penal institutions is proportionately seven times that of whites.

The province's 100,000 Indians comprise roughly four per cent of the whole population yet about 30 per cent of those in prison are Indian.

Mr. Wilson said a tremendous gulf exists between Indians and white society. The legal handicap only serves to ensure that once down, an Indian will never recover.

"Once you're in, you're in for good," he said. "Almost all Indians serving time for criminal offences got started on disorderly charges and couldn't afford a lawyer or didn't know how to get one."

Merger Called Takeover

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Alfred Perlman, once the No. 2 man in the Penn Central Empire, has claimed the merger which created the $6 billion giant wasn't a merger at all but a takeover of the New York Central by the Pennsylvania railroad.

He was questioned at a hearing on compensation for former executives. Perlman is seeking a pension of $90,000, but he, like other officers of the ailing railroad, have had a $50,000 ceiling put on their retirement money.

High Chair Justice

LONDON (UPI) — Court attendants put a high chair in the prisoner's dock at Old Bailey Wednesday because the accused murderer was too young and small to see over the top of the railing.

And even then they had to place cushions on the chair for 12-year-old Mario Carroll, the alleged mastermind of the particularly brutal slaying Aug. 9 of a crippled old man.

No one could remember in the famous criminal courts, where so many of Britain's most dramatic murder dramas have been played out, when a murder suspect needed a high chair before.

Young Mario and the man he is accused of recruiting to help him in the murder, James Arthur Johnston, 23, pleaded not guilty to beating to death Harry "Pop" Lillywhite, an 82-year-old hunchback with a club foot and withered leg.

Prosecutor Henry Pownall said the jury would hear "a story that will horrify and perhaps engender feelings of revulsion." He said Lillywhite was clubbed with a monkey wrench because the boy had heard he was a rich man who had a fortune hidden in his mattress.

According to the prosecution Mario first approached one man for help in the robbery after hearing neighborhood gossip about the alleged wealth of Lillywhite, who was only four feet 11 inches tall.

CRASH AT 50 . . . WALK AWAY

SINDELFINGEN, West Germany (WP) — Behind three sets of locked, steel doors at the Daimler-Benz plant here sits a strange-looking black and yellow car, faintly resembling a Mercedes 220. Its bumpers, made of a tough, rubberized plastic, protrude front and rear for about a foot. Its insides are heavily padded with leather, and a padded, tapering column confronts the front passenger.

This is Daimler-Benz experimental safety vehicle number 5, and its makers claim that you can walk away from it after crashing into a wall at 50 miles an hour.

To spur the development of such futuristic autos, safe at almost any normal driving speed, officials from 11 nations and the world's leading car makers have assembled here for a four-day conference. They are comparing, in a guarded fashion, notes on international efforts to produce prototypes of safe cars.

If all goes well, and the obvious resistance of the auto companies to incorporate costly safety features in their models diminishes, these prototypes will be the basis for a new set of standards governing American and foreign cars.

The Daimler-Benz is heavy, weighing in at 4,500 pounds against 3,200 for the conventional model. The four American firms producing experimental safety cars have been running into the same weight-limit problem.

The gathering in this Daimler-Benz town outside Stuttgart has a remarkable sponsor, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Two years ago, President Nixon called on NATO to turn its attention towards the solution of social probelms and road safety was one of those selected.

La Presse Stops Publishing

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse, Canada's largest French-language daily, suspended publication Wednesday night for "an indefinite period of time."

Pierre Dansereau, president and publisher of La Presse, said in a statement the newspaper is "faced with a wave of violence," and "has no choice but to close its doors."

Some 350 stereotypers, pressmen, photoengravers and mailroom employees have been involved in a lockout by La Presse since July.

On Wednesday, the men declared themselves on strike and invited 600 other employees not to cross their picket lines, limited by a court injunction to eight men at a time.

Only a small number entered the building in the evening while police were called to disperse a gathering crowd outside in Montreal's financial district.

Mr. Dansereau listed nine reasons for the shut-down including damage to delivery trucks and to the homes of management personnel, interference with delivery, bomb scares at the newspaper's offices, and threats and personal assault on La Presse employees.

La Presse had a daily circulation of about 225,000, but has been publishing only one edition a day instead of its usual three since the production employees were locked out July 19.

Paul Desmarais, also chairman and chief executive officer of Power Corp. of Canada, personally holds controlling interest in La Presse. He owns all the prefgrred voting shares in the newspaper and also has interests in daily newspapers in Sherbrooke and Trois-Rivieres.

The suspension comes during the same week as the final publication of the Toronto Telegram, another major Canadian daily newspaper, which will close down Saturday.

And in Quebec City, the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, the city's only English daily, suspended publication Wednesday after typographers walked out to back wage demands in a contract dispute.

Mr. Dansereau said he made his decision to suspend publication "to protect life and avoid injury to our employees and their families as well as to persons directly and indirectly involved in the dispute."

Meanwhile, the city's executive committee placed a 30-day ban on all "assemblies, parades and gatherings" in the area of the newspaper.

PLAN DEMONSTRATION

Three unions had planned a massive demonstration in support of La Presse employees Friday, which they hoped would attract 20,000 people.

Fernand Daoust, general secretary of the Quebec Federation of Labor, some of whose affiliates represent La Presse employees, said the protest will take place.

A 1964 dispute between typographers and La Presse resulted in a work stoppage that lasted longer than any previous daily newspaper shutdown in North America.

The typographers went on strike June 4, 1964 and the newspaper suspended publication for 214 days—until Jan. 4, 1965.

The shutdown ended after La Presse negotiated three-year contracts with eight unions representing 1,200 employees.

A statement from the journalists union of La Presse Wednesday said journalists and other editorial employees "deplore the company's decision to interrupt production."

The union, which represents 150 journalists at the newspaper, said they will meet with management representatives today.

Current average pay rates of La Presse composing room and mailroom employees are $175 weekly for typographers, stereotypers and pressmen, $150 for mailers and $182 for photoengravers for a 40-hour week.

The newspaper published what it called its final offers Aug. 18 providing for $40 weekly increases in a contract to run from Sept. 1 this year to the end of 1973. It also offered lump-sum payments equivalent to $2.50 weekly since the start of 1971.

The proposed work week would be 35 hours for daytime employees and 32½ hours for night workers. Photoengravers would get a 31¼-hour work week.

The unions said the effect of technological change on job security was the central issue.

14 HUSBANDS A RECORD

LONDON (UPI) — Oh, hail, most-married Beverly Nina O'Malley Avery. Congratulations to longest-wed Annie McDaniel. They have gone with others into the 18th edition of the Guinness Book of Records.

The book, published today, lists these among world records set in the past year:

● Mrs. Avery, 48, of Los Angeles, Calif., is the world's most married woman, now with her 14th husband.

● The McDaniels of Winterset, Iowa, would have celebrated their 82nd wedding anniversary Jan. 21, but Annie's husband Ward died Sept. 28 at the age of 103.

● Paul Besley of England's Cambridge University on March 20 set the fastest time for eating 60 pickled onions — 15 minutes, 12 seconds.

● Walter Fast shot a 140-yard hole-in-one at Madison Golf Club, Peoria, Ill., Nov. 12 to become — at age 91 years, 339 days — the oldest golfer to get a hole-in-one.

● Herbert De Grote produced by mental process alone the correct answer — 46,231,597 — of the 13th root of a 100-digit number on Oct. 5, 1957, in 23 minutes in front of a committee of mathematicians to become the "greatest mental arithmetician."

● A chunk weighing more than 26½ ounces hit Coffeyville, Kan., Sept. 3, 1970, and became the world's biggest recorded hailstone, displacing the 24-ounce former record holder which hit Potter, Neb., 34 years earlier.

Curbs Coming

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta intends to tighten legislative control over archaeological sites, Recreation Minister Horst Schmid said Wednesday.

Schmid was commenting on a statement by Barney Reeves, a University of Calgary archaeologist, that early man sites and other historical treasures in Alberta were being wantonly looted and destroyed.

Riel Descendant Looks at History

Under the black cowboy hat there is little except fuzz. His brown skin is wrinkled. But there is an energetic cocky air about him that makes you revise your estimate downwards. Still, you think, he wouldn't be asking if he were not remarkably old for his appearance.

"Hah!" he hoots. "Hah! Hah! Seventy-eight. Seventy-eight if I'm a day."

He holds the cigarette between the third and fourth fingers of his left hand. His first and second fingers are missing.

HIT BY SIGN

He was working for the city doing everything from street sweeping to road grading, when he dropped a sign on his hand.

"I looked down at them fingers and oh, was I mad! I threw that sign down by St. George's Island and it's there today."

Mr. Hamilton says he is a descendant of Louis Riel and believes the government considers him to be one too because they once sent him $5 worth of stamps free in a Riel commemorative issue.

"I can't figure it out. How is it that he was considered a rebel when he was alive and a hero after he's dead?"

He has 10 grown children.

"Five of them look like Indians and five look white. But what can I do about that now?"

Mr. Hamilton was in the army but didn't go overseas.

"Got arthritis just before I was supposed to go. All down this side. So bad they had to carry me off. The doctors couldn't cure me. They were gonna take off my leg above the knee.

"But I went to an Indian. He cured me. Name of Big Swan. He used roots and herbs."

His father was Irish and lived to 106.

"I was living down south then and I drove up to see him in an old Dodge without a licence.

"He was just lying there and the nurses said he wasn't too good. So I said, I'll fix him—get a bottle of Irish whisky. Geez, when he got ahold of that he perked right up. Talked all day. I told him I'd come back and get him that fall, but he died before I came."

Mr. Hamilton is retired now after working for the city for 39 years.

He started as a street-car driver but quit after witnessing a fellow trolley driver go out of control on a hill.

"The brakes didn't work and he ran right into that drugstore there at the bottom. I quit that night. That very night.

"That was in 1913. That was a long time ago, ain't it? But you wouldn't know it to look at me.

"You wouldn't know I was part Indian either—not if I didn't choose to tell ya."

NOW TWO LOCATIONS IN VICTORIA

GADDI THE BADDY BEARS POPE FOR FREE

VATICAN CITY (AP) — They call him "the Vatican gunman."

"Nothing sinister about that," explains Carlo Gaddi, a six-footer who has a black belt in judo. "It fits me perfectly."

Gaddi is a papal chair bearer, one of the select group of 12 men who carry the Pope on their shoulders in his portable throne during audiences and ceremonies.

He is also a movie actor who always plays the villain in Italian thrillers.

"It's not my fault if I have the face of a bad guy," says Gaddi. "My three kids have yet to see one of my movies where I don't get shot."

Gaddi was born in the tiny papal city-state 35 years ago. His father was dean of the private household for Popes Pius X and Benedict XV.

Gaddi became an Italian citizen when he was 21 and for 11 years was a securities trader on the Rome stock exchange.

"I got into the movies by chance," he recalls.

ALWAYS GETS SHOT

"A friend offered me a small part as a gangster. I was on the screen a few minutes, just time to draw my guns and get shot. Critics said my death was very realistic, so here I am, the man who never lived to the end of a motion picture."

Gaddi has acted in about 20 movies, with such stars as Sophia Loren, Horst Buchholz and Sylvia Koscina.

"Ours is strictly an honorary job," he says.

"Each bearer carries a weight of about 50 pounds, walking six or four on each side. The trick is to keep the throne perfectly level with the ground."

Pope John XXIII shunned the portable throne whenever he could.

"He simply did not like it," said Gaddi. "I have the impression he was afraid of falling down."

Vatican officials have not complained about Gaddi's film career. "They don't even complain about my long hair," he says.

Schirra Escapes

CREEDE, Colo. (AP) — Former astronaut Walter M. Schirra, his wife and daughter have escaped injury in a light airplane accident in this Colorado mountain community. One of the two engines of an aircraft piloted by Schirra's employer, Frank Compton, failed on takeoff Monday and skidded to a stop. Flames broke out on one wing, but the occupants escaped safely.

U.S. Dock Bosses Shun Wage Pegging

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaders of two major U.S. longshore unions have agreed to form a common front against any government attempt to restrict wage gains during Phase Two of the Nixon administration's economic program.

The agreement came Wednesday as the Shippers' Association pressed for court action to open more East and Gulf ports shut down since Oct. 1 by a strike of the International Longshoremen's Association.

Meanwhile, there were reports in Washington that the soft-coal industry had made a firm contract offer to end the 28-day United Mine Workers strike. Negotiators for both sides declined to comment.

In the dock strike, ILA leaders in New Orleans bowed to a court order and told their men to return to work today. Philadelphia longshoremen resumed work Wednesday under a court order and threat of heavy fines.

Employer groups in Baltimore and Mobile, Ala., also were seeking a return to work, charging that the local ILA walkouts constituted an illegal secondary boycott to support the international union.

ILA President Thomas W. Gleason and West Coast dock chief Harry Bridges met in New York for three hours Wednesday and announced agreement on a three-point program.

Gleason said he would send striking New York longshoremen to picket West Coast installations of companies involved in the New York dispute.

Bridges said his 15,000-member International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, which went back to work Oct. 9 under a Taft-Hartley injunction after a 100-day strike, would honor the pickets.

ST. LAWRENCE AREA FACES DESTRUCTION

MONTREAL (CP) — The environment of a 45-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence River east of Montreal is rapidly being destroyed, results of a summer-long survey show.

A detailed, 400-page report by 26 university students, financed by a $26,000 federal Opportunities for Youth grant, was released at a news conference Wednesday by the Quebec Wildlife Federation, which wants 110 islands in the area turned into public parkland.

Tony Le Sauteur, a federation director, said:

"In two years it will be too late to save anything. If the systematic destruction now going on is allowed to continue we will lose the last remaining natural green area near the city. Too much has been lost already."

The study says only two of 19 beaches tested were safe for swimming.

Coliform bacteria counts were found to range as high as 230,000, while the accepted safe limit for swimming is 1,000.

The study found some of the islands at the eastern tip of Montreal were being used as public dumps, two islands were ruined as bird sanctuaries because of dump and fill operations, and several other islands were buried under clay dumped for construction and maintenance of the St. Lawrence seaway channel.

He said the city originally planned to build an artificial park with fill but now has modified these plans to allow construction of a high-rise residential and commercial development with a private marina.

He also cited the Nun's Island project minutes from downtown where apartment and town house development have replaced duck nesting marshes with 4.5 million cubic yards of fill, baseball diamonds and a golf course.

Finn to Follow UN's Thant?

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Finnish Ambassador Max Jakobson, a fervent supporter of China's successful bid for UN representation and one of the few envoys who believed all along it would happen this year, moved back today to the top of the list of prospects to succeed U Thant as secretary-general.

Informed sources said there is reason to think Jakobson, 48, is acceptable to Peking, as he is known to be to the U.S. and Britain.

Though Finland is Russia's neighbor, the Soviet government is said to have taken an ambiguous position toward his candidacy, principally on the ground that he wrote a strongly anti-Soviet book on the Russo-Finnish war.

WANT THANT AGAIN

France has been cool to him because he does not speak French. He has also observed further that there is no reason why the Secretary-general should speak it, as long as he ensures that it occupies its proper place among the official languages of the UN and there is adequate Francophone representation in the secretariat.

Thant speaks only English, of the four official UN languages, but is so well regarded by France that they would like him to accept a third five-year term.

Many diplomats questioned whether the French government would block Jakobson's appointment on the ground of his language deficiency if the four other permanent members of the Security Council, including China, endorsed his candidacy.

The secretary-general is appointed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council, and each of the great powers may exercise its right of veto in the council.

In addition to Jakobson, declared candidates for the $89,000 post are Ceylonese Ambassador Hamilton Shirley Amerasinghe, Ethiopian Communications Minister Endalkachew Makonnen, Austrian Ambassador Kurt Waldheim, and Felipe Herrera of Chile, former president of the Inter-American Development Bank.

NOTHING SO GREEDY as gluttonous gulls, as anybody in Beacon Hill Park with a handout has discovered. They'll out-squawk and out-grab the pigeons and ducks every time and even get mean with their own relatives. Risking his fingers, J. M. Headlam of 301—562 Simcoe has some of them hung up in the air in an effort to get to the tidbit first.

Regional Takeover Urged for Water

A notice of motion that the Capital Regional District Board take over operations of the Greater Victoria Water District was served Wednesday night by Howard Elder, the board's Sooke representative.

In his motion, which will come up for discussion at the next board meeting, Elder maintained that the supply of water is essentially a regional function and noted that a large portion of the region is not represented on the water district board.

Elder told board directors "misleading information" has been circulated in regard to the water board's plans to replace Sooke's water supply line from Sooke Lake with a pumping station on the lower reaches of the Sooke River.

He said such misinformation would never occur if it went through the regional board.

Regional takeover of the water supply has been discussed before, but Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria, which control the water board, and which benefit primarily from the Sooke Lake supply, have opposed any such move. North and Central Saanich, for instance, draw their water from Elk Lake and Sidney depends on wells.

Sooke residents are protesting the new water project because they say the Sooke River is polluted and that they have historic rights to be supplied with the pure water from Sooke Lake.

THICK BRUSH

Speaking as a member of a Sooke committee protesting the proposed new water source, Elder charged that water commissioner Ron Upward had made misleading statements to the press and was allowing the present pipeline to deteriorate.

Following an Upward report last week that some leakage had been caused by a theft of hoops in the line, Elder inspected the entire 17-mile length of the pipe on a hike Sunday.

Elder said he found sections of the pipe which were deteriorating because they lacked routine tar-brushing. He also found about 15 pinehole leaks in joints and noted that the brush was so thick over some parts of the pipe that it was impossible to walk through.

Elder said he found no leakage, however, at the wood siphon sections where the hoops were stolen. He said the water pressure is so low at these points that the theft of all the hoops would probably not affect the pipe at all.

Elder also challenged Upward's statement that cost of bringing in new hoops would be between $700 and $800.

"If he gave me the contract I could do it for $100.

"Either Mr. Upward's men are so damn slow or he's trying to show people that maintenance is more expensive than it really is."

Upward has said that the present 55-year-old "wood" pipeline from Sooke Lake is outdated and that replacement of it would cost too much. A new $370,000 pumping house and line, to be located one mile below the Sooke River potholes, has been approved by the water board and is awaiting provincial government approval.

MEETING

Elder also said that only about 2 per cent of the water line is wood and that the rest is reinforced concrete.

"How can Mr. Upward say that it is wood when he has on his office wall a picture of the casting yards where the pipeline was made?"

A protest meeting will be held Monday night in Sooke Community Hall at which Upward will be present.

"The cost of amortization of Upward's pump-house investment would probably be more than necessary to maintain the old pipe in a safe condition over the next 20 years," Elder said.

Witchever the Night Get the Treats Ready

Is Halloween going to be Saturday night or Sunday night? Or even — perish the thought — both?

The question is bewitching Greater Victoria as much as the rest of Canada, but no one seems sure of the answer.

Officially, the spectral eve falls on Sunday this year, for the first time since 1965, but many municipalities have declared Saturday as Halloween.

Of the four core municipalities in Greater Victoria only Oak Bay has ruled on the matter — in favor of Sunday.

However, all community bonfires in the area will be crackling on Sunday night, so indications are that's when the scores of mini-witches, goblins, spooks and other assorted small figures will be making their rounds.

NO GUARANTEE

This is no guarantee there won't be any cries of "trick or treat" on Saturday, and some stores today were reporting heavier-than-usual demand for jumbo packs of candy.

"People seem to be laying in extra . . . just in case," said one salesgirl.

To the police, the general confusion merely means the potential for trouble on two nights, instead of one.

Saanich police chief Bert Pearson, who last year termed Halloween "a ridiculous holiday" and said it should be discontinued, hasn't grown any more enthusiastic in the intervening 12 months.

"As far as I'm concerned I'm just waiting for it to die a natural death . . . all aspects of it," he said in an interview.

'LESS TROUBLE'

Victoria police chief Jack Gregory views the occasion less seriously, but admits: "If they (the children) were to stay home both Saturday and Sunday night there would be less trouble."

Four youngsters who will be trick-or-treating regardless, Victoria police advise wearing light-colored clothing so they can be seen by motorists, and make-up instead of vision-obscuring masks.

Toddlers should be accompanied by an adult or responsible older child, say the police.

BONFIRES SLATED

The community bonfires Sunday night will be:

- In Saanich, at the Cedar Hill golf course, organized by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich; and at Lambrick Park, organized by the Kinsmen Club of Saanich as their first community project.
- In Esquimalt, at Fleming Beach and Kinsmen Gorge Park, both sponsored by Esquimalt Lions; and in the Work Point barracks area (Work Point Community Council).
- In Oak Bay, the traditional bonfire celebrations staged by the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club and Oak Bay fire department, near the fire department building.
- In Central Saanich, the Saanich Community Club and Central Saanich volunteer fire department bonfire near the Agriculture Hall.
- In Sidney, at Tulista Park, organized by Sidney volunteer fire department and Sidney recreation commission.
- In View Royal, at Centennial Park (View Royal volunteer fire department).
- In Langford, at Centennial Park (Langford volunteer fire department).
- In Metchosin, Metchosin volunteer fire department's bonfire at the firehall on Happy Valley Road.

FIRECRACKERS BANNED

Sale, purchase and distribution of firecrackers — the ones which go bang — are prohibited on southern Vancouver Island by the Capital Regional District.

However, organizations can apply for a special permit to discharge firecrackers by going to police chiefs in municipalities, or the RCMP in the unorganized areas.

DEMOCRACY'S RECIPE A LITTLE DEFICIENT

It was being billed as a slightly historic occasion: the first ever meeting of the Capital Regional District Board outside its Bastion Square offices.

It was a chance for the board to really get out and meet the people, to show them democracy in action, and all that.

Only one ingredient was missing at the meeting at Elizabeth Fisher School Wednesday night: the people.

Only 3 turned out and chairman Hugh Curtis, mayor of Saanich, said most of them were "familiar" faces.

Chairman of the Glanconne Chamber of Community Opinion, Aubrey Jenkins, said he phoned 20 chamber members, advising them not to attend since spectators cannot speak until invited.

Curtis said this is done to avoid meetings becoming free-for-alls.

No Nominations For Board Seats

With the deadline for nominations a month away, no one has filed papers for the seven directorships on the Capital Regional District board from the unorganized areas.

Terms of all seven directors expire at the end of the year. Deadline for nominations is Nov. 29 and election day is Dec. 11.

View Royal ratepayers will be voting on a $15,000 sewerage referendum study and expenditure of $1,500 a year on maintenance of Helmcken Centennial Park. Salt Spring Island residents will be voting on a school activity centre.

Areas and present directors are:

Sick Diver Rushed To Navy Chamber

A diver who became ill Wednesday while trying to salvage a sunken fish boat near Brotchie Ledge was rushed to the navy's decompression chamber at Colwood.

The incident occurred about 10:25 a.m. when Tom Lindberg, 27, of Richmond, surfaced after working at a depth of 50 to 55 feet. He had been trying to attach an anchor cable to the 30-foot troller Glen A, which swamped Nov. 13 just outside the Inner Harbor.

After almost two hours in the decompression chamber, Lindberg was taken to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, x-rayed, kept under observation and later released.

Hospital Workers Seek Certification

The recently-formed Health Sciences Association, a new union which expressly forbids strikes, has 50 certification applications before the Labor Relations Board, a spokesman said today.

Terrence Wolfe, Vancouver lawyer and association spokesman, said about 2,000 employees are involved in the applications including groups of employees within Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals in Victoria.

The association takes in para-medical employees such as physiotherapists, medical records librarians, dieticians, medical social workers, pharmacists, occupational therapists, remedial gymnasts and X-ray and laboratory technicians.

CERTIFICATION

The Labor Relations Board has already granted certification to the association for 225 employees at Lion's Gate and St. Paul's hospitals in Vancouver.

Wolfe said in an interview from Vancouver the para-medical employees appeared to come within the certification of the Hospital Employees Union but "until last year they never attempted to bargain for them" although some of the occupational classifications were listed in HEU contracts.

NO PROVISION

He said the certification application at St. Joseph's Hospital does not include X-ray and laboratory technicians now under HEU.

Wolfe said there is a no-strike provision in the Health Sciences Association constitution and he didn't think there will be difficulty in getting hospitals to agree to arbitration provisions, which would implement this and prevent lockouts by management.

"We'd rather wipe away this romantic nonsense about right to strike and tell it the way it is," he said. Para-medical employees wouldn't walk out," he added.

He said the association wants its own arbitration, in which each side picks a person under a neutral chairman, and had "no inclination" to go before the B.C. Mediation Commission.

THREE OTHERS

President of the association is Catherine Farrar, a dietician, and secretary-treasurer is Sheila Begg, a physiotherapist, both of Vancouver.

There are three other unions in the hospital field — the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., the International Union of Operating Engineers and the Hospital Employees Union. All three retain the right to strike, all three have conducted strike votes in the past and engineers have gone on strike.

Wolfe, asked about registered nurses retaining the right to strike while para-medical employees want it specifically ruled out, said "they have the theoretical right to strike, but no practical right."

'AN UMBRELLA'

William Rolfe, director of technical services for the 10,000-member Hospital Employees Union, said his union is opposed to a proliferation of bargaining agents and does not consider Health Sciences Association a union.

He said HSA is "simply an umbrella for other professional associations" and said its constitution would not allow the membership at large to control the association.

He said the people active in forming HSA are supervisors and that HSA has been "encouraged and fostered" by management.

A group which throws out the strike right immediately "is obviously more of an association than a trade union," he said. It weakened its own bargaining position and this could affect other unions, he said.

Technicians Check Ferry After Unloading Mishap

Technicians from Westinghouse Canadian Co. Ltd. are inspecting the hydraulic systems of the B.C. Ferry Queen of New Westminster after a car plunged from the ferry's ramp Oct. 20.

Provincial highways official Ray Baines said today it will be some time before the inquiry into the mishap is completed.

Baines said the technicians are "dismantling valves and examining all the equipment."

"But it's going to be some time before the investigation is complete because the ferry is still in service and the work has to be done while she's alongside," he said.

An elderly Alberta couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Fort MacLeod, were waiting to disembark at Departure Bay when the ferry moved out, tottering their car into the water.

They were rescued by a ferry patrolman and two bystanders.

CREW QUESTIONED

Martin was released from Nanaimo General Hospital Wednesday and his wife will be leaving hospital "in a day or two," a hospital spokesman said today.

Baines said all the crew members had been questioned and "extra precautions" were being taken to guard against a recurrence.

Asked if it is safe to keep the ferry in operation after no reason had been found for the ferry backing out of the dock while still unloading, Baines said it is.

"We have had several million dockings and this has never happened before."

Baines confirmed that the ferry was not only relying on her reverse propeller action when the Departure Bay incident occurred.

"Lines were also secured but they pulled the stanchions out of the dock. We might have to increase the number of lines and strengthen the stanchions on the dock."

Baines said the findings will be made public when the inquiry has been completed.

Homemade Bombs 'Unstable'

Crude homemade bombs made from such materials as copper tubing are "very unstable" and liable to explode at any time, city police warned today.

Staff-Sgt. Walter Calwell said three such bombs have been used in Victoria bombings in the last month.

He said the home-built explosives were used to blow a hole in the Victoria Lawn Bowling Club green in Beacon Hill Park, Oct. 11.

There has also been bombs set in the 600-block Cornwall boulevard and against the gymnasium doors of Blanshard Elementary School.

No one has been injured to date but this could change, the officer said.

Calwell said the bombs have the capacity to blow a person's hand off.

He said the explosives don't have to be lit to go off but can be set off if the chemical ingredients mix a certain way.

He added that police found a home-made bomb in the possession of a youngster Sunday. Investigation is continuing, he said.

Calwell described the copper tube bombs as from two to eight inches long with both ends crimped. Some have a hole in the centre for a fuse.

arthur mayse

IN SPARE MOMENTS I have been inventing a replacement for my fender-gutted, fuel-drinking, space-taking monster that sits brooding over its aches and pains in a nearby parking lot. It is called an automobile, or more familiarly a car, although there are days when I have other names for it.

The machine I have in mind will run on two wheels, instead of four that wear out their rubber faster than an active small boy can go through shoes.

Instead of a pair of wide seats upholstered like living room couches, it will have one compact saddle. There will be no gas tank, and since its chain-driven gears won't depend on an internal combustion engine for motivation, no exhaust fumes. Maintenance costs will be low, visibility unimpeded, and healthful exercise a by-product of travel.

I am thinking of naming this conveyance a bicycle, or more familiarly a bike.

Admittedly, it won't shelter me from the weather or climb the Malabat at 80 miles an hour. But these minor deficiencies are more than compensated for by other things it won't do.

Or demanding costly tune-ups, deciding to cross its sealed-beam eyes as we shuffle along the testing station line, and pulling such low tricks on me as it did the other morning.

We were waiting for a traffic light to change, and I was worrying over a deep-down whunka-whunka-whunka accompanied by the occasional shudder when vapor began to puff from under the hood.

The guy in the next door lane clapped a hand to his forehead — a gesture of sympathy for which I thank him. No doubt he has his automotive troubles too.

I also got sympathy from the rabbit expert to whom I delivered my steaming mount.

This specialist, one of the best required to keep a car in running order, pointed to a top seam apparently sealed with spruce gum, spit and a curling-iron by one of a squad of little old ladies retained by the manufacturer for this operation.

As cars go, mine isn't a lemon. In any matching of bills, I expect it wouldn't rate too badly. But like all cars everywhere, it reflects the failure of a long-established industry to advance its product any great distance beyond the pioneering stage.

There are times, in fact, when I look at my car, or any other for that matter, and wonder if the industry isn't losing ground.

From suspension through power train to ridiculously vulnerable body, the automobile is too complex and too delicate. It has too many parts, practically all of which can get out of whack.

Its life expectancy doesn't justify its original cost to the buyer, or the sums he is doomed to spend if he is to keep it roadworthy.

The buying public cannot escape at least part of the blame for car inadequacies. We have encouraged changes based on styling rather than functionality, and approved the application of horsepower beyond any reasonable need.

Not all of us — the rise of the small and gas-thrifty compact indicates a limited turning away from the concept that biggest is best.

But why, after all these years, are we still burning gasoline to power internal combustion engines?

More to the point, when can we expect something radically new in driver-controlled ground transport, to take over from a vehicle that has abandoned meaningful growth for middle-aged spread?

I am going out to my car now, and I trust it won't take vengeance for these unkind reflections by popping a rear-end seal.

Also, I have changed my mind about the bicycle. Someone has beaten me to that useful invention, which has been taking to the blacktop in every-increasing numbers. And, automotively speaking, no damn wonder!

Q. When will Easter fall next year — 1972. J.S.

A: Easter Sunday is April 2, 1972.

Q. John Diefenbaker once stated in the House of Commons that an "overpayment cannot be reclaimed." In view of this can one department of the federal government get repayment for an overpayment by having stoppages made at source from the Old Age Pension of anyone receiving same, or if the Government above the law? — A.B.

A: It can be done under legislation in the Old Age Pension Act. The Financial Administration Act also provides for the recovery of overpayments from source.

A MOMENT TO REMEMBER

Campaign Launched Against LSD

By ANN ARNOLD

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Moment Armistead left her father some memories and a few notes.

"It isn't true that I loathe life," the 22-year-old girl wrote her father. "I know I'm still trying to hang on, to calm down enough to start over. God . . . please help me. Make me strong and good again."

"I'm scared," she wrote in another note. "What could have I possibly done to get this trapped?"

One of her last notes said: "I haven't any further to run."

The final note Moment Armistead wrote was found on her body Sept. 29, the day she jumped from the same 307-foot tower on the University of Texas campus from which Charles Whitman shot and killed 14 persons and wounded 32 on Aug. 1, 1966.

The last note said: "My name is Moment Armistead. Living was hell for me. I wanted to die so I wouldn't cause any more trouble."

The insert was placed in the paper by Moment's father, Gene Armistead.

"My daughter didn't jump off that tower — LSD pushed her off," the father said later.

The newspaper insert marked the beginning of a campaign to force the Texas legislature to pass stricter drug laws, Armistead said. He intends to get 2 million signatures on a petition to force the legislature to pass a law which would sentence persons convicted of a first narcotics offence to a mandatory 10-year sentence, 25-years for a second conviction and a mandatory life sentence for a third conviction.

"I just can't let my daughter lie in that cemetery for nothing," Armistead said. "This won't clean it up but it's a step in the right direction."

Armistead, a self-employed insurance broker, said he will give up the business for the next three months to devote all his time to the anti-drug campaign.

"I know this is not the total answer but from the things I've found out in the past three weeks we are really in for some trouble with this drug problem if we don't do something," he said.

Armistead is using the newspaper inserts, which will run later in all major newspapers in Texas, to get the million signatures on his petition. He has also placed 200 petitions in various shops around Austin.

The insert in the American-Statesman cost him $6,000 initially, he said. But the cost will mount because at the bottom of the insert in a postcard with return postage guaranteed, Armistead has asked the reader to sign the card and return it to him.

Armistead said he learned last Christmas that his daughter experimented with LSD. The girl committed herself voluntarily to a state mental hospital for treatment, however, and her family felt she was improving until last month.

She graduated from high school five years ago, the father said, and immediately wanted "to start helping others." She joined Vista and was sent to Chicago.

When earthquakes destroyed several communities in Peru, she joined the Red Cross and worked helping earthquake victims.

She returned to the United States in the fall of 1970 and planned to enroll at the University of Texas. But the fall term began the day after she returned, so she decided to wait until the spring term of 1970.

Armistead said his wife would help him later in his campaign "but right now she is still in a state of shock" because of their daughter's death.

DEAR ABBY

This Boy Needs Psychiatric Help

DEAR ABBY: My son, 16, makes obscene telephone calls. I heard him make one of those the other day and confronted him immediately. He told me he had done it seveal times and thinks its "funny."

I recevied an obscene phone call many years ago and I know it's no laughing matter. I have tried to impress this upon my son without success.

I can't prevent him from using the phone, and there is no way I can check on him. I am hoping he will outgrow it, but he seems to take a perverse pleasure in this hobby of this. I hate to see him upset anyone, and of course, I hope he doesn't run into any difficulties with the police. Have you any suggestions? — MRS. M. C.

DEAR MRS. M. C.: Your son's hobby is not as innocuous as you seem to think. It is an indication that he could have serious emotional problems. I urge you to somehow manage to have your son examined psychiatrically. At 16 he's no longer a boy; he's a young man who desperately needs help.

DEAR ABBY: The other evening, around midnight, I was awakened by a police car's lights and the police radio next door to my home, knowing the boy of 15 and his sister, 13, were home alone because their parents had gone to a party, I went outside and offered my help. The two officers said "thank you, but it's a false alarm." The parents arrived home half an hour later so I knew all was well.

The next day the neighbor children told my youngster that when their parents are at parties, they always call the police and report a "prowler" around their home just to see how quickly the police will respond.

I was tempted to inform the police about this little scheme but decided against it. How many times can a person cry "wolf." — Another Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: Not many more after the police get wise. And they will, if this stunt is pulled very often.

DEAR ABBY: I have one master's and two doctorates, but that doesn't mean I know all the answers.

My question: How can I discourage the friendship of a couple who call constantly inviting my husband and me over?

We are in education and so are they, but they are the biggest bores! If we never had to see this couple again socially we would be delightfully liberated. I have run out of excuses. — Chicken.

DEAR CHICKEN: Phony excuses and insincere regrets convey false hope. In the future, simply say, thank you for the invitation, but we can't make it."

DEAR ABBY: For three years I've been working as a volunteer in a home for the aged. One of my jobs is reading letters for the folks who can't read.

I simply cannot understand why so many of these letters contain nothing but a detailed report of the writer's aches and pains. Or the husband's problems, or their childrens' problems, or financial problems. And they invariably end with, . . . and how are you?

These elderly folks need to be cheered up — not depressed. Will you please print this letter and remind those who write to the sick and elderly to please soft-pedal the bad news and try to brighten their day?

And by the way, Abby, almost every town has homes for the elderly which could use some volunteers. Maybe your can help recruit a few. Thank you.—Loves Old Folks

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Miniskirt Helped Keep Backbone Supple

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — The passing of the miniskirt may be responsible for an increase in backaches among women, says Kenneth Wood of Clinton, Ont.

"With minis they had to bend from the knees to preserve their modesty.

"That's the secret in lifting and carrying. People must be taught to use their legs more and their backs less because there is more strength in the legs. We bend from the waist which puts a strain on the back."

Wood is president of the Ontario Chiropractic Association and as such concerned with the back, with the spine and the nervous system.

He says most people are in bad condition for doing the lifting and carrying chores most people have to do, putting up storm windows, shovelling snow, carrying boats and motors at a cottage, leaning from a badly balanced position to paint or clean an eavestrough.

"It's our way of life. Most people work at sedentary occupations. If they don't drive, they don't go.

HARD CHAIR BEST

"There has been an increase in back problems that I ascribe to our lack of physical conditioning."

He says most people take their backs for granted unless they have a problem. He says they should not do so — there are things anyone can do to help maintain a back in good condition.

When you sit, use a hard chair and put your spine up against it. If you can, keep one or both of your knees higher than your hips.

When you stand, try to keep your lower back flat. When you work standing up, if you put one foot on a low footrest it can help relieve swayback. When you lean forward, bend your knees.

You should sleep on a firm mattress or put a bedboard under a soft mattress. If you sleep on your back, put a pillow under your knees. If you sleep on your side, keep your legs bent at the knees and the hips. Don't sleep on your stomach.

HOW TO LIFT

Lift properly, with your knees bent and your leg muscles taking the strain. Try not to lift anything heavy over your head.

When you carry something heavy, carry it close to your body.

If you work at a desk all day, get up and move around when you have a chance.

Get regular exercise such as walking or swimming, but don't try anything strenuous unless you are in condition. Then give your muscles a chance to warm up and loosen before you start.

Wood says he is especially concerned about the effects of snowmobiling on people's backs.

"Snow machines are basically badly designed. They're stuck with an old concept, that we're still riding a horse, so you get bumps and bangs on the base of your spine.

"You should ride in a crouched position or on your knees."

Don't Worry ... He Won't Rat on You

By HELEN MELNYK
Times Staff

To stamp out a bug, a pest controller has to know whether it's a oryzaephilus surinamensis or a tribolium confusum.

To most people, that's pretty confusum. That is, confusing.

But James Wallace, a pest controller for 13 years, can tell by the serrigated teeth, elongated snout or prolegs of a bug where his main colony is hiding out, and what chemicals to use to zap them all out of existence.

"Each insect has it's own life pattern," Wallace said. "Thus, when you can identify the bug, you can go for the source."

Wallace said the continually pores over entomology texts.

"The more I know about insects, the better the job is done."

Take the case of the woman who phoned Wallace because her living room was overrun with bugs.

Wallace asked her to describe the bugs. She made a careful study and reported that they were about ¼ of an inch long, red and spinning.

From her description, Wallace identified the bugs as flour beetles. He said the root of the problem was probably a beetle-infested flour or grain bag. Furthermore, since there were no bugs in the kitchen, and grains are not usually stored in the living room, Wallace concluded that the source of the infestation lay in the basement.

Beetles Thrive

An investigation confirmed Wallace's suspicions. There was a sack of pigeon feed, housing a thriving colony of beetles in the cellar. The feed was thrown out, the living room defumigated, and thus ended another case, successfully solved.

"As well as playing detective, the job of pest controller is like that of a doctor's," said Wallace. "I am on call 24 hours a day. If someone phones me at midnight to say that they're sharing their bed with a rat, I have to get right out there. They won't wait until 8 the next morning."

Wallace also does a lot of night work in stores and restaurants.

"You can't very well spray a place of business for bugs in the daytime when all the customers are around," he said.

Although Wallace has a licence from the RCMP to shoot rats, he doesn't get a chance to use his trigger finger in Victoria very often.

When he worked in Vancouver about five years ago, his rat quota was about one a week.

"It added a bit of sport to the job," he said.

Termites and fleas are the peskiest pests in Victoria, he said. At this time of year, fleas are really hopping and keeping Wallace on the run, doing four to five house calls a day.

By the time he gets to the house, it's often so badly infested that when he steps in the door his legs become covered from the ankles to the knees with fleas, Wallace said.

"A lot of people don't call me until the last minute, because they are embarrassed. Fleas and bugs are still associated with filth."

Houses Clean

Embarrassment is groundless, Wallace said. In 95 per cent of the cases, the house is as clean as a pin. The bugs come from a pet in the house.

Nevertheless, to accommodate the sensitivity of his clients, Wallace drives an unmarked van and carries a discreet black bag with his equipment.

Wallace cautions all prospective buyers to have a house inspected for termites before buying.

"The cost of an inspection is $25, but it may save thousands of dollars later on," he said.

Like the couple who had to pay out $4,300 to have a carpenter rebuild the walls of their house after termites ate their way four feet up.

Termites will make a house their home if the walls of the building are in contact with the soil, Wallace said. This may happen when the house is poorly built and lacking proper ventilation. Amateur gardeners may make their home a termite haven.

"The termite has a valuable purpose — to turn tree stumps into organic matter," Wallace said. "The gardener who piles earth around his house is, in effect, converting it into a giant tree stump as far as termites are concerned."

Wallace says he likes his job because he loves bugs. That's evident by his hobby. In his spare time, he studies aquatic insects.

COMPUTER VICTIM STILL ANGRY

U.S. Ponders Billing Errors

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dirk S. Faegre finally put an end to that steady stream of monthly bills from Univard, each 50 cents larger than the previous one.

He even got an apology from the company — and $10 to cover his expenses in writing letters.

But he's still angry.

Faegre, a computer programmer from Madison, Wis., flew to Washington at his own expense to tell the senate subcommittee on financial institutions Wednesday about his battle with Unicard's computer.

The committee is conducting hearings on a bill by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) which would require firms to resolve billing disputes with customers within 30 days or forfeit their right to collect the disputed amount.

Faegre's troubles began in December, 1969, when he made a $12.71 purchase in a discount store. Unicard, he said, billed him double, for $25.42.

He paid $12.71 and wrote a letter.

But the next month brought a bill for $12.71 plus 50 cents interest, the minimum service charge.

Another 50 cent charge was tacked on in March.

In April, the bill was $12.71. Faegre sent a certified letter.

In May, the bill was 50 cents higher — $14.21.

In June, he was credited for the overcharge but still charged $1.50 in unpaid interest.

In July, he received another $1.50 bill. His collect call to Unicard's New York office was refused.

So Faegre borrowed $150 in cash on his credit card and, in effect, told Unicard: You quit billing me for $1.50 and I'll give you back your $150.

In that call, he said he told the firm, "If your company is unable to bear the cost of its own mistakes, it shouldn't be in business."

He said in return he received a check for $10 to cover his expenses along with a letter that said "seemingly there is no solution" when billing computers go awry.

Faegre disputes that view. He said he circulated petitions at a shopping centre in Madison, Wis. before coming to Washington in support of Proxmire's bill and 70 per cent of the 50 or 60 people who signed his petition said they had experienced similar billing problems.

Moreover, he said, 90 per cent of them said they settled the issue by quietly paying what he considered to be an overcharge.

Bankers and retailers are to testify later this week on Proxmire's bill.

In addition to requiring settlements of billing disputes within 30 days, it provides that bill must be mailed at least 21 days before a finance charge is due, that interest cannot be charged by revolving charge accounts on funds already paid and that banks cannot attach the funds in customers' checking or savings accounts to satisfy credit card debts without a court order.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah) said the problem Proxmire isolated is real, but his solution is so burdensome that merchants would have to raise prices of goods sold on credit to meet their extra expenses if the bill became law.

"There is such a thing as overkill," Bennett said.

Birth Pill Works 72 Hours Later

CHICAGO (UPI) — A birth-control pill taken within 72 hours after intercourse has been shown successful in tests upon 1,000 women of child-bearing age without serious side effects.

Dr. Lucile Kirtland Kuchera of the University of Michigan health service said nearly 900 of the women had used no form of contraceptive protection.

She said the probability of a woman becoming pregnant following sexual intercourse without protection is between one in 50 and one in 25.

Dr. Kuchera made her report of a synthetic estrogen known as diethylstilbestrol in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

She said she gave the pill twice daily for five days to consenting women. It was an emergency-type treatment, she said, and she advised the women to use other means of contraception on a regular basis.

"In each of the 1,000 cases, an interview or letter was obtained following the ingestion of diethylstilbestrol, so that it was definitely known that her next menses came and that she was not pregnant."

Some of the women reported minor side effects such as nausea and vomiting, but "no serious side effect was known in any of the 1,000 cases while taking diethylstilbestrol or afterward," she said.

Day Care Becomes Big Business

WINNIPEG (CP) — With more and more women entering the labor force, the job of looking after their young children is being handled in an increasingly businesslike way.

One company handling the care of pre-schoolers is Minis-Skool Ltd., a firm that started operations in Winnipeg but now is moving into the larger market in Toronto.

John Christianson, director of the Winnipeg Mini-Skool and the originator of the idea, says most nursery schools in Canada and the United States lack a coherent philosophy in caring for pre-schoolers.

A large number of them are simply "minding the child" while the parents were away at work.

Recognizing that a child can learn as much in the first four or five years of life as in the next 15, he got a group of local investors interested in his concept.

"We realized the most important aspect of a child's development is the emotional one, and we gave first priority to this," he said.

"We decided at the outset that Mini-Skool must offer more than babysitting facilities. It must have the right atmosphere of tolerance, acceptance, security and respect. Only with these things present can the child develop naturally."

The school tries to choose staff who display characteristics of personal warmth and empathy with children. All group leaders must be graduates of recognized nursery training courses and aides are given on-the-job training.

The school in south Winnipeg began operating last December and has rates ranging from $20 to $86 a month. It offers full or half-day courses, three or five days a week.

Canada's second Mini-Skool opened last month in Toronto's Kingsview Park, with room for 150 pre-schoolers.

The company also has acquired control of three other day nurseries in the Toronto area, located on the main floors of large apartment blocks.

There are 500 places available for pre-schoolers in Mini-Skool's Toronto operation. Two of them accept children from the age of six months while the others take children from age two to six.

Doctors Strike

SAN JOSE (Reuter) — The 625 doctors employed by Costa Rica's state social security service began Monday an unlimited strike for an 82-per-cent pay rise. They also want improved technical facilities and better medicines for patients covered by the service, a spokesman for the strikers said.

Brain Damage Detected by Cry

MONTREAL (CP) — A baby's cry should be tape-recorded at birth in order to alert physicians of possible neurological problems in the infant, according to a Miami phonetics specialist.

Dr. Henry Truby has been studying new-born babies' "cry-prints" since the mid-1950s.

Dr. Truby plays the recorded cries in a machine called a spectogram which translates the sound into a pattern on paper.

"For centuries," said the phonetics researcher, at a recent sciences conference here, "midwives, mothers, nurses or obstetricians have at one time or another said of an infant: 'I don't like the way the baby is crying.'

"If he crys peculiarly, chances are there's something wrong.

This can range from serious brain damage to a simple speech defect."

"With cry-printing, we now have tremendous potential for determining the physiological and pathological condition of the infant."

Voice-printing also has practical use in the judicial process.

If a criminal's voice can be recorded during a crime, a suspect can be matched to the voice with the aid of a spectogram, said Dr. Truby.

The peculiarity of a person's voice patterns may be "quite as valid as fingerprints," he said.

Mink Ranchers Becoming Rare Breed

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

COBBLE HILL — Mink ranchers in North America are becoming an endangered species, according to one of them.

Lorne Combs, who has had his own farm in Cobble Hill for the past seven years, said that in the past year more than 30 per cent of the mink ranchers in North America went out of business.

"Four years ago there were just under 300 members in the B.C. Mink Producers Association," he said. "Now there are less than 150."

Combs said the steady decrease in ranches is because of a surplus of mink pelts which caused a drop in the market. "I think it will pick up now."

Combs is one of nine mink farmers on Vancouver Island. He and his brother each have farms in this area while the rest are in the Saanich-Colwood area.

Although being a mink farmer really ties a person down, Combs said he enjoys his occupation. "I don't know what else I would like to be."

The busiest season in the life of this rare farmer will begin at the end of November, pelting time.

Combs keeps a breeder herd of 500 females and 100 males, which are a combination of Black Mink and Tyrian Glow.

After mating season in March and the birth of the offspring at the end of April, he gets 2,100 minks. Each mink bears an average of four in a litter.

During pelting season, which usually lasts about three weeks, Combs skins about 1,500 of his herd, takes the fat off the hides and then dries them.

"The pelts will keep until they are tanned," he said. "All pelts are sold at auction houses where they are lotted together for color, quality and size. I take mine to Seattle to see how they are graded."

For the past five years, Combs said the same buyer from Italy has purchased his furs.

The seven-month-old female mink at pelting time weigh an average of 3½ pounds while the males weigh approximately two pounds more.

EXCLUSIVE

Although the herd is now equally divided between black and Tyrian Glow, Combs said he plans to concentrate more on the latter in the future.

"The Tyrian Glow is a more exclusive article," Combs said. "The market for it will be more favorable. More an more dark mink are being raised."

"The Tyrian Glow is quite rare. It has never had any great promotion. It sells on its own merit: I feel people will go more for the color in the future."

As far as Combs knows, he and a Victoria farmer are the only people breeding the Tyrian Glow.

NEVER SLACK

Combs said the color can not be achieved by cross-breeding.

The Tyrian Glow herd on the Cobble Hill farm came from Comb's deceased uncle's farm in White Rock where he developed the breed for nine years.

There is never a slack season in the mink farming business. "Winter is the easiest season providing the weather doesn't turn foul," Combs noted.

He said he is kept busy seven days a week feeding, cleaning and caring for his herd. Mink are expensive to feed because they require special food.

Combs said he buys fish for the animals from a fisherman in Victoria. "Feed alone costs an average of $10 to put a pelt on the market," he said.

Combs said although he likes mink, it is hard to get attached to them.

"Mink have beady little eyes and most of them are really mean. To handle them I have to wear mitts or else they would nip me."

He said to make a mink a pet would require constant attention and removal from the rest of the herd.

Station Opening Forecast

LAKE COWICHAN — The Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporations' satellite tracking station near Lake Cowichan is expected to begin commercial operations in January, 1973.

Fred Mercer, of COTC, said Wednesday that construction of buildings and associated services for the project is proceeding as scheduled.

He said that steel construction is nearly finished on one of the main buildings and two concrete antenna pedestal towers are takig shape.

Completion of the project, which is being built in partnership with Telesat Canada, is expected next summer.

The Lake Cowichan station will be capable of passing all forms of telecommunications between earth and two satellites to be orbited around the equator.

The first satellite, Anik 1, will be launched late next year and will begin commercial operations in January, 1973.

Once in operation, the station will be manned by a resident staff of about 20 engineers and technicians.

HELICOPTER RESCUES MEN

HOLBERG, B.C. (CP) — Two men missing since Tuesday near this Northern Vancouver Island community were picked up today off a mountain by an air-sea rescue helicopter from CFB Comox.

Jim Czech and Art Jones, both of Holberg, were reported in good condition despite spending two nights in freezing temperatures.

Bands Need More Money For Own Administration

DUNCAN — More money is needed from the Department of Indian Affairs before all bands in British Columbia can handle their own administration, Cowichan Indian Chief Dennis Alphonse said today.

Alphonse, who is also the Cowichan band's manager and just returned from the British Columbia Indian Band Administrators conference in Vancouver, said that there are more than 50 bands out of the 188 in B.C. that are still under control of Indian agents.

He said a negotiating team was formed at the conference to sit with federal government officials to devise a better administration program.

Alphonse pointed out that the Indian Affairs-sponsored program was instituted in 1965 to allow Indians to make their own decisions.

"We will need more money to give the rest of the bands an opportunity to administer their own affairs," he said. "The federal government has told us that we should decide our own destiny. Administration is one of the main areas where Indians can be self-sufficient and can develop their own human resources."

Alphonse noted that his band was one of the first in the province to take advantage of the opportunity.

The band's first employee was a part-time secretary and now there are six employees in the band office. The employees are the band manager, a secretary-treasurer, a home-school co-ordinator, a recreation director, a special constable and a part-time housing secretary.

Yacht Pulled From Rocks

A 156-foot steam yacht with eight aboard was pulled free by the Coast Guard cutter Racer, Wednesday night after she ran aground on rocks along the shore of Montague Park on the west side of Galiano Island.

WORLD CRUISE

The Maquinna, registered to J. Vangolen of Vancouver, had just set out on an around-the-world cruise from the mainland port.

A Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre official said the skipper had apparently been unable to reverse the Maquinna's engines in time as he was bringing her in to spend the night at Montague.

She went aground shortly after 8 p.m. in a heavily wooded corner of the park at the edge of a narrow channel between Galiano and Parker Islands.

TWO HOURS

A rescue helicopter stood by until the Racer freed the Maquinna less than two hours later.

The eight persons remained aboard the Maquinna. No one was injured and the yacht is believed to have suffered no serious damage.

Few Upsets in Manitoba

By The Canadian Press

There were a few upset but voters opted generally for familiar faces Wednesday in province-wide elections for mayors, councillors and school board trustees.

The incumbent to make the biggest impact was William Wilton of Brandon, mayor of Manitoba's second largest city, who won a landslide victory in his bid for re-election under the city's revamped structure.

EASY WIN

Wilton, mayor for the past two years, polled 7,991 votes to 2,576 for newspaperman Garth Stouffer and 959 for Murray Tufford, standard-bearer for the New Democratic Party.

The NDP, who had earlier this month elected only seven of the 39 candidates supported in elections for Greater Winnipeg's new one-city council, also suffered a severe setback in Brandon.

With the city's boundaries extended and the city divided into 10 wards by a bill passed at the last session of the legislature, the New Democrats supported seven candidates.

All seven lost, as the Citizens' Independent Voters' Election Committee, a loose coalition of anti-NDPers, claimed all 10 seats on council. In wards where an independent candidate ran as well as a CIVEC-backed hopeful, the NDP finished third.

In two other larger centres, voters opted for a change. In Portage La Prairie, Rev. Lloyd Henderson, 63, defeated incumbent W. A. Linden by 2,560 votes to 2,184.

Henderson, a Presbyterian minister, was mayor of the city for 20 years until he was defeated by Linden in 1967.

At the northern city of The Pas, incumbent Harry Trager went down to defeat, polling only 862 votes, more than 300 behind his successful challenger, Jack Kennedy.

Another prominent mayor overthrown was Hugh Stephenson of Minnedosa. Stephenson, mayor of the town since 1967, is Liberal candidate for the Nov. 16 provincial by-election in the constituency of Minnedosa.

He lost, 460 votes to 415, to Joyce Stevenson, a doctor's wife and a mother of seven.

In the town of Selkirk, just north of Winnipeg, voters threw out incumbent Alan Cooper and replaced him with challenger Frank Malis. Final count was 1404 to 995 for Malis.

Among incumbent mayors and reeves who survived challenges were Mayor Henry Wiebe of Winkler, Mayor Steve Hegion of Virden, Dr. L. F. Matthews of Swan River, Reeve G. J. Froese of the rural municipality of Rhineland, Reeve Henry Shearer of the rural municipality of Grey and Reeve Walter Zarecki of the rural municipality of Lac Du Bonnet.

Few Changes

EDMONTON (CP) — Don't expect many major changes in legislation at the 1972 session of the legislature, Dave Russell, municipal affairs minister in the new Progressive Conservative government, told the Alberta Urban Municipalities Association Wednesday.

"We don't want to make hasty decisions," Russell told a dinner meeting at the association's 65th annual convention, "but there will be some items of major change at the 1972 session," he said.

Even Dozen

CALGARY (CP) — After five years as an ambulance driver, Frank Holemans delivered his 12th baby Wednesday night.

The six-pound, four-ounce girl arrived "about Memorial Drive and Crowchild Trail," or two minutes away from the Foothills Hospital.

Holemans, who was filling in for another man, said they would have made the trip in time except for heavy traffic.

Oil Spills

FOX CREEK, Alta. (CP) — One hundred barrels of oil have been spilled over a half-acre in Northern Alberta, the oil and gas conservation board reported Wednesday.

The oil, which came from a small hole in a line operated by Peace River Oil Pipeline Ltd., northwest of Edmonton was located Sunday after a hunter reported smelling hydrogen sulphide gas.

Dunc Larbalestier, area engineer for the oil and gas conservation board, said that a gully leading away from the spill site has been dammed and crews will burn and scrape the area to ensure all crude oil is cleaned up.

Pansies Colorful

By HILDA BEASTALL

Perhaps you have noticed the pretty soft blue pansies flowering now on plants in the cement urns at Humber Green?

And where is Humber Green? The planted intersection where Douglas and Government Streets meet with Hillside and Gorge Road. The few seconds wait for lights there gives us just time to see what's doing in those cement planters maintained by the city all year.

When summer bedding plants were changed over for the spring display of wallflowers, the clever idea was used of putting in just enough pansies to liven the scene while the wallflowers grow up to flowering size in spring.

An enquiry to Al Smith, horticulturist for the City of Victoria at Beacon Hill Park, brought information about the growing of these nice-looking pansies.

They were chosen from the strain called clear crystals in which are other listed colors, all clear of the large dark markings we associate with pansies. Those at Humber Green are the blue, a smooth softly clear color, like the old violas.

However, as we found through years of flower shows and judging, pansies have been so crossbred that it takes more than a microscope today to separate violas and pansies with any certainty.

The seed for the city's clear crystals pansies was sown around August 1, in the park nursery. With good summer culture, the plants came along well, and are now full of buds and flowers.

These may be somewhat "washed out" if exceptionally heavy rains occur, but more buds will normally develop and open throughout normal winters.

It will be noted that these pansies are not "leftovers" from summer, but newly-raised healthy youngsters grown outdoors in the open to give their best during the cooler months.

Any of us could have similar plants to put out now with our tulips bulbs and wallflowers if we had sown the clear crystals pansy seed in early August. If we want some now for winter sunny spots, I found one source of supply. There may be others.

I can imagine these blue pansies being charming companions for the creamy yellow winter crocus 'cream beauty', or for the deeper purple and lilac of the late November blooming c. imperati and c. medius.

One detects the ancestry of the hardier viola in this strain, which makes them better performers in cool weather than in the heat and dryness of our early-summers.

FIRE CUTS CAIRO'S OPERA

CAIRO (Reuter) — Fire today destroyed Cairo's century-old opera house, built in 1869 to celebrate the opening of the Suez canal.

Despite attempts by firemen from all over the city to quench the flames, watching crowds saw the building crumble into ruins.

Among the crowds were actors and actresses who had stood on its historic stage, many weeping openly. In prerevolutionary Egypt the opera house and opera square were the scene of many fashionable gatherings.

An immediate investigation was ordered. No injuries were reported. The opera house was believed deserted when the fire started.

Karpin on Bridge

BY FRED KARPIN

To the expert, East's defense against South's game contract in today's deal might be considered automatic or routine. But, in my opinion, had this deal arisen in a non-expert game, declarer would in all probability have fulfilled his contract. The hand came up in an expert rubber bridge game. Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♡	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
2◇	2♠	3◇	4♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♡.

After East had captured the opening lead with the ace of hearts, he led his singleton three of clubs, dummy's nine-spot winning. When the nine of spades was led next off the board, East climbed right up with his ace, to return the deuce of diamonds. Upon taking this trick with his king, West promptly returned a club, which East ruffed for the setting trick.

East's timely defence was well-reasoned. Upon gazing at dummy after he had won the opening lead, it was perfectly obvious that the defenders were going to make no more heart tricks. And the trump suit offered no hope. Nor was there any chance of the defenders obtaining any high-card club tricks, what with dummy's club suit staring East in the face.

Thus East turned his attention to the diamond suit. If South happened to possess the diamond king, then all East-West could make in that suit would be one diamond trick. If South had this key card, then his contract figured to be unbeatable.

So, as East viewed the set-up, if the four-spade contract were to be defeated, West had to have the diamond king. Actually, this was a most likely possibility, based on West's voluntary raise to three diamonds.

Operating on the assumption that West did possess the diamond king, East led his singleton club at trick two, knowing that he would shortly regain the lead with his ace of trumps. When this occurred one trick later, East led a low diamond, underleading his ace to West's hoped-for king.

West, upon capturing this trick with the king, had no difficulty in diagnosing that East had been dealt a singleton club. And so West played back a club; East ruffing.

It is apparent, of course, that if East had cashed the diamond ace, and then led a second diamond, West would never have gotten the chance to give East a club ruff.

In the same period in 1970, landings were valued at $7.7 million with the total to Sept. 30 reaching $55.3 million.

SHY BOB SPURNS A KISS

TORONTO (CP) — "Kiss him, kiss him!" shouted the photographers when two prominent Nova Scotians met Wednesday night at a downtown hotel.

During her act, singer Anne Murray turned the spotlight on Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield suggesting: "Perhaps we know his name best from the (family company) underwear."

Then Mr. Stanfield met her backstage and presented her with a bound copy of a humerous speech he made to the Variety Club.

"It was my only contribution to show business—one day it will be worth millions," he said.

The photographers kept asking for the kiss and the Opposition leader tried to change the subject.

"How do you know about my underwear?" he asked.

"I have five brothers," said the singer.

AUTOGRAPHS PICTURE

"Robert Stanfield, next prime minister of Canada . . ." he began.

"I've added a question mark," said Miss Murray.

She started to finish the message, looked up at the Opposition leader and said "perhaps I shouldn't say that, your wife might not like it."

Saigon Frees 618 Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government announced today its biggest prisoner release of the Vietnam war, raising cautious hopes that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong would reciprocate.

The defence ministry said 618 "repentant" Viet Cong will be freed outright. It said another 2,320 are being accepted into the government's "open arms" program for a brief period of political indoctrination after which they can return to their villages or work for the government in such fields as propaganda, psychological warfare and intelligence gathering.

A communique said the prisoners are being granted amnesty to mark the inauguration Sunday of President Nguyen Van Thieu and South Vietnam's independence day anniversary Monday.

TWO IN CHINA

Sources at the presidential palace said earlier that Thieu would make a new appeal for peace Monday. Some reports said this would be a new initiative, while other sources indicated it would contain a renewal of earlier calls for an immediate ceasefire as the first step toward a settlement.

The South Vietnamese hold about 36,000 prisoners of war, a little more than 8,000 of them North Vietnamese. The U.S. defence department lists 462 known American prisoners of war—378 in North Vietnam, 79 in South Vietnam, three in Laos and two in China. Another 1,176 Americans are listed as missing in action.

Hopes for prisoner exchanges were given impetus three weeks ago when the Viet Cong released the first American it has set free in nearly two years, Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., of Warren, Mich. The Viet Cong indicated they would welcome reciprocal action, and three days later South Vietnam freed a North Vietnamese.

The Chicago Tribune reported today that some Republican senators in Washington told The Tribune that officials of the Nixon administration told them Fitzsimons General Hospital in Denver had been placed on the alert to handle up to 200 returning U.S. prisoners soon. The White House, the Pentagon and the hospital all denied that any such alert had been issued.

The Saigon defence ministry said 442 of the prisoners to be released Sunday are "in good health" while 176 are disabled. They will be freed in small groups all over the country, said Lt.-Col. Du Thanh Nhut, chief spokesman for the ministry.

Vietnam GIs Warned Away

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command ordered American troops in Vietnam today on an increased alert for the weekend in anticipation of Viet Cong attacks during the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The alert is also intended to keep the 202,000 American troops away from any hostile demonstrations by anti-Thieu forces who blame the United States for his unopposed re-election.

Under the alert, U.S. troops can enter cities or towns only on essential official business, and vehicle movement outside U.S. installations is limited to essential travel.

The U.S. announced seven Americans were killed in combat in Vietnam last week, the third week in succession that less than 10 were killed. The level is the lowest in six years.

The South Vietnamese command reported 394 government troops were killed and the two allied commands claimed 1,271 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

Regan Firms Oil Stand

HALIFAX (CP) — Premier Gerald Regan said Wednesday night that Nova Scotia had two strong arguments in its claim of 100 per cent ownership of offshore mineral rights, including those around Sable Island.

The premier said that even if the Supreme Court of Canada ruled that Sable Island belonged to the federal government under Schedule B of the British North America Act, the province still would be able to claim jurisdiction.

But the premier said Section 109 of the act says each province shall continue to hold the mines, minerals and resources it owned before Confederation.

Mr. Regan, addressing the annual meeting of municipal finance officers, said that with the exception of Sable, all the items mentioned in Schedule B of the act were "chattels," movable possessions.

He said he had consulted the best lawyers in Canada and they say "Nova Scotia would own Sable on that argument."

Freddy Just Blew His Stack

MONTREAL (CP) — A man was rescued from a chimney by firemen Wednesday night after spending three hours "without enough air to keep a cat alive."

Police said Freddy Steele, 26, fell to the bottom of the chimney after police came to his home to question him.

It took firemen more than two hours to chop through a kitchen wall, give him oxygen and take him to hospital where he was reported in fair condition.

A detective said: "We were going to ask him some questions—just some questions."

In the meantime, Mr. Steele disappeared and the warrant-equipped police gave up their search.

OTTAWA PLEDGES MORE ART SUPPORT

OTTAWA (CP) — A more stable financial future seems in sight for large Canadian performing arts organizations struggling to rid themselves of deficits built up over the years, says the Canada Council.

The council, which pumped about $350,000 into these organizations during the 1970 fiscal year, notes in its annual report released Thursday that they operate in a field where excellence does not necessarily guarantee satisfactory box-office revenues.

The council's contributions, made in the form of special grants, have been supplemented by a total of $1,120,000 in contributions from Ontario, British Columbia and Nova Scotia to organizations in these provinces.

The council has spoken for years about the deficit problem and agreed in 1969 to help cut the deficits. But it imposed certain new subsidy conditions on the organizations as well.

The report shows that the council, which aids the development of the arts, social sciences and humanities in Canada, spent $32.6 million in 1970-71 compared with $30 million the previous year. Its budget for this year is $34.9 million.

The largest expenditure for 1970-71 was $19.4 million in support of the humanities and social sciences. A total of $10.4 million was spent for the arts program.

CULTURAL EXCHANGES

The external affairs department allotted $910,000 to the council to administer a program of cultural exchanges with other countries.

The council was again able to give awards to more experienced artists during the year, a program cut out briefly for austerity reasons.

This year the council plans to launch a program of project cost grants, a new kind of assistance to individual artists. They will be able to request up to $1,000 for such purposes as temporary rental of studio space, technical aid and library fees.

"The new program should help some artists solve some of their immediate problems, but we are very aware that many more difficulties remain," the council said.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness, for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Dangers of Gonorrhea

Keep reading medical journal articles written by public health experts who are much worried about the gonorrhea which is now an epidemic, especially in high schools and colleges. Many of the young victims of the disease seem to look on it much as they would a cold, but it can do the body much harm. I remember one of my college chums who got a "dose" that caused him to suffer for years from prostatic inflammation. This left him sterile (unable to produce a child), and for a while he suffered from much pain in his abdomen and in one knee joint. For a while, he could not urinate with comfort, and for years he was very distressed as a result of the gonorrhea.

He caught the disease from a very nice young woman who had been deserted by her husband. Later I learned from a physician friend that the woman's husband had dissappeared because he had been "cheating" on her and had discovered that his mistress had infected him. Rather than confess his misdemeanors to his wife, he had "taken French leave."

One of the greatest problems in controlling gonorrhea is that many times a woman does not get enough symptoms to tell her that she has been infected and she could injure any man who might have sexual relations with her. I have seen many such women who suffered from abdominal pain and became sterile. The two Fallopian tubes that run out from the top of the womb toward the ovaries plug up with the infection.

According to health authorites, since 1965 the incidence of gonorrhea has gone up 15 per cent a year. In the year ending June 30, 1970, the disease was reported to have attacked 573,000 people, but we must remember that these were only the cases reported by physicians. Because so many physicians do not report the cases, the men in the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta estimate that at least two million people contracted the disease in 1970. The authorities say that 80 or 90 per cent of women with the disease do not show symptoms, and hence remain untreated. Naturally, they cause thousands of men to get infected.

For years after 1943, when penicillin became available, it was so easy to cure gonorrhea that people lost their fear of the disease. Then disaster came because the germ that causes gonorrhea became resistant to penicillin.

Now I am glad to read that a new type of antibiotic called Trobicin has been found which is said to quickly cure 96 per cent of cases. The usual dose for men is one injection of 2 grams; for women the dose is 4 grams.

For a while, the antibiotic tetracycline was used in cases where penicillin did not help; but then the germ became resistant to that drug also. There is a chance that someday the germ will also become resistant to Trobicin, and then another antibiotic will have to be found.

In a man, the symptoms of gonorrhea are quite easily recognized. Perhaps the man will have pain and discomfort when he urinates, and an irritating, pus-like discharge will develop and continue for several days or even weeks. But with the end of the discharge comes the end of any recognizable symptom. If he does not go right away for treatment he may later develop the symptoms that I saw so often before the coming of antibiotics — sterility due to scar tissue that blocks the seminal duct (the tube through which the sperm join with the liquid part of the semen). he may suffer for years from pain and difficulty in urinating, and a long time later he may possibly suffer from an arthritic condition.

JOBS, TRAINING TO OFFSET IMBALANCE IN NORTHLAND

Canada is going to have to train and provide jobs for Eskimos and Indians living in the north, says the armed forces' top man in the Canadian Arctic.

Here on a visit from Yellowknife, Brig.-Gen. Ramsey Withers, said Wednesday better health care, education and housing has resulted in an imbalance in the north.

"The net results are an increase in the birth rate while the death rate has fallen. You can't increase the population and expect to have it live by the old ways (hunting.)

"Northerners will have to be trained to be capable of filling vacancies in the south."

YOUNGEST

At 41, Withers is Canada's youngest general and heads the new Canadian Forces northern region.

He said about 100 "northerners — I don't like to use Eskimo or Indian — there are whites who were brought up there, too" have joined the forces since a new recruiting program began six months ago.

Others have joined the Canadian Ranger program, a militia organization which began about 25 years ago.

A study of the ranger program is under way and will be completed by December.

TALENT, ABILITY

"We recognize the talent and ability of the rangers and want to make an awful lot better use of it."

Withers said regulations are being prepared in Ottawa that will co-ordinate all activity in the north — including the military. These will come into effect Nov. 15.

Withers heads a force of about 500 men in the north, this being augmented by pilots and other personnel stationed in other parts of Canada, who fly north to make surveillance patrols and carry out other duties.

He said his men were all "hand-picked" and there is a waiting list of others who want to head north.

EXCITING PLACE

The north is an exciting virile place, suited to people who respect the rights of the individual, he said.

"Every man has his respect and is important for what he does."

With winters that begin in October and end in April, bringing a steady diet of 50-below temperatures, Withers warns that life in the north "is no bed of roses."

He adds, "But life in the cities of the south is no bed of roses either."

Confirmed Delivery Plan Among Postal Innovations

REGINA (CP) — Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote announced four new postal services Wednesday night, including a method of informing senders that their mail has reached its destination.

In a speech to the Canadian Postmasters Association, Cote said the post office will soon introduce a new form of air letter, a new courier-type service, expansion of the new Postpak system by which mail is shipped in bag lots, and a confirmed-delivery program.

Cote said the new air letter — an envelope, letter and stamps all in one piece — will come in "five beautiful designs" and will be sold in plastic packages.

He did not go into detail on the new courier-type service, which he said would allow the post office "to compete with private courier organizations.

The Postpak service now is being used on a limited scale. It provides for mail to be shipped by bags, instead of by individual pieces. The shipper pays for each bag depending on the distance involved. Cote said 73 centres will soon be involved in the system, and eventually it will be expanded to all offices.

"The fourth new service is a system in which the customer on payment of a fee in addition to postage receives confirmation that the item mailed reaches the addressee." The receipt with the addressee's signature will be returned to the sender.

Advisory Group For Travel Set

Federal Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin today announced establishment of an advisory council of representatives from the travel industry to advise federal and provincial governments on tourism.

Pepin said ministers attending the annual federal-provincial tourism conference in Victoria have strongly supported the proposed council, which would give the industry a say in formulating general tourism policy and development.

"This is an adventurous move on our part," he told delegates on the final day of the three-day conference.

NEW CONCEPT

He said the new concept will be spelled out in greater detail later and added "I feel it would be of great benefit to governments to have the views of a widely-representative panel of industry leaders and persons who are keenly interested in the well-being of the country."

The minister explained in an interview the proposal arose out of last year's federal-provincial conference on tourism at Winnipeg.

He said the eight ministers attending the Victoria conference agreed Wednesday the body should be set up, and he hopes for similar support when he approaches the travel ministers of the three provinces not attending — Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Pepin told reporters the council would consist of about 40 members. Of these, 15 would be appointed by the federal trade minister, from such organizations as the Air Transport Association of Canada, Canadian Automobile Association and the Travel Industry Association.

Each province and territory would be represented by two members, drawn from provincial or regional associations within the industry.

He said it was envisaged the council, to be formed "within a few months," would meet two or three times a year, one of the occasions being at the federal-provincial conference.

In his address to the ministers, Pepin also referred to "a major federal tourism policy," incorporating views of governments and the private sector, which now was ready for consideration by the federal government.

He said he hopes to be able to announce details soon, but it is not clear whether this will be in a policy paper or a white paper.

DEVELOP POLICY

Meanwhile, he was urging provincial travel ministers to develop their own statements on tourism policy.

One of the big topics of the conference has been the Explore Canada campaign designed to make people more conscious of their own country's travel and holiday possibilities.

Pepin told ministers today the campaign budget is being increased from $600,000 to $800,000.

He said the travel industry has spent more of its energies sending people out of the country than in creating in-Canada customers, and among the ways of meeting the challenge is to develop more packaged tours.

Developing this point in a news conference Pepin said "unless we can make it possible for people to ski in the Rocky Mountains for the same or less than it costs to go to Switzerland, we are missing the boat."

The minister also announced that the federal budget for the Office of Tourism, created nearly four years ago, will be increased next year by $2.5 million to $13.9 million.

This, he said, would provide "substantially more" funds for research and industry development.

COLD SNAP SNAPS

The weather says warmer air is expected to move in Friday, raising temperatures to the 50s by afternoon.

The thermometer dipped to 25 degrees at Victoria International Airport this morning, within one degree of the all-time record for October, set Oct. 28, 1956.

It was a warmer 33 degrees at Gonzales Hill.

Grant Body Meets Here

The Canada Council meets in Victoria and Vancouver this weekend, one of six meetings scheduled this year to set policy and make grants in the arts, humanities and social sciences.

The meetings are normally held in Ottawa, but once a year the council convenes in other cities to give its members a first-hand view of the region's cultural, artistic and university life.

The council was created by Parliament in 1957. Its budget for 1970-71 is $34.9 million.

Sewer Pipe Lowered Into Place

Lowering of 200 feet of sewer outfall pipe into 200 feet of water off Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, was to have started this afternoon.

The pipe will replace the 200 feet which came away from the new outfall last December.

With the final piece in place, the outfall will be 6,100 feet long.

Sewage is being discharged through a 1,000-foot bypass on the outfall while work is in progress.

If calm weather prevailed, the lowering operation was expected to take between two and four hours. The pipe will then be joined to the rest of the outfall and all the work should be finished by Saturday.

Escapees Caught

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Milton Paton, 53, of Vancouver, who escaped Tuesday from Agassiz Mountain prison was captured by police here today.

Masin Everett Collins, 22, who escaped with Paton, was picked up by police at Agassiz Wednesday.

3,000 OUT FOR UNICEF

More than 3,000 children will make door-to-door calls on Halloween to collect pennies for the United Nations International Children Emergency Fund.

They will be carrying-gooorange and black boxes. Returns will be used to assist less fortunate children in underdeveloped nations.

Charges Quashed

OTTAWA (CP) — Charges of false advertising against three instant-coffee producers were thrown out in provincial criminal court today. Nestle Canada Ltd., General Foods Ltd. and Standard Brands Ltd. were accused in relation to labels reading "10 cents off" and "20 cents off" attached to jars of instant coffee sold in the Ottawa region in 1969 and 1970.

Youth Band Cancels Concert

A shortage of brass musicians has forced the Victoria City Police Youth Band to cancel its first concert of the season at the McPherson Playhouse Nov. 6.

The band practices Sundays at 10:30 a.m. and Tuesdays at 7 p.m. in the Fraser Street Hall in Esquimalt. Brass players aged from 18 to 24 years are invited.

Tax Bill Creeps Along

By DOUG SMALL

OTTAWA (CP) — After 20 days of debate, the government made a little headway with its 707-page tax bill Wednesday as the Commons approved provisions increasing tax exemptions and deductions.

Passage of a sub-clause raising to $1,500 from $1,000 the amount a single taxpayer could earn without paying tax and to $2,850 from $2,000 the exempt amount for married couples followed bitter opposition complaints that the amounts were frugal.

Social Credit members said single Canadians should be able to earn $3,000 without paying tax, married couples $5,000. New Democrats said the amounts should be $2,000 and $4,000. The government has said that would be too costly.

FEW CHANGES

The sub-clause increasing the amount a taxpayer can claim for charitable donations to 20 per cent of his income from 10 per cent and other deductible items passed with only two minor amendments.

One would permit partners in a firm the right to deduct charitable donations made by the partnership. The other would clarify a measure permitting ambulance expenses as a medical cost for tax deduction purposes.

New Democrats John Burton (Regina East) and Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) said there was little reason that workers should be strapped to the same allowance —$150 or three per cent of total incomes—for tools or special equipment as those in higher tax brackets.

Workers often have expenses for tools that run much higher, Mr. Knowles said. It was a big joke that deputy ministers and Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, could claim the same deduction.

UNIFORM EXPENSES

Social Crediter Roland Godin (Portneuf) said members of the CBC French network were allowed $65 a day for expenses when they travelled.

But a man in his riding near Quebec City, who had to work 265 days a year in Montreal, could only claim $1.70 of $2.60 for meals a day.

Skyjack Victims Back Safe

SAN JUAN (AP) — The passengers and most of the crew of the hijacked American Airlines 747 jumbo jet arrived in this Puerto Rican city Wednesday night, and one of them who witnessed the hijacking said at no time did he see any action from the three sky marshals or the off-duty FBI man who were aboard.

Marvin W. Schwartz, a free-lance photographer from New York, said the first he knew that any such protection was aboard was after the landing at Havana. He said a voice called over the loudspeaker for the federal agents to come forward, but "no one made a move."

Two American jetliners sent to Havana Wednesday afternoon brought 230 passengers and seven crew members to San Juan. They appeared in good health and lively spirits after their two-day detour through Cuba.

Schwartz said the hijack took place about 40 minutes after the plane took off from New York Monday night for Puerto Rico. He said the hijacker was about 25 years old. He said he tried to speak to the man in English and Spanish, but got only the clipped reply: "I don't want to say anything."

Enrique Burgos, a San Juan lawyer aboard the flight, said the hijacker was "a Puerto Rican who couldn't find work in New York."

Schwartz said he was about four feet from the stewardess who was taken hostage. He said the hijacker held a fountain pen under a blanket and told the girl he wanted to go to Havana.

Judges Reject Amchitka Stay

Times News Services

Virtually the last chance to halt the planned nuclear blast on Amchitka Island fell through today when a three-judge federal tribunal in Washington refused to grant a stay against the five-megaton explosion.

The U.S. Court of Appeals referred the matter to a lower court where lawyers for environmental groups opposing the blast will now have to seek an immediate appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court to gain a reversal of Nixon's Wednesday decision to go ahead with the blast.

One Question Considered

In refusing to grant an immediate stay against the blast, the appeals court said it was dealing only with the question of whether the government should be obliged to make public information conservationists claim would indicate environmental dangers from the explosion.

Meanwhile at the United Nations, Canada protested today the "poisonous, dangerous and in the ultimate futile" nuclear testing by the superpowers.

Speaking in the General Assembly's main political committee, Paul St. Pierre, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, was referring specifically to Amchitka.

But his remarks took in the Soviet Union, France and China in a general condemnation of nuclear tests.

"We cannot find security in this narrow world of ours without an end to nuclear tests."

He said Canada was naturally concerned about Amchitka, because the effects could reach Canadian soil. But Canada since 1945 has been seeking an end to all nuclear tests and would continue to do so.

Blast Called Risky

The Amchitka test could come about without ill effects, but nobody could deny that risks of atmospheric poisoning are there.

St. Pierre mentioned that three of the five nuclear weapons powers had adopted a partial nuclear-test-ban treaty which outlawed tests in the atmosphere, oceans and space. It was a less than perfect document but it represented some progress.

"Today we may wonder if it and a non-proliferation treaty may not have induced a false sense of security in the people of the world and among us here.

"Nuclear weapons testing continues. It continues at what seems to be an accelerated pace. It has largely been driven underground but all too often not completely underground."

He said that if the Aleutians explosions send radioactive material into Canada it would be a violation of the test ban treaty.

Only recently the Soviet Union had conducted a major test and now the U.S. plans one, he said. Previously France and China had exploded devices in the atmosphere, and radioactive poisons from the Chinese test had spread over Canada.

No Sign of China Stopping

There was no indication that China was going to stop its testing, he added.

St. Pierre was speaking during consideration of an item dealing with international security. The item was proposed by the Soviet Union as a vehicle for Soviet and Arab points of view, but it provides a forum for anybody to say virtually anything.

Thus Canada quickly inscribed its name on the list of speakers after it was announced in Washington that the Amchitka test was on.

This is the second time that Canada has protested here about the proposed Amchitka test. Sharp protested both Soviet and U.S. tests in his speech at the opening of the General Assembly.

St. Pierre, a Chilcotin Liberal, said the question of international security transcends traditional concepts about security of states.

"It is well known, for example, that certain inherently dangerous objects such as a nuclear-powered vessel, or an object launched into outer space, or a loaded and unseaworthy tanker, may pose a more serious threat to the security of a coastal state than a gunboat," he said.

"The concept of the protection of the territorial integrity of states in the charter must in the contemporary world be viewed as subsuming the new threat posed by technology to the environment beyond national juridiction."

St. Pierre spared only Britain among the nuclear powers.

He said:

"The Amchitka test, of course, is not unique. In the present state of affairs it cannot be called unexpected. Nuclear arms will proliferate and underground tests will continue as long as nations fear that their rivals are sur-

NO NASTY SMIRKS USING THIS PHONE

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Robert Stanbury Wednesday launched an experimental picturephone service from his Parliament Hill office to the communications department.

The picturephone is a combined television camera and screen equipped with a dial and buttons to adjust the camera. There is also a privacy button which would allow the hearer to listen privately on a nearby telephone receiver.

Bell Canada has installed two sets costing $2,500 each with a monthly rental of $150. The sets have five-inch-square screens.

The communications department wants to try the system for six months to see how useful it is and to test the reaction of users, the minister said.

Majority Seen For Market Bid

LONDON (CP) — Ten years of monumental effort to gain British membership in the European Common Market reach a historic climax tonight with a crucial Commons vote on the hotly-contested issue.

There appeared little doubt a comfortable majority will support the principle of entry on terms negotiated by the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath.

This would mean that for the first time in a decade nothing stands in the way of British membership in Europe except parliamentary approval of enabling legislation to be introduced later.

The vote, set for 2 p.m. PDT, comes at the end of a six-day debate which saw a succession of late-night House sittings, some sparkling rhetoric and bitter political infighting.

Most newspapers today gave Heath, who has staked his political future largely on the Market issue, a majority of 50 to 70 MPs in the 630-seat Commons.

The Common Market bands together France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg in a customs union in which the main barriers to the free flow of internal trade have been dismantled.

The entry terms have torn deep divisions in the Opposition Labor party, caused a small number of Tory MPs to bolt party lines and have apparently not been convincing to the British public.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pay Hike Agreed

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP) — The Williams Lake School District and 269 teachers in the district have ratified a wage agreement calling for a 7.7 per cent wage increase for teachers. The agreement was reached before the announcement Tuesday by Education Minister Donald Brothers that the province would not share costs of pay raises beyond 6.5 per cent.

Villagers Moved

LAS PALMAS, Spain (UPI) — Two thousand villagers have been evacuated from the southern tip of La Palma Island where a two-day-old volcano eruption was raging without signs of relenting, officials said today.

Island Quakes

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (Reuter) — One person was killed and many injured by a severe earthquake which today shook the town of Santo, on Espiritu Santo Island in the Franco-British New Hebrides, official sources said.

Cambodia Grant

PHNOM PEN — Cambodia will receive a $20 million cash grant from the U.S. to replenish its depleted foreign exchange reserves, government sources said Wednesday night. The agreement was not announced officially, but American sources confirmed that it has been signed by U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank. Sok Chhong, Cambodia's top economic official, scheduled a news conference for Thursday morning to discuss the grant.

China Date Stall

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will make his trip to mainland China sometime after Jan. 1, with the exact date to be announced next month. Setting the trip in 1972 does not mean delay in Nixon's schedule, Henry Kissinger, the president's national security adviser, said.

'Stop Tough Talk'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might be able to help the U.S. with its trades balance problem if the U.S. were to become more co-operative and avoid handing down ultimatums, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday.

Sharp was questioned in the commons by NDP Leader David Lewis about a television appearance he made on a U.S. network Tuesday.

The minister said his message in the broadcast had been that the U.S. balance-of-payments problem would not be solved by the U.S. government saying to Canada: "Here is a surcharge which will remain on until you do such and such."

Canada has been subject to the 10-per-cent additional U.S. tax on imports announced by President Nixon on August 15, despite appeals for exemption.

Senior U.S. government officials have said that Canada should agree to alterations of the Canadian-U.S. auto pact and the defence production sharing agreement, among other things, that would shift the balance of trade between the two countries in favor of the U.S.

SITUATION DIFFICULT

But Sharp would say only that it was difficult to resolve economic problems on the basis of an ultimatum — a "sphere of friendship and co-operation" was needed.

In Chicago, U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans told a news conference that results of the 10-per-cent extra charge on dutiable imports "have been exaggerated in the rhetoric of negotiation by affected countries."

He cited Canada as an example, saying half of its exports to the U.S. are not affected and other Canadian items produced at a cost of more than 10 per cent under the U.S. cost would continue flowing into the U.S. market.

All told, about 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the U.S. are affected by the surcharge.

TRADE SURPLUS

In Washington, the government reported a trade surplus of $265.4 million in September after four consecutive months of deficits.

The report said U.S. exports totalled $4.51 billion while imports were valued at $4.25 billion. The figures did not include U.S. military expenditures abroad, which normally offset any trade surpluses.

Assistant commerce secretary Harold Passer said that because of distortions due to the dock strikes, the full impact is still not evident from the 10 per cent U.S. import surcharge, changes in exchange rates and the shift to floating rates of exchange of the dollar.

U.K. Troops Forced To Halt Detonation

Times News Services

BELFAST (UPI) — Irish Republic troops with submachineguns at the ready forced British troops today to abandon explosive charges they had planted on a bridge at the border of Ireland and Northern Ireland.

No shots were exchanged in this 90-minute confrontation described by British military spokesmen as the most serious in recent memory. There was no immediate word as to how many troops were involved on both sides.

PROTEST MADE

A British army spokesman said a British patrol was laying explosive charges to blow up a cross-border bridge at Munnelly, near Roslea, in county fermanagh. Irish police protested, saying the bridge was at least half in the Irish Republic, and called the Irish army.

The Irish army arrived and took up firing positions along the southern side. An Irish army spokesman said: "The army stood by to render any assistance to the police." A British army spokesman added: "I would imagine our chaps would have kept the other side covered."

The British army has been destroying bridges and roads near the border to prevent arms and other supplies from reaching men of the outlawed Irish Republican Army which is blamed for much of the violence in the north.

The British spokesman said the local Irish and British commanders discussed the situation and examined local army ordinance maps. The British unit then withdrew the charges it had placed on the north side of the bridge but left charges on the south end under guard.

Meanwhile a Roman Catholic joined Northern Ireland's cabinet for the first time Wednesday night with an appeal for peace. A few hours later, a police officer and a British soldier were killed and the army claimed at least six guerrillas were shot in a gun battle.

Prime Minister Brian Faulkner appointed Dr. Gerard Newe, 64-year-old specialist in social work, as a minister of state in an attempt to reach out to the Catholic minority.

The toll of known deaths in the communal warfare rose to 139 in the last two years, including 31 British soldiers this year.

SHOOT SIX SNIPERS

After an eight-hour, house-to-house gun fight in West Belfast during the night, military headquarters reported troops hit at least six guerrilla snipers. But the dead or wounded were dragged away into the darkness by their comrades, the army said.

Early today, raiders ambushed a police car driving along the northern shore of Lough Neagh a few miles from Belfast.

U.S. Holds Back Budget for UN

UNITED NATIONS (WP) — The United States has withdrawn its 1972 United Nations budget until it decides how to react to the general assembly's expulsion of Taiwan, a U.S. spokesman said Wednesday.

Rep. Edward Derwinski (R-Ill.), a member of the U.S. delegation, was to have outlined U.S. plans to the assembly's fifth (financial) committee. He decided to wait until "after the dust has settled," according to Nicholas King, the spokesman.

Congressional and White House pronouncements have raised the possibility of reductions in U.S. financial support of the United Nations, both on general principles and specifically because the assembly adopted the Albanian proposal to seat Peking and expel "the representatives of Chiang Kai-shek", rather than the U.S. proposal for dual representation of Peking and Taiwan.

Any cuts in the U.S. contribution will have a profound effect because the United Nations is on the verge of bankruptcy and frequently can pay its staff only by collecting voluntary or advance contributions from states that want to prevent the organization from going under.

The United Nations needs between $52.5 million and $69.9 million in voluntary contributions — beyond yearly assessments — to settle its current deficit, Ambassador Edvard Hambro of Norway told the fifth committee last week.

Advisers to India

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Soviet Union, in an apparent attempt to strengthen the Indian armed forces in their confrontation with Pakistan, is sending a high-ranking military delegation Friday to study India's latest defence requirements, authoritative Indian sources said today.

NFLD. VOTING HEAVY

ST. JOHN'S — Voting was reported heavy in the early hours of polling in today's Newfoundland election.

A record 265,000 are eligible to vote, including 19- and 20-year-olds for the first time.

Of the 42 seats at stake the Liberals hold 25, the Progressive Conservatives 7, independents 3, and 7 are vacant.

There are 108 candidates in the running, with both Grits and Tories running full slates and the New Democratic Party fielding 17.

Considerable interest is centred on the three Labrador seats, all being contested by the New Labrador Party under former Liberal Tom Burgess.

Polls close at 3:30 p.m. Victoria time and first returns are expected shortly afterward.

GREENPEACE TOO SAILS TONIGHT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A crew of up to 30 protesters are to sail for Amchitka tonight aboard a former minesweeper dubbed Greenpeace Two for its last-minute race to beat the Nov. 4 date for a United States nuclear test on the Aleutian island.

The Don't Make A Wave Committee chartered the 154-foot Edgewater Fortune Wednesday after U.S. President Richard Nixon gave the Atomic Energy Commission approval for the five-megaton blast.

The new protest group hopes to meet the original Greenpeace mission aboard the 71-foot halibut boat Phyllis Cormack, at Alert Bay to take aboard some of its crew.

The first mission, which sailed from Vancouver Sept. 15, was short of fuel and provisions and turned back when it became apparent that the blast would not be set off in October. The Phyllis Cormack was sailing south from Prince Rupert Wednesday when it received word that the un-

Regional Takeover Urged for Water

A notice of motion that the Capital Regional District Board take over operations of the Greater Victoria Water District was served Wednesday night by Howard Elder, the board's Sooke representative.

In his motion, which will come up for discussion at the next board meeting, Elder maintained that the supply of water is essentially a regional function and noted that a large portion of the region is not represented on the water district board.

Elder told board directors "misleading information" has been circulated in regard to the water board's plans to replace Sooke's water supply line from Sooke Lake with a pumping station on the lower reaches of the Sooke River.

He said such misinformation would never occur if it went through the regional board.

Regional takeover of the water supply has been discussed before, but Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria, which control the water board, and which benefit primarily from the Sooke Lake supply, have opposed any such move. North and Central Saanich, for instance, draw their water from Elk Lake and Sidney depends on wells.

Sooke residents are protesting the new water project because they say the Sooke River is polluted and that they have historic rights to be supplied with the pure water from Sooke Lake.

THICK BRUSH

Speaking as a member of a Sooke committee protesting the proposed new water source, Elder charged that water commissioner Ron Upward had made misleading statements to the press and was allowing the present pipeline to deteriorate.

Following an Upward report last week that some leakage had been caused by a theft of hoops on the line, Elder inspected the entire 17-mile length of the pipe on a hike Sunday.

Elder said he found sections of the pipe which were deteriorating because "they lacked routine tar-brushing. He also found about 15 pinhole leads in joints and noted that the brush wasso th ick over some parts of the pipe that it was impossible to walk through.

Elder said he found no leakage, however, at the wood siphon sections where the hoops were stolen. He said the water pressure is so low at these points that the theft of all the hoops would probably not affect the pipe at all.

Elder also challenged Upward's statement that cost of bringing in new hoops would be between $500 and $800.

"I'll be glad to give me the contract I could do it for $100.

"Either Mr. Upward's men are so damn slow or he's trying to show people that maintenance is more expensive than it really is."

Upward has said that the present 55-year-old "wood" pipeline from Sooke Lake is outdated and that replacement of it would cost too much. A new $370,000 pumping house and line, to be located one "mile below the Sooke River potholes, has been approved by the water board and is awaiting provincial government approval.

MEETING

Elder also said that only about 2 per cent of the water line is wood and that the rest is reinforced concrete.

"How can Mr. Upward say that it is wood when he has on his office wall a picture of the casting yards, where the pipeline was made?"

A protest meeting will be held Monday night in Sooke Community Hall at which Upward will be present.

"The cost of amortization of Upward's pump-house investment would probably be more than necessary to maintain tion over the next 20 years." Elder said.

Witchever the Night Get the Treats Ready

Is Halloween going to be Saturday night or Sunday night? Or even — perish the thought — both?

The question is bewitching Greater Victoria as much as the rest of Canada, but no one seems sure of the answer.

Officially, the spectral eve falls on Sunday this year, for the first time since 1965, but many municipalities have declared Saturday as Hallowe'en.

Of the four core municipalities in Greater Victoria only Oak Bay has ruled on the matter — in favor of Sunday.

However, all community bonfires in the area will be crackling on Sunday night, so indications, are that's when the scores of mini-witches, goblins, spooks and other assorted small figures will be making their rounds.

NO GUARANTEE

This is no guarantee there won't be any cries of "trick or treat" on Saturday, and some stores today were reporting heavier-than-usual demand for jumbo packs of candy.

"People seem to be laying in extra . . . just in case," said one salesgirl.

To the police, the general confusion merely means the potential for trouble on two nights instead of one.

Saanich police chief Bert Pearson, who last year termed Halloween "a ridiculous holiday" and said it should be discontinued, hasn't grown any more enthusiastic in the intervening 12 months.

"As far as I'm concerned I'm just waiting for it to die a natural death . . . all aspects of it," he said in an interview.

'LESS TROUBLE'

Victoria police chief Jack Gregory views the occasion less seriously, but admits: "If they (the children) were to stay home both Saturday and Sunday night there would be less trouble."

Four youngsters who will be trick-or-treating regardless, Victoria police advise wearing light-colored clothing so they can be seen by motorists, and make-up instead of vision-obscuring masks.

Toddlers should be accompanied by an adult or responsible older child, say the police.

BONFIRES SLATED

The community bon fires Sunday night will be:

- In Saanich, at the Cedar Hill golf course, organized by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich; and at Lambrick Park, organized by the Kinsmen Club of Saanich as their first community project.
- In Esquimalt, at Fleming Beach and Kinsmen Gorge Park, both sponsored by Esquimalt Lions; and in the Work Point barracks area (Work Point Community Council).
- In Oak Bay, the traditional bonfire celebrations staged by the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club and Oak Bay Fire department, near the fire department building.
- In Central Saanich, the Saanich Community Club and Central Saanich volunteer fire department bonfire near the Agriculture Hall.
- In Sidney, at Tulista Park, organized by Sidney volunteer fire department and Sidney recreation commission.
- In View Royal, at Centennial Park (View Royal volunteer fire department).
- In Langford, at Centennial Park (Langford volunteer fire department).

FIRECRACKERS BANNED

Sale, purchase and distribution of firecrackers — the ones which go bang — are prohibited on southern Vancouver Island by the Capital Regional District.

However, organizations can apply for a special permit to discharge firecrackers by going to police chiefs in municipalities, or the RCMP in the unorganized areas.

DEMOCRACY'S RECIPE A LITTLE DEFICIENT

—It was being billed as a slightly historic occasion: the first ever meeting of the Capital Regional District Board outside its Bastion Square offices.

It was a chance for the board to really get out and meet the people, to show them democracy in action, and all that.

Only one ingredient was missing at the meeting at Elizabeth Fisher School Wednesday night: the people.

Only 31 turned out and chairman Hugh Curtis, mayor of Saanich, said most of them were "familiar" faces.

Chairman of the Glanford Chamber of Community Opinion, Aubrey Jenkins, said he phoned 20 chamber members, advising them not to attend since spectators cannot speak until invited.

Curtis said this is done to avoid meetings becoming free-for-alls.

No Nominations For Board Seats

With the deadline for nominations a month away, no one has filed papers for the seven directorships on the Capital Regional District board from the unorganized areas.

Terms of all seven directors expire at the end of the year. Deadline for nominations is Nov. 29 and election day is Dec. 11.

View Royal ratepayers will be voting on a $7.6m sewerage referendum study and expenditure of $1,500 a year on maintenance of Heimcken Centennial Park. Salt Spring Island residents will be voting on a school activity centre.

Areas and present directors are:

Ill Diver Rushed To Navy Chamber

A diver who became ill Wednesday while trying to salvage a sunken fish boat near Brotchie Ledge was rushed to the navy's decompression chamber at Colwood.

The incident occurred about 10:25 a.m. when Tom Lindberg, 27, of Richmond, surfaced after working at a depth of 50 to 55 feet. He had been trying to attach an anchor cable to the 20-foot troller Glen A, which swamped Nov. 13 just outside the Inner Harbor.

After almost two hours in the decompression chamber, Lindberg was taken to the Royal Jubilee Hospital. X-rayed, kept under observation and later released.

Hospital Workers Seek Certification

The recently-formed Health Sciences Association, a new union which expressly forbids strikes, has 50 certification applications before the Labor Relations Board, a spokesman said today.

Terrence Wolfe, Vancouver lawyer and association spokesman, said about 2,000 employees are involved in the applications including groups of employees within Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals in Victoria.

The association takes in para-medical employees such as physiotherapists, medical records librarians, dieticians, medical social workers, pharmacists, occupational therapists, remedial gymnasts and X-ray and laboratory technicians.

CERTIFICATION

The Labor Relations Board has already granted certification to the association for 225 employees at Lion's Gate and St. Paul's hospitals in Vancouver.

Wolfe said in an interview from Vancouver the para-medical employees appeared to come within the certification of the Hospital Employees' Union but "until last year they never attempted to bargain for them" although some of the occupational classifications were listed in HEU contracts.

NO PROVISION

He said the certification application at St. Joseph's Hospital does not include X-ray and laboratory technicians, now under HEU.

Wolfe said there is a no-strike provision in the Health Sciences Association constitution and he didn't think there will be difficulty in getting hospitals to agree to arbitration provisions, which would implement this and prevent lockouts by management.

"We'd rather wipe away this semantic nonsense about right to strike and tell it the way it is," he said. Para-medical employees wouldn't walk out," he added.

He said the association wants its own arbitration, in which each side picks a person under a neutral chairman, and had "no inclination" to go before the B.C. Mediation Commission.

THREE OTHERS

President of the association is Catherine Farrar, a dietician, and secretary-treasurer is Sheila Begg, a physiotherapist, both of Vancouver.

There are three other unions in the hospital field, the Registered Nurses Association of B.C., the International Union of Operating Engineers and the Hospital Employees Union. All three retain the right to strike, all three have conducted strike votes in the past and engineers have gone on strike.

Wolfe asked about registered nurses retaining the right to strike while para-medical employees want it specifically ruled out, said "they have the theoretical right to strike, but no practical right."

'AN UMBELLA'

William Rolfe, director of technical services for the 10,000-member Hospital Employees Union, said his union is opposed to a proliferation of bargaining agents and does not consider Health Sciences Association a union.

He said HSA is "simply an umbrella for other professional associations" and said its constitution would not allow the membership at large to control the association.

He said the people active in forming HSA are supervisors and that HSA has been "encouraged and fostered" by management.

A group which throws out the strike right immediately "is obviously more of an association than a trade union," he said. It weakened its own bargaining position and this could affect other unions, he said.

Technicians Check Ferry After Unloading Mishap

Technicians from Westinghouse Canadian Co. Ltd. are inspecting the hydraulic systems of the B.C.'s Ferry Queen of New Westminster after a car plunged from the ferry's ramp Oct. 20.

Provincial highways official Ray Baines said today it will be some time before the inquiry into the mishap is completed.

Baines said the technicians are "dismantling valves and examining all the equipment."

"But it's going to be some time before the investigation is complete because the ferry is still in service and the work has to be done while she's alongside," he said.

An elderly Alberta couple Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Fort MacLeod, were waiting to disembark at Departure Bay when the ferry moved out, tottering their car into the water.

They were rescued by a ferry patrolman and two bystanders.

CREW QUESTIONED

Martin was released from Nanaimo General Hospital Wednesday and his wife will be leaving hospital "in a day or two," a hospital spokesman said today.

Baines said all the crew members had been questioned and "extra precautions" were being taken to guard against a recurrence.

Asked if it is safe to keep the ferry in operation after no reason had been found for the ferry backing out of the dock while still unloading, Baines said it is.

"We have had several million dockings and this has never happened before."

Baines confirmed that the ferry was not only relying on her reverse propeller action when the Departure Bay incident occurred.

"Lines were also secured but they pulled the stanchions out of the dock. We might have to increase the number of lines and strengthen the stanchions on the dock."

Baines said the findings will be made public when the inquiry has been completed.

Homemade Bombs 'Unstable'

Crude homemade bombs made from such materials as copper tubing are "very unstable" and liable to explode at any time, city police warned today.

Staff-Sgt. Walter Calwell said three such bombs have been used in Victoria bombings in the last month.

He said the home-built explosives were used to blow a hole in the Victoria Lawn Bowling Club green in Beacon Hill Park Oct. 11.

There has also been bombs set in the 600-block Cornwall boulevard and against the gymnasium doors of Blanshard Elementary School.

No one has been injured to date but this could change, the officer said.

Calwell said the bombs have the capacity to blow a person's hand off.

He said the explosives don't have to be lit to go off but can be set off if the chemical ingredients mix a certain way.

He added that police find a home-made bomb in the possession of a youngster Sunday, investigation is continuing, he said.

Calwell described the copper tube bombs as from two to eight inches long with both ends crimped. Some have a hole in the centre for a fuse.

IN SPARE MOMENTS I have been inventing a replacement for my tender-gutted, fuel-drinking, space-taking monster that sits brooding over its aches and pains in a nearby parking lot. It is called an automobile, or more familiarly a car, although there are days when I have other names for it.

The machine I have in mind will run on two wheels, instead of four that wear out their rubber faster than an active small boy can go through shoes.

Instead of a pair of wide seats upholstered like living room couches, it will have one compact saddle. There will be no gas tank, and since its chain-driven gears won't depend on an internal combustion engine for motivation, no exhaust fumes. Maintenance costs will be low, visibility unimpeded, and fearful exercise a by-product of travel.

I am thinking of naming this conveyance a bicycle, or make familiarly a bike.

Admittedly, it won't shelter me from the weather or climb the Malahat at 60 miles an hour. But these minor deficiencies are more than compensated for by other things it won't do.

Or demanding costly tune-ups, deciding to cross its sealed-beam eyes as we stroll along the testing station line, and pulling such low tricks on me as it did the other morning.

We were waiting for a traffic light to change; and I was worrying over a deep-down whunka-whunka-whunka accompanied by the occasional shudder when vapor began to puff from under the hood.

The guy in the next door lane clapped a hand to his forehead — a gesture of sympathy for which I thank him. No doubt he has his automotive troubles too.

I also got sympathy from the radiator expert to whom I delivered my steaming moiat.

This specialist, one of the best required to keep a car in running order, pointed to a top seam apparently sealed with spruce gum, spit and a curling iron by one of a squad of little old ladies retained by the manufacturer for this operation.

As cars go, mine isn't a lemon. In any matching of bills, I expect it wouldn't rate too badly. But like all cars everywhere, it reflects the failure of a long-established industry to advance its product any great distance beyond the pioneering stage.

There are times in fact when I look at my car, or any other for that matter, and wonder if the industry isn't losing ground.

From suspension through power train to ridiculously vulnerable body, the automobile is too complex and too delicate. It has too many parts, practically all of which can get out of whack.

Its life expectancy doesn't justify its original cost to the buyer, or the sums he is doomed to spend if he is to keep it roadworthy.

The buying public cannot escape at least part of the blame for car inadequacies. We have encouraged changes based on styling rather than functionality, and approved the application of horsepower beyond any reasonable need.

Not all of us — the rise of the small and gas-thrifty compact indicates a limited turning away from the concept that biggest is best.

But why, after all these years, are we still burning gasoline to power internal combustion engines?

More to the point, when can we expect something radically new in driver-controlled ground transport, to take over from a vehicle that has abandoned meaningful growth for middle-aged spread?

I am going out to my car now, and I trust it won't take vengeance for these unkind reflections by popping a rear-end seal.

Also, I have changed my mind about the bicycle. Someone has beaten me to that useful invention, which has been taking to the blacktop in every increasing numbers. And automotively speaking no damn wonder!

Ask the Times

Q: When will Easter fall next year — 1972? — J.S.

A: Easter Sunday is April 2, 1972.

Q: John Diefenbaker once stated in the House of Commons that an "overpayment cannot be reclaimed." In view of this can one department of the federal government get repayment for an overpayment by having stoppages made at source from the Old Age Pension of anyone receiving same, or is the Government above the law? — A.B.

A: It can be done under legislation in the Old Age Pension Act. The Financial Administration Act also provides for the recovery of overpayments from source.

Judges Reject Amchitka Stay

Times News Services

Virtually the last chance to halt the planned nuclear blast on Amchitka Island fell through today when a three-judge federal tribunal in Washington refused to grant a stay against the five-megaton explosion.

The U.S. Court of Appeals referred the matter to a lower court where lawyers for environmental groups opposing the blast will now have to seek an immediate appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court to gain a reversal of Nixon's Wednesday decision to go ahead with the blast.

One Question Considered

In refusing to grant an immediate stay against the blast, the appeals court said it was dealing only with the question of whether the government should be obliged to make public information conservationists claim would indicate environmental dangers from the explosion.

Meanwhile at the United Nations Canada protested today the "poisonous, dangerous and in the ultimate futile" nuclear testing by the superpowers.

Speaking in the General Assembly's main political committee, Paul St. Pierre, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, was referring specifically to Amchitka.

But his remarks took in the Soviet Union, France and China in a general condemnation of nuclear tests.

"We cannot find security in this narrow world of ours without an end to nuclear tests."

He said Canada was naturally concerned about Amchitka because the effects could reach Canadian soil. But Canada since 1945 has been seeking an end to all nuclear tests and would continue to do so.

Blast Called Risky

The Amchitka test could come about without ill effects, but nobody could deny that risks of atmospheric poisoning are there.

St. Pierre mentioned that three of the five nuclear weapons powers had adopted a partial nuclear-test-ban treaty which outlawed tests in the atmosphere, oceans and space. It was a less than perfect document but it represented some progress.

"Today we may wonder if it and a non-proliferation treaty may not have induced a false sense of security in the people of the world and among us here.

"Nuclear weapons testing continues. It continues at what seems to be an accelerated pace. It has largely been driven underground but all too often not completely underground."

He said that if the Aleutians explosions send radioactive material into Canada it would be a violation of the test ban treaty.

Only recently the Soviet Union had conducted a major test and now the U.S. plans one, he said. Previously France and China had exploded devices in the atmosphere, and radioactive poisons from the Chinese test had spread over Canada.

No Sign of China Stopping

There was no indication that China was going to stop its testing, he added.

St. Pierre was speaking during consideration of an item dealing with international security. The item was proposed by the Soviet Union as a vehicle for Soviet and Arab points of view, but it provides a forum for anybody to say virtually anything.

Thus Canada quickly inscribed its name on the list of speakers after it was announced in Washington that the Amchitka test was on.

This is the second time that Canada has protested here about the proposed Amchitka test. Sharp protested both Soviet and U.S. tests in his speech at the opening of the General Assembly.

St. Pierre, a Chilcotin Liberal, said the question of international security transcends traditional concepts about security of states.

"It is well known, for example, that certain inherently dangerous objects such as a nuclear-powered vessel, or an object launched into outer space or a loaded and unseaworthy tanker, may pose a more serious threat to the security of a coastal state than a gunboat," he said.

"The concept of the protection of the territorial integrity of states in the charter must in the contemporary world be viewed as subsuming the new threat posed by technology to the environment beyond national jurisdiction."

St. Pierre spared only Britain among the nuclear powers.

He said:

"The Amchitka test, of course, is not unique. In the present state of affairs it cannot be called unexpected. Nuclear arms will proliferate and underground tests will continue as long as nations fear that their rivals are sur-

NO NASTY SMIRKS USING THIS PHONE

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Robert Stanbury Wednesday launched an experimental picturephone service from his Parliament Hill office to the communications department.

The picturephone is a combined television camera and screen equipped with a dial and buttons to adjust the camera. There is also a privacy button which would allow the hearer to listen privately on a nearby telephone receiver.

Bell Canada has installed two sets costing $2,500 each with a monthly rental of $150. The sets have five-inch-square screens.

The communications department wants to try the system for six months to see how useful it is and to test the reaction of users, the minister said.

Majority Seen For Market Bid

LONDON (CP) — Ten years of monumental effort to gain British membership in the European Common Market reach a historic climax tonight with a crucial Commons vote on the hotly-contested issue.

There appeared little doubt a comfortable majority will support the principle of entry on terms negotiated by the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath.

This would mean that for the first time in a decade nothing stands in the way of British membership in Europe except parliamentary approval of enabling legislation to be introduced later.

The vote, set for 2 p.m. PDT, comes at the end of a six-day debate which saw a succession of late-night House sittings, some sparkling rhetoric and bitter political infighting.

Most newspapers today gave Heath—who has staked his political future largely on the Market issue—a majority of 50 to 70 MPs in the 630-seat Commons.

The Common Market bands together France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg in a customs union in which the main barriers to the free flow of internal trade have been dismantled.

The entry terms have torn deep divisions in the Opposition Labor party, caused a small number of Tory MPs to bolt party lines and have apparently not been convincing to the British public.

'Stop Tough Talk'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might be able to help the U.S. with its trade balance problem if the U.S. were to become more co-operative and avoid handing down ultimatums, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday.

Sharp was questioned in the commons by NDP Leader David Lewis about a television appearance he made on a U.S. network Tuesday.

The minister said his message in the broadcast had been that the U.S. balance-of-payments problem would not be solved by the U.S. government saying to Canada: "Here is a surcharge which will remain on until you do such and such."

Canada has been subject to the 10-per-cent additional U.S. tax on imports announced by President Nixon on August 15, despite appeals for exemption.

Senior U.S. government officials have said that Canada should agree to alterations of the Canadian-U.S. auto pact and the defence production sharing agreement, among other things, that would shift the balance of trade between the two countries in favor of the U.S.

SITUATION DIFFICULT

But Sharp would say only that it was difficult to resolve economic problems on the basis of an ultimatum a "sphere of friendship and co-operation" was needed.

In Chicago, U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans told a news conference that results of the 10-per-cent extra charge on dutiable imports "have been exaggerated in the rhetoric of negotiation by affected countries."

He cited Canada as an example, saying half of its exports to the U.S. are not affected and other Canadian items produced at a cost of more than 10 per cent under the U.S. cost would continue flowing into the U.S. market.

All told, about 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the U.S. are affected by the surcharge.

TRADE SURPLUS

In Washington, the government reported a trade surplus of $265.4 million in September after four consecutive months of deficits.

The report said U.S. exports totalled $4.51 billion while imports were valued at $4.25 billion. The figures did not include U.S. military expenditures abroad, which normally offset any trade surpluses.

Assistant commerce secretary Harold Passer said that because of distortions due to the dock strikes, the full impact is still not evident from the 10 per cent U.S. import surcharge, changes in exchange rates and the shift to floating rates of exchange of the dollar.

U.K. Troops Forced To Halt Detonation

Times News Services

BELFAST (UPI) — Irish Republic troops with submachineguns at the ready forced British troops today to abandon explosive charges they had planted on a bridge at the border of Ireland and Northern Ireland.

No shots were exchanged in this 90-minute confrontation described by British military spokesmen as the most serious in recent memory. There was no immediate word as to how many troops were involved on both sides.

PROTEST MADE

A British army spokesman said a British patrol was laying explosive charges to blow up a cross-border bridge at Munnelly, near Roslea, in county Fermanagh. Irish police protested, saying the bridge was at least half in the Irish Republic, and called the Irish army.

The Irish army arrived and took up firing positions along the southern side. An Irish army spokesman said: "The army stood by to render any assistance to the police." A British army spokesman added: "I would imagine our chaps would have kept the other side covered."

The British army has been destroying bridges and roads near the border to prevent arms and other supplies from reaching men of the outlawed Irish Republican Army which is blamed for much of the violence in the north.

The British spokesman said the local Irish and British commanders discussed the situation and examined local army ordinance maps. The British unit then withdrew the charges it had placed on the north side of the bridge but left charges on the south end under guard.

Meanwhile a Roman Catholic joined Northern Ireland's cabinet for the first time Wednesday night with an appeal for peace. A few hours later, a police officer and a British soldier were killed and the army claimed at least six guerrillas were shot in a gun battle.

Prime Minister Brian Faulkner appointed Dr. Gerard Newe, 64-year-old specialist in social work, as a minister of state in an attempt to reach out to the Catholic minority.

The toll of known deaths in the communal warfare rose to 139 in the last two years, including 31 British soldiers this year.

SHOOT SIX SNIPERS

After an eight-hour house-to-house gun fight in West Belfast during the night, military headquarters reported troops hit at least six guerrilla snipers. But the dead or wounded were dragged away into the darkness by their comrades, the army said.

Early today, raiders ambushed a police car driving along the northern shore of Lough Neagh a few miles from Belfast.

U.S. Holds Back Budget for UN

UNITED NATIONS (WP) — The United States has withdrawn its 1972 United Nations budget until it decides how to react to the general assembly's expulsion of Taiwan, a U.S. spokesman said Wednesday.

Rep. Edward Derwinski (R-Ill.), a member of the U.S. delegation, was to have outlined U.S. plans to the assembly's fifth (financial) committee. He decided to wait until "after the dust has settled," according to Nicholas King, the spokesman.

Congressional and White House pronouncements have raised the possibility of reductions in U.S. financial support of the United Nations, both on general principles and specifically because the assembly adopted the Albanian proposal to seat Peking and expel "the representatives of Chiang Kai-shek" rather than the U.S. proposal for dual representation of Peking and Taiwan.

Any cuts in the U.S. contribution will have a profound effect because the United Nations is on the verge of bankruptcy and frequently can pay its staff only by collecting voluntary or advance contributions from states that want to prevent the organization from going under.

The United Nations needs between $52.3 million and $69.9 million in voluntary contributions — beyond yearly assessments — to settle its current deficit. Ambassador Edvard Hambro of Norway told the fifth committee last week.

Advisers to India

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Soviet Union, in an apparent attempt to strengthen the Indian armed forces in their confrontation with Pakistan, is sending a high-ranking military delegation Friday to study India's latest defence requirements, authoritative Indian sources said today.

NFLD. VOTING HEAVY

Times News Services

ST. JOHN'S — Voting was reported heavy in the early hours of polling in today's Newfoundland election.

A record 265,000 are eligible to vote, including 19- and 20-year-olds for the first time.

Of the 42 seats at stake the Liberals hold 25, the Progressive Conservatives 7, independents 3, and 7 are vacant.

There are 108 candidates in the running, with both Grits and Tories running full slates and the New Democratic Party fielding 17.

Considerable interest is centred on the three Labrador seats, all being contested by the New Labrador Party under former Liberal Tom Burgess.

Polls close at 3:30 p.m. Victoria time and first returns are expected shortly afterward.

'GREENPEACE TOO' SAILS TONIGHT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A crew of up to 30 protesters are to sail for Amchitka tonight aboard a former minesweeper dubbed Greenpeace Too for its last-minute race to beat the Nov. 4 date for a United States nuclear test on the Aleutian island.

The Don't Make A Wave Committee chartered the 150-foot Edgewater Fortune Wednesday after U.S. President Richard Nixon gave the Atomic Energy Commission approval for the five-megaton blast.

The new protest group hopes to meet the original Greenpeace mission aboard the 71-foot halibut boat Phyllis Cormack, at Alert Bay to take aboard some of its crew.

The first mission, which sailed from Vancouver Sept. 15, was short of fuel and provisions and turned back when it became apparent that the blast would not be set off in October. The Phyllis Cormack was sailing south from Prince Rupert Wednesday when it received word that the un-

EGAN WANTS SHIPS

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — Alaska Gov. William Egan wants rescue vessels stationed along the Aleutian island chain in case the five-megaton nuclear blast at Amchitka Island brings unforeseen disaster.

Egan dispatched a telegram to U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird Wednesday asking for the vessels.

Religious Revival Surprises India

HARDWAR, India (CP) — A big religious revival is under way during October in this sprawling Asian country of 560 million people and many religions.

One can see the revival in Hardwar, the ancient Hindu pilgrim town 150 miles north of New Delhi at the foothills of the Himalayas. Every day thousands of devotees pour into the town by train, bus, bullock cart and on foot to worship in its 500 temples.

"The more modern the country becomes the larger is the flow of pilgrims into Hardwar and other religious centres," said one official. He said the Indian government is spending vast sums for the comfort of the pilgrims.

Prof. Samar Guha, a Calcutta University scholar, is in Hardwar to write a book on the "conflict between Hinduism and modern influences in India."

"The more I see the pilgrim rush the more I wonder whether religion is really losing its hold on India as some scholars and left-wing intellectuals say," Prof. Guha said.

PLANTS BUILT

In and around Hardwar many modern factories have sprung up. The Russians have helped to put up a huge plant for the manufacture of antibiotics and other drugs. There is also a big heavy electrical equipment factory, besides dozens of small industrial plants.

More colleges and schools have also been established in this region of temples and monasteries. There are two shops in Hardwar selling the latest pop music records from the West.

Yet, as Prof. Guha and other observers notice, the Hindu religion is also growing in influence.

When the Indian government decided to set up modern industries and new colleges in the Hardwar-Rishikesh area in the Himalayas about 10 years ago, one of its undeclared hopes was that they would help to reduce the power of the religious institutions on the minds of the people.

Pandit Shiv Narayan Sharma, 80-year-old Hindu priest in charge of one of the beautiful temples on the banks of the Ganges River, recalled that foreigners were not welcome in the pilgrim centres 20 years ago. His own temple barred westerners until 1950.

SEE WIDER WORLD

Now, Sharma has two Americans, a Canadian and a Norwegian among his 50 disciples. "The foreign disciples are trying to understand Hindu philosophy but their very presence here is making my Hindu disciples look beyond Hardwar to the wider world beyond," the bearded priest said.

At a recent all-religions convention here representatives of the various religions noted that "the more modern India becomes the more God-fearing her people tend to be."

This view is contested by left-wing politicians. Bodhraj Gupta, a member of the Communist party of India, said: "No one wants Western influence to grow here but the fact is that Hinduism cannot stand up before modern ideas."

Gupta, who is pro-Russian, said: "Blast furnaces and atomic power plants will gradually ease monks and monasteries out of existence as has happened in Chinese-occupied Tibet across the Himalayas."
